By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraskans will begin paying record-high state taxes in 19 days. Pocketbooks will be affected from the grocery store to slightly shrunken paychecks.

The sales tax will go up from 2½¢ to 3¢ on the dollar Sept. 1. That means 4% for Lincoln, Omaha, and Bellevue residents who pay a piggybacked 1% city sales tax. North Platte will fall into that category Oct. 1.

The state income tax goes from 15% to 17% of an individual's federal tax liability. That means more dollars will be withheld from pay. For each $1,000 a Nebraskan must pay on 1976 income, he will have to cough up $20 more than on his previous year's payment.

"This is a rather painful meeting that we are faced with today," Gov. J. James Exon said when he convened the emergency session of the State Board of Equalization and Assessment.

Board members unanimously approved the higher tax rates, recommended by the Exon administration because revenue has not kept pace with appropriations.

According to Revenue Department projections, the state illegally would have gone into the hole by approximately $48.8 million without hiking taxes. The new rates are estimated to provide the state with a surplus of between $15.8 million and $33.8 million next July.

The board in April held to current tax rates, optimistic that economic predictions would stand. After a lengthy discussion Thursday about the $40 million error in income tax revenues, members agreed the rates had to go up.

That came after Exon drew laughter when he rolled his eyes, saying, "Now we have to have at least three votes to pass that." It was a political reference. The governor and his appointee, Tax Commissioner William E. Peters are Democrats. The three Republican members are State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson, Secretary of State Allen Beermann and Treasurer Frank Marsh.

Exon expressed regrets that the board had to impose the higher tax rates now "rather than Jan. 1, as we had hoped at our April meeting."

The income tax hike is effective for calendar 1976, and is linked to a corporate tax increase. The two-step corporate tax formula will move the rates from 3.75% of 4.25% for up to $25,000 taxable income and from 4.125% to 4.675% on $25,000 or more.

Peters said the rate trio "comes the closest to meeting" the dollars required, including the 3% statutory overlevy of $13.8 million.

The Revenue Department distributed data depicting results of a 3% sales tax and 16% income tax rate, which could have been imposed instead. Assuming 100% expenditures, the state would end up $861,938 in the red, excluding the dollar cushion required. A cash flow analysis under those rates indicates that at 96.1% spending, the state could end up with a $17 million balance.

But because deficit appropriations will be required from new tax-generating rates, the shakily close 3-16% formula was offered to illustrate the need for a 17% income tax level. The 3-17% combination adopted takes into account the need for a $2.5 million state school aid deficit allotment and others already apparent, the governor said.

The board agreed earlier revenue projections from the sales tax were accurate. The additional half-percent to be levied will produce about $30 million of the $48.8 million shortfall anticipated.

However, board members dug into reasons why income tax estimates were off by more than 10%.

The Revenue Department buys a national economic trend indicator, among several available, as a basis for making tax income projections.

The board unanimously agreed to Beermann's motion to consider buying another recognized indicator package as well, to provide a cross-check or balance of projections for the Equalization Board to consider when it meets by Nov. 15 to set calendar 1977 tax rates.

Exon pointed out that the legislative fiscal analyst's projections were also off by almost $30 million.

Peters indicated the problem is nationwide, with exceptions. Texas, for example, "missed by $1 billion." He said unexpectedly high unemployment rates contributed to the Revenue Department's error because consumer patterns changed.

And he defended the data used last April, when "I was hopeful we were on a strong upswing" as all projections showed.

Marsh expressed concern about possibly coming up 10% short on receipts again even under the higher tax rates. Peters acknowledged they are subject to jerks in the economy. For starters, he said income from investment interest will be down sharply, because of fewer dollars in the general fund.

URW Local Sees 'Beginning Of End'

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

"It could be the beginning of the end."

Thus did Gilbert Laws, president of Local 286 of the United Rubber Workers, appraise the announcement that the union and rubber industry officials had reached "an understanding" in the 115-day-old strike.

Negotiators in Washington, D.C., working almost around the clock since being called to the bargaining table last Saturday by Labor Secretary W. J. Usery Jr. reached the understanding about 3 a.m. CDT Thursday.

By late Thursday, there was still no word on the terms of the understanding.

Laws said an agreement would have to be reached between the union and Firestone, which was chosen as the target company for negotiations when the strike began on April 20.

If the union and Firestone can agree to terms, then the proposal will go to the union committee representing all companies struck — Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal. Each company would then negotiate on points concerning their operation.

When the final Goodyear contract offer is drawn up, each local will vote to ratify the agreement. There are 15 union locals for Goodyear factories around the country. At least eight of those must ratify the contract, and the number of workers voting for the contract must be a majority of the total URW members working in Goodyear plants.

Laws said the entire process, if everything went smoothly, would take a couple of weeks before workers return to their jobs in Lincoln.

Announcement of the breakthrough in talks was greeted with something less than unbounded enthusiasm on the picket lines Thursday.

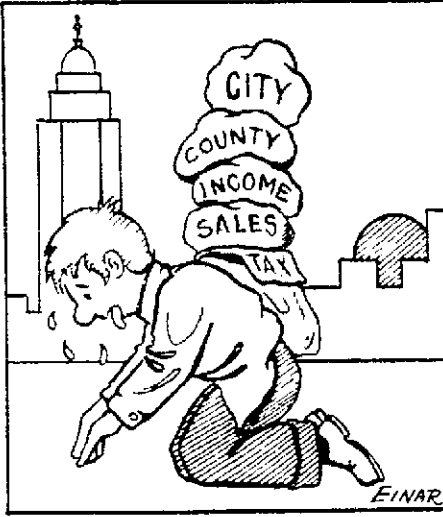

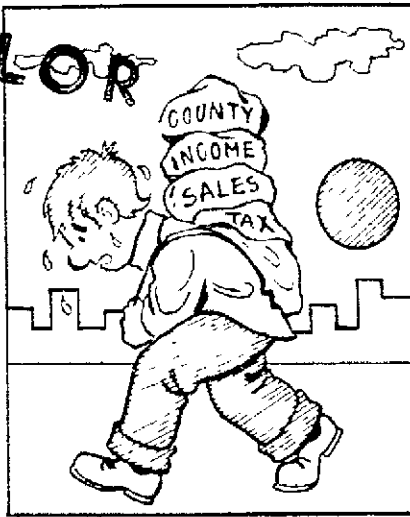

"We'll be happy if the contract is what we've been asking for," said one picketer. "If not, we'll be happy to stay out longer."

Local Goodyear officials were just as guarded in their optimism.

"We haven't heard anything," said Gordon Hein, assistant personnel manager.

The pickets will remain in front of the Lincoln plant until the contract is ratified by the Goodyear unions, Laws said.

THURSDAY... was a busy day on the tax front as state, Lancaster County and Lincoln officials dealt with budget problems.

$25.9 Million County Budget Juggled, Okayed

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners spent three hours Thursday juggling the books, and finally approved a budget that was about $22,000 higher than the one presented during the public hearing.

The $25.9 million budget is up more than $3 million from last year's $22.7 million and will require an additional 10.2% in tax support from property owners.

The 13.219 mill levy for this year means that a taxpayer who owns a $35,000 home will be paying $14.99 in additional county taxes.

One mill equals $1 per $1,000 in assessed property value, and property is assessed at 35% of actual or appraised value.

Last year the owner of the $35,000 home paid $146.94 in county taxes based on the 11.995 levy. This year he will pay $161.93.

Commissioners also approved $125,000 for rural library services, which will require about a 1.6 mill levy support from property owners outside Lincoln city limits.

In three hours of number switching and split votes, the commissioners added one car and one radio to the sheriff department, $15,000 for foster home care, more money for county clerk machine rental, about $3,000 in new and rented equipment for the county attorney's office, $8,000 for bookkeeping machine rental and part-time help for the county treasurer and about $5,000 for county engineer purposes.

Federal revenue sharing rather than local tax money will cover most of the new expenditures.

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger won most of his battle for what he termed a "compromise."

During the preliminary budget reviews the board cut about $350,000 from the engineer's three budget requests and put $100,000 into revenue sharing, earmarked for engineer purposes.

Nuernberger asked commissioners to forget the revenue sharing and to put about $105,000 back into his budgets, which the board did.

Bruce Hamilton, who earlier supported (with Jan Gauger) the original cuts, said that $5,000 might be a good price to pay for better cooperation between the board and the engineer.

But commissioners were not ready to buy a $30,000 price tag for cooperation with County Assessor Fritz Meyer — at least not all the strings attached.

For $30,000, including addition of three permanent employees, Meyer told the board he could get the new and higher property values finished this year barring "things outside my control happening."

The permanent employees, not the money, was the hitch to commissioners. Fearing that the county may have to start laying off employees before next year because of the fiscal crunch, commissioners have denied almost every request for additional permanent help in other departments.

The fiscal crunch is a direct result of the delay in the property value update.

Commissioners offered Fritz the employees, but only as part-time help and only from federal revenue sharing funds.

Fritz wouldn't buy either part of the compromise.

Without full-time people, "I'm not going to get the job done," he promised.

And because he would have no control over the revenue sharing funds, Fritz said he wouldn't take any of it.

But commissioners added the money into revenue sharing anyway — at least $15,000 of it — with hopes that Meyer will "consider the importance of the update" and use the money.

The vote was unanimous, with a reluctant yes from Bob Colin, who feared that commissioners were wasting money on the update project, which may not even be approved by the state auditor's office when it is completed.

"I get a feeling we're feeding a dead hog," said Colin.

Council Backs Away From Some Reductions

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Thursday night backed away from some of the tentative budget cuts made during a series of budget sessions over the past four weeks.

Although the council had not reached final action on the budget as they continued meeting into the early morning hours, it appeared the final tax-supported budget would be around $36.7 million.

The budget includes a 5% wage hike to city employees, which the council adopted following the lead of the County Board. City employee groups have yet to sign contracts, however.

That means that city property taxes (only about one-fourth of the total property tax bill) on a $40,000 home would be about $378.

Combined with the other elements in the total property tax bill, taxes on a $40,000 home will be around $1,435 next year.

In decision-making after listening to three hours of testimony from a crowd that packed the council chambers and spilled out into the lobby, the council restored a total of about $207,000 from the almost $1 million in tentative budget cuts it had okayed earlier.

Concerns receiving the most comment from the almost 50 people who spoke before the council were the tentative cuts to the School Resource Officer program and city libraries, the proposed closing of the Willard Recreation Center and the proposed layoff of 12 firemen.

Other speakers pushed for the allocation of tax funds to upgrade a winterization program sponsored by the Lincoln Action Program and to construct an astronomical observatory in Holmes Park.

On that project former governor Robert Crosby sparked audience mirth with the comment, "I can't restrain myself. We're stary-eyed with hope and please lift up your eyes to the heaven."

His play on words, however, did not carry the day. The council refused to grant the $30,000 Crosby and a group of others were seeking.

Among the budget restorations the council made were a $175,000 addition to the city's contingency fund, intended to cover unexpected expenses.

The council made a $37,000 restoration to the library budget, which it had slashed earlier by $100,000. The restoration apparently will make it possible to continue morning operation of branch libraries.

The council restored $13,800 to continue playground recreation programs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., $26,121 to retain the coordinator of the School Resource Officer program, $6,700 to continue operation of the downtown senior citizens center and $12,000 for a supervisor in a new work-release project in which city jail prisoners would be employed by the public works department.

Among the other changes made by the council was the restoration of the positions of two firemen. Earlier the council had tentatively decided to lay off 12 men.

Ford Seeks To Free Mississippi Unit Vote Rule

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford, claiming a majority of the delegation, will try to crack Mississippi's unit rule at the GOP national convention. It could assure him of enough votes for the nomination.

Charles Pickering, state GOP chairman-elect, said the pivotal Mississippi delegation will consider a Ford proposal to abandon the self-imposed unit rule which binds all delegates and alternates to the candidate who has a delegation majority.

The proposal to be offered by Mike Retzer, a Ford supporter, would give each of the 30 delegates and 30 alternates — the largest bloc of uncommitted delegates — a half a vote.

By cracking the unit rule, Ford would avoid the risk of a last-minute shift to Reagan in the thinly divided delegation which could deny him any votes from the state.

According to the latest UPI nationwide count and a poll of the Mississippi delegation, the Retzer proposal would give Ford more than the 1,130 votes needed for the Republican presidential nomination.

John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, disputed the claims Ford has a majority of the Mississippi delegates.

"If you talk about all 60 that's incorrect," Sears told a news conference. "Actually, in the last week there has been a shift back among the delegates. Among the delegates alone (excluding the alternates), we have a substantial majority."

Sears and Dean Burch, one of Ford's top political operatives, both claimed their candidates would win on the first ballot but refused to provide any new delegate totals.

Ford's strategy was disclosed as his advance guard in Kansas City for the 31st national convention scored initial victories in drafting a party platform on which the GOP candidate will campaign against Jimmy Carter in the fall.

At the same time, there were indications that ardent conservatives, unhappy that neither Ford nor Ronald Reagan are pressing for tough specifics in the platform, may back off most, if not all, floor fights.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Nosen said that Ford has a majority of the Mississippi delegation, a claim that the White House has been making since the President visited with the delegates nearly three weeks ago.

State Chairman Clarke Reed was among those who switched to Ford. But Reed said in a statement Thursday he was disturbed by reports Ford was considering liberals and moderates — such as Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois and Mark Hatfield of Oregon — for the no. 2 spot.

Reed said Ford had assured him the vice presidential choice would be someone who is "philosophically compatible with himself and the mainstream of the Republican Party." But "obviously his campaign operatives have not yet received the message and time is running short."

Although Ford strategists have been claiming and acting like the President has locked up the nomination, the UPI survey — putting Mississippi's 30 in the uncommitted — gives him 1,122 or eight short. Reagan has 1,035 and 102 are uncommitted.

If Mississippi abandoned the unit rule and gave each of the 60 members a half vote, Ford would pick up 20, Reagan 19 and 12 are undecided, according to the UPI count. That would mean 14 and a half more votes for Ford on the first roll call.

Seeking Democrats' Dust

Planning to "sweep out the Democrats" in the November elections, Republicans ordered 2,000 brooms which were delivered Thursday to Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium. The Republicans had planned to distribute the brooms inside Kemper convention hall, but state fire authorities said thumbs down on the brooms.

Defection Of GOP Women Warned Over Equal Rights

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Leaders of the Republican Women's Caucus predicted Thursday a widespread defection of GOP women voters in November if the party convention refuses to endorse the Equal Rights Amendment.

Caucus leader Pat Goldman told a news conference that if the convention abandons the GOP tradition of supporting the Equal Rights Amendment "there will be many women who will refuse to vote the Republican candidate."

Ronald Reagan opposes ratification of the ERA, while President Ford supports it. Ms. Goldman, who prefers the Ms. designation, said that if Ford is nominated, and if the caucus is unsuccessful, "he may have to repudiate a platform which refused to approve the ERA."

In Washington, White House spokesman Ron Nessen said while Ford has directed "his people to make the effort to have an ERA plank in the platform," it is "a little premature" to say if Ford would make a personal appeal to the platform committee on the issue.

Caucus leaders said they will take the ERA question to the convention floor for a vote by all the GOP delegates when the platform is submitted for approval next Tuesday night.

Despite Reagan's opposition to the ERA, caucus leaders said the issue has not split along Ford-Reagan lines.

Rep. Millicent Fenwick of New Jersey said, "It really does seem incredible that we are debating something which should be as easy as breathing."

Welfare Proposal Would Ease Rule Of Father Identification

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced plans Thursday to relax the rigid requirement that mothers applying for welfare must help in identifying the father of the child and collecting child support payments from him.

In rare instances, the requirement may result in physical harm to the mother and child from the absent parent, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said.

Also, it said, the requirement may cause embarrassment to the child in cases involving rape, incest and adoption.

The proposed changes would excuse mothers applying for or receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children from cooperating in paternity and child-support efforts if their assistance "would be likely to cause substantial danger, physical harm, or undue harassment to the child or the child's caretaker relative."

The proposal is open for comment from the public the next 30 days by writing to Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, HEW, P.O. Box 2372, Washington, D.C. 20013.

If a mother is not excused by those limited exceptions and still refuses to cooperate, children in her family would remain eligible for welfare assistance but she herself would receive none, HEW said.

Lou Hays, head of the child-support enforcement program at HEW, said he was not aware of any actual cases of physical harm to a mother or child resulting from the program to track down runaway fathers. But he added that some welfare departments had reported alleged threats from absent parents.

The change was ordered by Congress a year ago, he said, but implementation was delayed because of the difficult policy questions it posed.

"We wanted to protect the child but we didn't want to create a major loophole," he said.

The program, designed to force fathers to pay for the support of their children rather than passing the responsibility on to state and federal taxpayers, has resulted in a "substantial increase" in child-support payments which ease the burden on welfare outlays, Hays said.

An estimated $300 million in child-support payments was collected during the 12 months ending last July 1, he said, an increase of between $50 million and $100 million over the previous year. Projections next year call for collections of about $400 million, he said.

Record Corn Crop Estimated

Washington (AP) — The nation's 1976 corn crop, an important key to consumer food supplies through next summer, is expected to be a new record despite a loss of 6 percent during the two most critical growing months, according to Agriculture Department reports Thursday.

"We should be seeing more meat, more pork, more milk, more chicken, more cheese — and those are big-ticket items," Director of Economics Don Paarlberg said.

On Aug. 1, the new crop came to an estimated 6.19 billion bushels, the Crop Reporting Board said. The board's July 1 estimate showed production of 6.35 billion bushels.

If the August estimate holds, this crop would be 7 percent greater than the record 1975 harvest of 5.77 billion bushels.

Burning of crops in pockets of drought in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and perhaps western Iowa did show up in the report, but the field surveys in the states where the bulk of the country's grains are grown found good to excellent conditions.

Thursday's report included the board's first soybean estimates of the season based on actual field checks. It said the forecast is for production of 1.34 billion bushels of that increasingly important feed and food grain, down 12 percent from last season.

Spreading The Honor

tons of 2,205 pounds each, up 5 percent from last year.

Total food grain output, including wheat and rice, was reported at 62 million tons, down 3 percent from last year.

The wheat crop, second-largest on record, was estimated at 2,096,000,000 bushels, down 2 percent from last year's record harvest. In July, wheat production was estimated at 2,040,456,000 bushels. The 1975 crop was 2,133,803,000 bushels.

Officials said all wheat this year, including winter and spring-planted types, was expected to average 29.8 bushels per acre, compared with 29.1 indicated in July and 30.6 harvested last year.

The sorghum crop was estimated at 789,279,000 bushels, up 4 percent from last year's harvest. It was the USDA's first forecast of 1976 sorghum production. The yield was put at 52.0 bushels per acre against 49 last year.

Ike's Son For Ford

Valley Forge, Pa. (UPI) — John S. D. Eisenhower, son of former President Dwight Eisenhower, endorsed President Ford's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Strike Settlement Rated Costly

Washington (UPI) — Union and industry negotiators in the 115-day-old rubber workers strike reached tentative accord Thursday on an economic package that government mediators said was "more expensive" than other contracts this year.

Nevertheless, they do not expect the settlement to set a precedent for bargaining in other industries.

The "understanding" between leaders of 70,000 striking United Rubber Workers union members and Firestone Tire Co. officials came at 3 a.m. CDT, after nearly five days of continual bargaining before Labor Secretary W. J. Usery Jr.

Usery and James F. Searce, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said the agreement generally followed their recommendations Sunday and was expected to end the strike and serve as a pattern for the entire rubber industry.

"The union and company have gone back to Ohio and presumably they will talk about those outstanding issues back there," a Labor Department spokesman said Thursday.

Usery and Searce said details of the agreement would be withheld until after the union presents it to its bargaining committee.

They said other contract issues remain to be resolved. "We have asked the parties to move as expeditiously as possible to reach an accord in this area," they said in a statement.

"We recognize that this economic package is more expensive than other settlements negotiated this year," Usery and Searce said, noting that union members were caught by restrictions of wage controls when they agreed to their last contract, and received no cost of living protection.

"For that reason, it has long been predicted that any settlement terms reached in rubber industry negotiations would be greater than those negotiations in industries whose workers have been the beneficiaries of cost of living escalators," the statement said. "For the same reason, we do not anticipate that this economic package will be looked to as a precedent for other negotiations."

Although Firestone did most of the bargaining, the strike affected the industry's "Big Four" firms — Firestone, Goodyear, Uniroyal and Goodrich.

Usery and Searce said the recommendations also contained provisions, which if implemented, could bring improvements in the bargaining structure in the rubber industry.

"These provisions were made in the hope that the hardships that have been caused by this extended dispute and other in the past can be avoided in the future," they said.

Sniping Suspect Discusses Motive

Wichita, Kan. (UPI) — A third victim of a downtown sniping attack died Thursday while a teenage suspect told police why he went to the top of the tallest building in Kansas and opened fire on unsuspecting drivers and pedestrians.

Although police said the suspect, Michael Soles, 19, Sand Springs, Okla., had told them why he began shooting, they declined to disclose his motive.

"We have established some motive now," said Police Lt. Col. Raymond Murrow. "But I am not at liberty to talk about it. None of us will be at liberty to discuss it until we go to court."

Mark Falen, 23, Wichita, who was shot in the neck, died at St. Francis Hospital. He had been in critical condition since the shooting Wednesday.

Police said Soles calmly carried two rifles and a lunch pail onto a balcony of the top floor of the 26-story Holiday Inn

Plaza and began sniping.

Within 15 minutes, two persons were dead, Falen was mortally wounded and six others were injured.

The sniper was stopped with bullets fired by five policemen from an adjoining balcony. Soles, who was living with a Wichita minister and was described by relatives as quiet, religious and peaceful, was in good condition Thursday.

"His physical condition has not prevented him from talking," Murrow said. "He appears to be rational."

Murrow said authorities were preparing murder and aggravated assault charges against the red-haired youth.

In Sand Springs, Soles' former high school principal, Lewis Kibbe, said there was "only one answer to this. He had to have been sick to do it — it wouldn't have been in his nature to do a thing like that."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Leaders of the Republican Women's Caucus predicted Thursday a widespread defection of GOP women voters in November if the party convention refuses to endorse the Equal Rights Amendment.

Caucus leader Pat Goldman told a news conference that if the convention abandons the GOP tradition of supporting the Equal Rights Amendment "there will be many women who will refuse to vote the Republican candidate."

A GOP convention platform subcommittee voted 8-7 Wednesday in favor of laws for equal treatment of women, but declined to put the party on record supporting the ERA. That would be a break with a GOP policy dating back to the 1940 GOP convention. A close vote is expected when the question comes up before the full platform committee.

Record Corn Crop Estimated

Washington (AP) — The nation's 1976 corn crop, an important key to consumer food supplies through next summer, is expected to be a new record despite a loss of 6 percent during the two most critical growing months, according to Agriculture Department reports Thursday. "We should be seeing more meat, more pork, more milk, more chicken, more cheese — and those are big-ticket items," Director of Economics Don Paarlberg said. On Aug. 1, the new crop came to an estimated 6.19 billion bushels, the Crop Reporting Board said. The board's July 1 estimate showed production of 6.55 billion bushels. Burning of crops in pockets of drought in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and perhaps western Iowa did show up in the report, but the field surveys in the states where the bulk of the country's grains are grown found good to excellent conditions. Thursday's report included the board's first soybean estimates of the season based on actual field checks. It said the forecast is for production of 1.34 billion bushels of that increasingly important feed and food grain, down 12 percent from last season.

The department expects the bumper corn crops to encourage livestock producers this coming winter to feed more, cheaper grain to their animals and keep the rates of meat production stable at their present high levels through next year. Without that, its economists say, rising consumer demand will push up the prices and lower farm-level demand will hurt grain farmers. The corn crop is in its critical stages of growth and maturation in July and August in the key states, and USDA officials pointed out that good weather and normal rainfall this month are essential for the forecasts to hold. The board said that the national "all-crops" production index as of Aug. 1 averaged 1.21 percent of the 1967 base year against which changes are measured. It was 1.22 percent for 1975. The immensity of the U.S. crop area is a principal reason why pockets of drought, despite their local economic severity, have little impact on total grain production. For example, the 2.25 million acres of corn harvested last year in South Dakota is about one-third of the acreage in production nationwide this year. The report said that 1976 production of the four major livestock feed grains — corn, oats, barley and sorghum — was estimated at 193 million metric tons of 2,205 pounds each, up 5 percent from last year. Total food grain output, including wheat and rice, was reported at 62 million tons, down 3 percent from last year. The wheat crop, second-largest on record, was estimated at 2,096,000,000 bushels, down 2 percent from last year's record harvest. In July, wheat production was estimated at 2,040,456,000 bushels. REFUGEE . . . embraces relative after fleeing from Tal Zaatar.

Tal Zaatar Camp Falls In Battle

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Tank-backed Christian forces captured the Tal Zaatar refugee camp Thursday. Bitter Palestinians blamed Syria for the fall and said the Syrians should "burn in hell."

The Christian victory ended the longest and fiercest battle of the 17-month-old civil war. Christian troops took about 6,000 prisoners, most of them civilians whom they released soon after their capture.

A Palestinian spokesman confirmed that the camp, under siege for 54 days by Christian forces, had fallen.

"The Syrians condoned this," a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) said. "They helped plan it, they made it possible by keeping all our forces tied down throughout the country, rendering us unable to send men to relieve the siege."

"May they burn in hell for this," he said.

Syria and the PLO signed a reconciliation agreement earlier this month aimed at ending the feud between them.

"Tal Zaatar was the largest refugee camp around Beirut," the PLO spokesman said. "They can't expect to push 20,000 people around like ants and get away with it. I don't know what we will do. But they owe us blood."

Reporters who visited the camp after its fall said there was no evidence of a massacre of defenders, as claimed by a number of refugees who streamed across the confrontation line into western Beirut.

A Christian commander said about 100 younger men, all Palestinians, had been held captive.

"They will be treated in accordance with all the international laws regarding prisoners of war," he said.

Launching their 71st major attack in eight weeks, Christian forces stormed inside the camp from four directions early Thursday after boxing its beleaguered defenders into a line of shell-damaged, crumbling buildings in a northeast corner of the surrounding 74-acre enclave in southeast Beirut.

There, a small but apparently determined group of defenders kept up a last stand, but Christians predicted they would soon be routed.

"There are no more than 50 of them," a Christian commander said. "They're low on ammunition and they have no water. Unless they surrender, we either bomb them out or thirst them out."

With Tal Zaatar's capture, the Christians accomplished one of their long-standing military goals of the war — to eliminate the last vestige of Moslem Leftist presence in the eastern half of the capital.

New York Times News Summary

Prices Rise Slightly

Washington — Wholesale prices, taken as a group, rose only 0.3% in July, the smallest rise since March. But other aspects of the Labor Department's monthly wholesale price index published Thursday contained warnings that the inflation rate might worsen somewhat in the future. The relatively small increase in the overall index occurred because the prices of farm products actually declined, by 1%, as did prices of processed foods and feeds, which went down 0.9%.

Vaccine Makers Gear Up

Washington — Flu vaccine manufacturers have told the government they will start immediately to process their large supplies of bulk vaccine for distribution and use, a government official said Thursday. President Ford signed the vaccine malpractice bill Thursday and directed the Department of Health Education and Welfare to move "as expeditiously as possible" to make the vaccine available to all Americans who want it.

27 Dead In Two-Day Riot

Johannesburg — Armed policemen and stone-throwing demonstrators continued to battle Thursday night in Cape Town's black townships where at least 27 people have died in two days of the most violent confrontations since anti-government rioting broke out two months ago. At least four blacks died at noon when police with automatic rifles opened fire on about 1,000 demonstrators who had been stoning traffic.

Metals Rejected As Cause

Harrisburg, Pa. — The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said Thursday that 17 metals had been excluded as possible causes of the mysterious "legionnaire's disease" that has killed 27 persons in Pennsylvania. At the same time, tests made for one of the chemicals still under suspicion — nickel carbonyl — were declared invalid because of contamination.

Irish Women March For Peace

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Calm returned to the battle-scarred streets of Belfast and Londonderry Thursday for the first time in five days, and wives, mothers and girlfriends marched in a demand for peace in Northern Ireland.

"It's been the quietest day in the province in months," a spokesman for the British army said, dismissing minor stone-throwing in Londonderry, 80 miles west of Belfast.

A sprinkling of men joined a march of 1,200 women from the Roman Catholic ghettos of West Belfast and marched through the streets chanting and shouting against the gunmen who unleashed a wave of arson, bombings and shootings that took five lives since last weekend.

The women's anger was directed against the killing of three children of the Maguire family slain when a wounded Irish Republican Army gunman smashed his getaway automobile into them, at the height of the outbreak.

Londonderry remained quiet also, despite a march of 8,000 Protestants and 16 bands through the predominantly Catholic city. It commemorates the 287th anniversary of the Protestant defeat of a Catholic siege of the city in 1689.

U.N. Meeting Turns Into Shouting Match

Geneva, Switzerland (UPI) — A U.N. meeting on race discrimination broke into a shouting match Thursday with a jurists commission accusing the Soviet Union of practicing torture and the Soviet delegate calling the commission head "a CIA agent."

The meeting of the U.N. sub-commission on prevention of discrimination, which had just begun a two-week session on human rights violations in southern Africa, was canceled after the outburst.

The fight was triggered when Niall MacDermot, secretary general of the International Commission of Jurists, introduced a memorandum detailing alleged torture of political dissidents in eight countries including the Soviet Union. Soviet delegate Sergei N. Smirnov jumped up and shouted that MacDermot "is a CIA agent and the International Commission of Jurists is a CIA organization."

The commission report charged Indonesia, Iran, the Philippines, Guatemala, Uruguay, Brazil, South Korea and the Soviet Union systematically tortured political prisoners; it contained testimony from Iranian and South Korean prisoners alleging sexual abuse.

French Murder Suspect Called Another Bluebeard

PARIS (AP) — A 53-year-old French housepainter who served 20 years in prison for bludgeoning and slashing a man to death has been charged with five more killings. There is speculation the toll may mount and newspapers already are comparing him to the notorious mass murderer Bluebeard.

Bernard Pesquet, 53, was formally charged with two new counts of murder Thursday after identifying badly decomposed corpses dug up in his cellar as those of his 33-year-old wife Christine, who disappeared two years ago, and Henri Francqui, 62, a businessman who may have been her lover.

Pesquet denies the police charge that he carried out the triple murder last month of businessman Emile Bergaud, his wife and maid in the wealthy Paris suburb of Neuilly.

Police charged Pesquet with their murders after finding in his house jewelry and a handgun

Manouchehr Ganji demanded immediate withdrawal of the memorandum which had been circulated among the delegates — human rights experts from 26 nations.

Replying to Smirnov, MacDermot said torture is a worldwide problem and "it must be made clear what countries practice it, otherwise a report would be utterly useless."

Interviewed during the uproar in the meeting hall, MacDermot said he presented a similar memorandum last year on torture in Chile and South Africa but "no one protested."

He said a recently released Soviet political prisoner, "the mathematician Leonid Plyushch, describes how orderlies in a Soviet psychiatric prison hospital — many of whom are convicted criminals — were allowed to beat up and administer drugs to political detainees."

Torture methods are becoming increasingly refined, MacDermot said. In Brazil, for example, "Prisoners are examined by a doctor who checks their health and then classifies them in one of three categories."

"The third category is the safest," he said, "torture treatment beginning with electric shocks of 110 volts."

containing foreign money belonging to Mrs. Bergaud and a credit card belonging to her husband. Also found were documents belonging to a dozen other people who have not been accounted for.

Police said Bergaud had called his banker the day of the Neuilly murder and asked for 30 million francs ($6 million) in cash to be handed over to a man he was sending to the bank.

In front-page stories, the French press has called Pesquet "diabolical" and a "monster" capable of murder "by any method."

Some stories compare him to Henri Landru, the "Bluebeard of Gambais," who was executed in 1922 for the murder of 10 women he lured to his home with matrimonial advertisements.

Pesquet was sentenced to life in prison for the killing, but was set free in 1961 for exemplary behavior. He married two years later but had no children.

REFUGEE . . . embraces relative after fleeing from Tal Zaatar.

Tal Zaatar Camp Falls In Battle

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Tank-backed Christian forces captured the Tal Zaatar refugee camp Thursday. Bitter Palestinians blamed Syria for the fall and said the Syrians should "burn in hell."

The Christian victory ended the longest and fiercest battle of the 17-month-old civil war. Christian troops took about 6,000 prisoners, most of them civilians whom they released soon after their capture.

A Palestinian spokesman confirmed that the camp, under siege for 54 days by Christian forces, had fallen.

"The Syrians condoned this," a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) said. "They helped plan it, they made it possible by keeping all our forces tied down throughout the country, rendering us unable to send men to relieve the siege."

"May they burn in hell for this," he said.

Syria and the PLO signed a reconciliation agreement earlier this month aimed at ending the feud between them.

"Tal Zaatar was the largest refugee camp around Beirut," the PLO spokesman said. "They can't expect to push 20,000 people around like ants and get away with it. I don't know what we will do. But they owe us blood."

Reporters who visited the camp after its fall said there was no evidence of a massacre of defenders, as claimed by a number of refugees who streamed across the confrontation line into western Beirut.

A Christian commander said about 100 younger men, all Palestinians, had been held captive.

"They will be treated in accordance with all the international laws regarding prisoners of war," he said.

Launching their 71st major attack in eight weeks, Christian forces stormed inside the camp from four directions early Thursday after boxing its beleaguered defenders into a line of shell-damaged, crumbling buildings in a northeast corner of the surrounding 74-acre enclave in southeast Beirut.

There, a small but apparently determined group of defenders kept up a last stand, but Christians predicted they would soon be routed.

"There are no more than 50 of them," a Christian commander said. "They're low on ammunition and they have no water. Unless they surrender, we either bomb them out or thirst them out."

With Tal Zaatar's capture, the Christians accomplished one of their long-standing military goals of the war — to eliminate the last vestige of Moslem Leftist presence in the eastern half of the capital.

New York Times News Summary

Prices Rise Slightly

Washington — Wholesale prices, taken as a group, rose only 0.3% in July, the smallest rise since March. But other aspects of the Labor Department's monthly wholesale price index published Thursday contained warnings that the inflation rate might worsen somewhat in the future. The relatively small increase in the overall index occurred because the prices of farm products actually declined, by 1%, as did prices of processed foods and feeds, which went down 0.9%.

Vaccine Makers Gear Up

Washington — Flu vaccine manufacturers have told the government they will start immediately to process their large supplies of bulk vaccine for distribution and use, a government official said Thursday. President Ford signed the vaccine malpractice bill Thursday and directed the Department of Health Education and Welfare to move "as expeditiously as possible" to make the vaccine available to all Americans who want it.

27 Dead In Two-Day Riot

Johannesburg — Armed policemen and stone-throwing demonstrators continued to battle Thursday night in Cape Town's black townships where at least 27 people have died in two days of the most violent confrontations since anti-government rioting broke out two months ago. At least four blacks died at noon when police with automatic rifles opened fire on about 1,000 demonstrators who had been stoning traffic.

Metals Rejected As Cause

Harrisburg, Pa. — The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said Thursday that 17 metals had been excluded as possible causes of the mysterious "legionnaire's disease" that has killed 27 persons in Pennsylvania. At the same time, tests made for one of the chemicals still under suspicion — nickel carbonyl — were declared invalid because of contamination.

Irish Women March For Peace

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Calm returned to the battle-scarred streets of Belfast and Londonderry Thursday for the first time in five days, and wives, mothers and girlfriends marched in a demand for peace in Northern Ireland.

"It's been the quietest day in the province in months," a spokesman for the British army said, dismissing minor stone-throwing in Londonderry, 80 miles west of Belfast.

A sprinkling of men joined a march of 1,200 women from the Roman Catholic ghettos of West Belfast and marched through the streets chanting and shouting against the gunmen who unleashed a wave of arson, bombings and shootings that took five lives since last weekend.

The women's anger was directed against the killing of three children of the Maguire family slain when a wounded Irish Republican Army gunman smashed his getaway automobile into them, at the height of the outbreak.

Londonderry remained quiet also, despite a march of 8,000 Protestants and 16 bands through the predominantly Catholic city. It commemorates the 287th anniversary of the Protestant defeat of a Catholic siege of the city in 1689.

U.N. Meeting Turns Into Shouting Match

Geneva, Switzerland (UPI) — A U.N. meeting on race discrimination broke into a shouting match Thursday with a jurists commission accusing the Soviet Union of practicing torture and the Soviet delegate calling the commission head "a CIA agent."

The meeting of the U.N. sub-commission on prevention of discrimination, which had just begun a two-week session on human rights violations in southern Africa, was canceled after the outburst.

The fight was triggered when Niall MacDermot, secretary general of the International Commission of Jurists, introduced a memorandum detailing alleged torture of political dissidents in eight countries including the Soviet Union.

Soviet delegate Sergei N. Smirnov jumped up and shouted that MacDermot "is a CIA agent and the International Commission of Jurists is a CIA organization."

The commission report charged Indonesia, Iran, the Philippines, Guatemala, Uruguay, Brazil, South Korea and the Soviet Union systematically tortured political prisoners; it contained testimony from Iranian and South Korean prisoners alleging sexual abuse.

Smirnov and Iranian delegate

Manouchehr Ganji demanded immediate withdrawal of the memorandum which had been circulated among the delegates — human rights experts from 26 nations.

Replying to Smirnov, MacDermot said torture is a worldwide problem and "it must be made clear what countries practice it, otherwise a report would be utterly useless."

Interviewed during the uproar in the meeting hall, MacDermot said he presented a similar memorandum last year on torture in Chile and South Africa but "no one protested."

He said a recently released Soviet political prisoner, "the mathematician Leonid Plyushch, describes how orderlies in a Soviet psychiatric prison hospital — many of whom are convicted criminals — were allowed to beat up and administer drugs to political detainees."

Torture methods are becoming increasingly refined, MacDermot said. In Brazil, for example, "Prisoners are examined by a doctor who checks their health and then classifies them in one of three categories."

"The third category is the safest," he said, "torture treatment beginning with electric shocks of 110 volts."

French Murder Suspect Called Another Bluebeard

PARIS (AP) — A 53-year-old French housepainter who served 20 years in prison for bludgeoning and slashing a man to death has been charged with five more killings. There is speculation the toll may mount and newspapers already are comparing him to the notorious mass-murderer Bluebeard.

Bernard Pesquet, 53, was formally charged with two new counts of murder Thursday after identifying badly decomposed corpses dug up in his cellar as those of his 33-year-old wife (Christiane, who disappeared two years ago, and Henri Franquai, 62, a businessman who may have been her lover.

Pesquet denies the police charge that he carried out the triple murder last month of businessman Emile Bergaud, his wife and maid in the wealthy Paris suburb of Neuilly.

Police charged Pesquet with their murders after finding in his house jewelry and a handgun containing foreign money belonging to Mrs. Bergaud and a credit card belonging to her husband. Also found were documents belonging to a dozen other people who have not been accounted for.

Police said Bergaud had called his banker the day of the Neuilly murder and asked for 30 million francs ($6 million) in cash to be handed over to a man he was sending to the bank.

In front-page stories, the French press has called Pesquet "diabolical" and a "monster" capable of murder "by any method."

Some stories compare him to Henri Landru, the "Bluebeard of Gambais," who was executed in 1922 for the murder of 10 women he lured to his home with matrimonial advertisements.

Pesquet was sentenced to life in prison for the killing, but was set free in 1961 for exemplary behavior. He married two years later but had no children.

Poland Sugar Hoarding Brings Back Coupons

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poles have been hoarding sugar against an expected price increase, so the Polish government announced Thursday it will issue sugar coupons to workers — the first such measure since the lean years just after World War II.

Sugar is a scarce commodity at its controlled price of 44 cents a pound, and people who work have difficulty getting it after work because others line up for hours and buy in large quantities.

The hoarders anticipate higher prices next year. Price hikes were announced in June for most foodstuffs but were shelved until next year after sit-down strikes and go-slow work in many factories and rioting in two towns.

Food prices have been frozen in Poland since 1970 when riots over planned increases drove Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomułka out of power. His successor, Edward Gierek, has maintained his popularity at least in part by subsidizing food prices heavily.

Vice Premier Tadeusz Pyka said all working Poles will be supplied with coupons that allot them a certain amount of sugar at 44 cents a pound.

Any sugar over the allotment will cost 99 cents a pound. The vice premier also said poor weather had endangered the 1976 sugar beet crop.

Terry On Deck

The possible resignation from the Nebraska Legislature of Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff propels speculation into high orbit.

Nichol, who won a contested election over write-in candidate Terry Carpenter in the 48th District contest two years ago, says he "probably will accept" the job as executive director of the Nebraska Association of County Officials which has been offered to him.

Should he resign his legislative seat, he said he would do so after August 26, so that Gov. Jim Exon would appoint a replacement for the remaining two years of Nichol's term. A resignation prior to August 26 would mean that candidates could file petitions seeking election to his unexpired term.

Nichol told the Associated Press that legislation affecting local governments had been his primary concern and that working with the county officials association would allow him to concentrate on his interest area full-time.

Gov. Exon reportedly has said he will consider any number of replacements if Nichol resigns.

One replacement comes immediately to mind — Terry Carpenter, who said upon hearing of the possible vacancy that he would be willing to fill it. At 76, Nebraska's political legend wants to be more active and feels he could be "of some value" to the Legislature if he returned.

That is an understatement if there ever was one.

Carpenter was, and would be again, of immense value to the legislative process and Nebraska state government.

There is not only a vacancy possible in the 48th legislative district. There has existed a leadership void in the Legislature since Carpenter resigned to run for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor two years ago. The Legislature has not been completely leaderless, of course. It would be unfair and inaccurate to suggest that. But Carpenter's absence is felt, even if he was feared by many of his colleagues. And with the resignation of executive board chairman Sen. Eugene Mahoney last month to take the Game and Parks Commission post, one more strong figure has taken himself out of the legislature picture.

In our opinion Terry Carpenter was the people's choice in the contested 48th District election of 1974. Many of his ballots were not counted. He probably remains today the overwhelming choice of people in that district to replace Sen. Nichol should the latter resign.

The state would benefit from Carpenter's return to the Legislature — as unpredictable and changeable as his career has been.

Certainly Gov. Exon will want to consider his sometimes-nemesis Carpenter as a replacement if a vacancy occurs in the 48th District.

It would be an act of statesmanship for Exon to ignore past political feuds with Carpenter and appoint him to the Legislature. We're sure the governor is up to it.

NU Turnover Not Alarming

We're inclined to agree with University of Nebraska Board of Regents Chairman James Moylan that resignations of top NU officials in the past year reflect a healthy situation rather than being a cause for alarm.

Nine officials, including the president and two of three chancellors, have departed within the last twelve months.

Moylan, of Omaha, believes that the departure of most of them for better positions and the fact that NU has attracted top-flight candidates to replace them illustrates the competitiveness and vitality of the university system.

Most of the departing educators and administrators found better opportunities and none of them made lateral moves to other institutions, Moylan noted.

Such upward mobility in the education field is as natural as it is anywhere else and doesn't necessarily indicate that the Nebraska system is in trouble. What it means is that the University of Nebraska, like all other institutions, has served as only one rung on the career ladder of a number of qualified educators. And for those it has lost, it most likely will attract replacements with matching capabilities.

We differ with Moylan, however, in his assertion that NU's ability to draw top talent reflects its competitiveness in the salary area.

Figures supporting and opposing that assertion can be found, depending on your inclination.

It's our belief, based on what we've seen, that NU salaries do not always match the pay offered by many top-flight universities and that Nebraska has managed to draw good staff talent in spite of its pay scale, not because of it.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Staying Home Today?

NEW YORK — Today is Friday the 13th — but who's counting? Oh... really?

"Ah, yes, superstition is more rampant than ever in this country," says America's leading authority on the subject, "but it's no longer a simple matter that can always be helped by rabbit's feet and four-leaf clovers. Not these days. Now we have active demonology, which is very dangerous, my dear. And people have fears and apprehensions that go beyond good luck omens."

Claudia deLys was born in India 81 years ago, and has spent most of her life studying the whys, wherefores and whodunsens of superstition: she had donated her research file of 100,000 omens of good and evil to Syracuse University — but she knows them, still, by heart.

"One of the most fuzzy of all superstitions is Friday the 13th," she claims. "More than $300 million is lost to business because people stay at home on these days, and yet even I can't give you a concrete reason why they should be so afraid."

"The best-known theory on why Friday is ill-fated is that Friday is supposed to be the day on which Eve tempted Adam with the fatal apple. Now, honey, do you believe that nonsense?"

"No," I said. "Well, then, let's try another excuse. There is also the story that Friday was named after Frigg (or Frigga), the Norse Goddess of marriage. Later she was confused with the Goddess of Love, Freya, who in turn became identified with Friday."

"Now, when the Norsemen and Germanic tribes became Christians, Freya was supposed to have been banished to the mountains as a witch, and Friday came to be called the 'Witches Sabbath.' For it was believed that on this day each week, 12 witches and the devil met — 13 evil spirits, you see, holding clubby sessions on Friday. Do you go for that?"

"No."

"Okay," says Ms. deLys. "I guarantee that, if you don't believe Friday is inherently bad, you're not going to like the theories on the number, 13. Anyway, here goes: When man first learned to count, he added up his 10 fingers, and counting his feet as two units, he came up with the number 12. Beyond that lay the vague, mysterious unknown, in the form of Number 13. Is that clear?"

"I think so."

"But consider this," the expert went on. "Though 13 is supposed to be a dreaded number, the American dollar bill is simply laden with symbols of thirteenism. Turn George Washington over on his face, and look at the two seals on the back of the bill. On the left you'll find an incomplete, or truncated pyramid, shown off abruptly at the top of the 13th step. On the right is the American bald eagle, holding in one talon 13 arrows and, in the other, 13 leaves with 13 berries on an olive branch. Over the eagle's head are 13 stars."

Claudia said with a laugh, "I like to tell superstitious people that if they're afraid of thirteens, they'd better avoid taking money. Sometimes this convinces them they're being silly. But not often enough."

After a lifetime of compiling "superstitious nonsense" and turning out such best-sellers as her "Treasure of Superstitions," Claudia deLys considers all omens and gestures involving good and bad luck to be "absurd."

But she can see that "it fills a need in society. This is an age of increasing fear and uncertainty (as every age, actually, has seemed to the people who lived in it) and many people spend a great deal of money seeking peace of mind through psychiatry or courses that promise self-help.

"One thing can be said for the superstitious person: He doesn't need to spend much money. He can buy a good luck charm, such as a rabbit's foot (Americans spend $130 million a year on such superstitious objects), and he gets by cheap. As long as someone believes that an omen is really lucky, he gains confidence from his 'crutch.' Good luck charms are 'the poor man's tranquilizers.'"

Miss deLys has no sympathy whatever with the thousands of Americans who will be staying home today, afraid to venture out on Friday the 13th.

"Why should I sympathize with them?" she leers. "You're working, I'm working. They get a long weekend..."

Two Plans

My thanks for printing the article, "Hamilton Postulates Growth Conspiracy."

I am concerned that Plan 3B is being ignored. Virtually all of the citizens at "Goals and Policies" meetings thought 3B contained too many street widenings (specifically 84th Street). Almost half of the group thought 3B completely unacceptable in that it contained proposals to widen many streets which citizens did not want widened. A far too radical plan, 3B, is now being ignored by the Planning Commission for an even more radical plan — 6A. It would widen even more streets than Plan 3B. It is, I think, impossible to plan fully for the contingencies envisaged by Plan 3B using Plan 6A.

I would think that a truly democratic Planning Commission would want to use the plan (or plans) selected by citizens in the "Goals and Policies" meetings and by elected county and city officials at their meetings. It is my experience that bureaucracies which plan without attending to citizen input also act without attending to it.

If any body is to be abolished, it should not be the Goals and Policies Committee. Without being overly hasty in our judgment, we should perhaps reconsider the existence, structure and functions of the Planning Commission and Technical Committee.

The Whole Iceberg

The Star staff reporters, Nancy Hicks and Gordon Winters, are to be commended for their investigative reporting efforts which resulted in the recent disclosures concerning the outside activities of John Longsdorf, executive director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District.

As residents of the South Salt Creek Community, we have lodged numerous complaints about the actions of Mr. Longsdorf. His involvement in a dummy corporation set up to allow him to accept contracts around the state is merely the latest in a long list of questionable activities. It is the investigative efforts of these reporters which have shown the public the tip of the iceberg.

At this point in time, it seems evident that the members of the RTSD Board are not aware of the tangled relationships and special interests which make up the bulk of that iceberg. It will be through continued investigative efforts that those who stand to gain from this "leak" of information will be discovered.

The discontent of a community association such as ours was not enough to spark requests for Mr. Longsdorf's resignation. It would be of interest to know where the power lies, and who might benefit from such a disclosure.

Boycott On Meat

The time has come for the American working man to use the most effective instrument in the lowering of prices that he has — boycott. Refusing to buy until the price lowers.

The most glaring place to start is in meats. No way can a cattle industry stand speculative land-buying of ranch land that formerly sold for $15 and $20 an acre under speculators, now selling at $250 an acre. The cow hasn't been found that will carry the interest and principal on such transactions.

Working people would be doing the rancher a favor to boycott red meat until the price of land in the ranch area becomes less speculative.

FORTUNUS

Call For Resignation

The article in the August 6 Star concerning the executive director of Lincoln's RTSD board implies that he has been "moonlighting" with other RTSD boards for pay and that this has shocked his fellow board members. I wonder why, since he has been less than honest with our neighborhood organization.

Members of the South Salt Creek Community Organization who attended two recent public hearings with the RTSD board are familiar with his contradictory statements and broken promises. He has managed to create an atmosphere of distrust at these hearings even over some objection from another board member.

I believe he should resign to at least restore credibility to the RTSD board itself.

MRS. D. SCHNEIDER

Fire Department Staff

Perhaps this letter should not be written, since we are no longer residents. However, at the urging of my husband, I feel obligated for the sake of the misinformed people of Lincoln.

We had been vacationing in Lincoln and were shocked to hear on the news about the predicament the fire department will soon be in, if they cut down the force. Has there been any mention of the continual injuries to fire-fighters, and is it realized that this is the most dangerous occupation in our country?

We know, as my husband is a fire-fighter here in Idaho, so we do have an interest, especially since Lincoln was our home at one time.

Lincoln has grown in size, and to sell the people short on such an important service is criminal. Sooner or later some fireman will be severely injured as a result of the department's being under-staffed.

Idaho was advised by "experts" that the dam that burst was safe — no problems. Don't let so-called experts tell you to cut expenses with poor fire service. Let the Lincoln people use common sense, not the expert advice which sometimes looks good on paper but is seldom adequate.

Support For Resolution

Approximately two years ago, the news media appropriately devoted a great deal of time and space to a continually pressing world problem, hunger. In response, many individuals developed a deep concern and sought ways to help alleviate the problem. Increasing sums of money were donated to relief agencies such as CARE, Lutheran World Relief, Catholic Relief Service, etc. during the past two years.

Others sought to attack world hunger by attempting to influence U. S. government policy toward developmental aid. Approximately 300,000 letters were received by congresspersons supporting the Right to Food Resolution (H. Con. Res. 303/S. Con. Res. 66). This resolution asserts the right of every person to a nutritionally adequate diet and asks that this right become a cornerstone of U. S. policy.

This resolution will hopefully be reviewed this congressional session by the House International Relations, House Agriculture and Senate Agriculture Committees. Our congresspersons need to know of our continued interest and support of this far-reaching resolution.

KANSAS CITY — The trouble with Republicans is that after awhile they all look alike. They come from New York and Alabama and Oregon and Iowa, but you get the idea that if they lived in the same community, they would all hang around together.

With a few exceptions, Republicans tend to be white and middle-aged and well educated and affluent. An Associated Press survey found, for example, that two-thirds of the delegates to the national convention opening here Monday have incomes of more than $25,000 a year. But, most of all, Republicans are like one another.

That, of course, may be one of the reasons they have been losing so many elections lately. The Republican Party is not exclusionary in the sense of the Mormon Church, but it is not lost on anyone that there are very few blacks or Jews or Spanish-speaking Americans who have attained positions of power in the party hierarchy.

For every Ed Derwinski or Silvio Conte, there seem to be a score of people with nice waspish names. The delegations to this convention will be led most often by people with such names as Hunt and Coghill and Brown and Taylor and Reed and Moore.

What this homogeneity produces, of course, is a lot of similar thinking. And that, in turn means that the great debates within the Grand Old Party are usually narrow. When one of those bomb-throwers categorized as a Republican moderate or liberal suggests, for instance, that something needs to be done for the cities, there is no wide range of options explored. Instead, it is usually a question of just what kind of tax incentive should be offered to encourage them to provide jobs and growth in the cities.

It is apparent, too, that Republicans have developed a consensus on some of the social issues that Democrats consider most sensitive. Republicans may disagree among themselves on whether there should be a constitutional amendment on abortion, for example, but it is plain that most of them are hostile to the very notion of abortion. That is the basic premise. The argument is over how far they should go in accepting someone else's premise.

The fact that Republicans of the kind who make it to a national convention are so prosperous and secure in their own communities also means that they are far removed from some of the problems that conventions are supposed to discuss. Republicans are not insensitive to the social role in crime but it is clear that few of those who have a voice in writing party policy have much real experience as either victims or friends and associates of the perpetrators. Crime is far more of an abstraction to your typical Republican leader than it is to someone who lives on the South Side of Chicago or on either side of Cleveland.

The lack of personal involvement in social problems inevitably leads to a sterility in the debate among Republicans on those problems. Those arguing the future of the cities, for example, are too likely to be a small town, self-employed businessman from Illinois and a woman from Arizona with a sun-tan who plays golf five days a week and bridge and tennis the other two.

This is not a fair picture, of course, of all Republicans. There are poor Republicans and blue-collar and black Republicans and Republicans whose names end with vowels.

But it is a fair picture of those who make up the Republican establishment, such as those who are dominating the preliminaries to the national convention next week and will dominate the convention itself. In a party of people who are so much alike, only those quintessentially Republican finally become delegates and movers and shakers.

There is nothing wrong with this. No one would suggest that Republicans are not nice people. And no one would suggest that homogeneity is either illegal or immoral for a political party. But it just doesn't win elections.

GOP In 'Poor Shape'

NEW YORK — There's no mistaking the poor shape of the Republican Party in public opinion polls. As the GOP assembles in Kansas City, its two possible presidential candidates trail Jimmy Carter by huge margins. Party identification is at an all-time low (18 to 21%) — likewise the percentage of people choosing the GOP as best equipped to solve the country's most pressing problems.

From Gallup to Yankeeovich, all of the national opinion probes make the same basic points, with only the phrasology and percentages varying a bit from poll to poll. But a larger question remains: Has the Republican Party's chance come and gone, and do the slumping polls of the last few years signal an even weaker future?

Let's look at the ups and downs in party identification over the last 12 years. First, consider the period from 1964 through 1970. During these years, according to University of Michigan pollsters, the percentage of Democratic self-identifiers dropped from 51 per cent to 43%, while the percentage of Republicans increased from 24 to 25%. Similarly, Gallup showed the Democrats plummeting from 53% in 1964 to 42% in 1969, while the GOP rose from 25 to 29%. And Louis Harris found the percentage of Democrats dropping from 52% in 1965 to 48% in 1970 as the number of Republicans climbed from 31 to 35%. Shifts like these aren't chicken feed. They make it clear that the Democrats were losing strength in a major way, while independent and GOP self-identification rose.

By 1970, though, the first GOP opportunity had passed with the Nixon administration's failure to consolidate the electorate put up for grabs by the rise of George Wallace and the erosion of old Democratic loyalties. As of late 1970, Gallup reported small Democratic Party identification gains over 1969. And whereas 1968 and early 1970 polling had seen the Republicans chosen as the party best able to handle the country's most important problem, that edge soon crumbled. December, 1971 Gallup polls found 32% picking the Democrats as best able to handle the country's top problem. Only 22% picked the Republicans.

Come 1972, the GOP got another chance as the Democrats tore themselves apart nominating George McGovern. During the late summer and early fall of 1972, the GOP seemed on the verge of a breakthrough. Asked by Gallup which party could best handle what was seen as the country's most important problem, 30% picked the Republicans and just 29% chose the Democrats.

Party identification shifts are not so clear. Gallup found the GOP recovering in 1972 to just about 1969 levels, scoring 28% to the Democrats' 43 per cent. The University of Michigan reported

Terry On Deck

The possible resignation from the Nebraska Legislature of Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff propels speculation into high orbit.

Nichol, who won a contested election over write-in candidate Terry Carpenter in the 48th District contest two years ago, says he "probably will accept" the job as executive director of the Nebraska Association of County Officials which has been offered to him.

Should he resign his legislative seat, he said he would do so after August 26, so that Gov. Jim Exon would appoint a replacement for the remaining two years of Nichol's term. A resignation prior to August 26 would mean that candidates could file petitions seeking election to his unexpired term.

Nichol told the Associated Press that legislation affecting local governments had been his primary concern and that working with the county officials association would allow him to concentrate on his interest area full-time.

Gov. Exon reportedly has said he will consider any number of replacements if Nichol resigns.

One replacement comes immediately to mind — Terry Carpenter, who said upon hearing of the possible vacancy that he would be willing to fill it. At 76, Nebraska's political legend wants to be more active and feels he could be "of some value" to the Legislature if he returned.

That is an understatement if there ever was one.

Carpenter was, and would be again, of immense value to the legislative process and Nebraska state government.

There is not only a vacancy possible in the 48th legislative district. There has existed a leadership void in the Legislature since Carpenter resigned to run for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor two years ago. The Legislature has not been completely leaderless, of course. It would be unfair and inaccurate to suggest that. But Carpenter's absence is felt, even if he was feared by many of his colleagues. And with the resignation of executive board chairman Sen. Eugene Mahoney last month to take the Game and Parks Commission post, one more strong figure has taken himself out of the legislative picture.

In our opinion Terry Carpenter was the people's choice in the contested 48th District election of 1974. Many of his ballots were not counted. He probably remains today the overwhelming choice of people in that district to replace Sen. Nichol should the latter resign.

The state would benefit from Carpenter's return to the Legislature — as unpredictable and changeable as his career has been.

Certainly Gov. Exon will want to consider his sometimes-nemesis Carpenter as a replacement if a vacancy occurs in the 48th District.

It would be an act of statesmanship for Exon to ignore past political feuds with Carpenter and appoint him to the Legislature. We're sure the governor is up to it.

NU Turnover Not Alarming

We're inclined to agree with University of Nebraska Board of Regents Chairman James Moylan that resignations of top NU officials in the past year reflect a healthy situation rather than being a cause for alarm.

Nine officials, including the president and two of three chancellors, have departed within the last twelve months.

Moylan, of Omaha, believes that the departure of most of them for better positions and the fact that NU has attracted top-flight candidates to replace them illustrates the competitiveness and vitality of the university system.

Most of the departing educators and administrators found better opportunities and none of them made lateral moves to other institutions, Moylan noted.

Such upward mobility in the education field is as natural as it is anywhere else and doesn't necessarily indicate that the Nebraska system is in trouble. What it means is that the University of Nebraska, like all other institutions, has served as only one rung on the career ladder of a number of qualified educators. And for those it has lost, it most likely will attract replacements with matching capabilities.

We differ with Moylan, however, in his assertion that NU's ability to draw top talent reflects its competitiveness in the salary area.

Figures supporting and opposing that assertion can be found, depending on your inclination.

It's our belief, based on what we've seen, that NU salaries do not always match the pay offered by many top-flight universities and that Nebraska has managed to draw good staff talent in spite of its pay scale, not because of it.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Staying Home Today?

NEW YORK — Today is Friday the 13th. Oh ... really? "Ah, yes, superstition is more rampant than ever in this country," says America's leading authority on the subject, "but it's no longer a simple matter that can be helped by rabbit's feet and four-leaf clovers. Not these days. Now we have active demonology, which is very dangerous, my dear. And people have fears and apprehensions that go beyond good luck omens."

Claudia deLys, was born in India 81 years ago, and has spent most of her life studying the whys, wherefores and whoduns of superstition; she had donated her research file of 100,000 omens of good and evil to Syracuse University — but she knows them, still, by heart.

"One of the most fuzzy of all superstitions is Friday the 13th," she claims. "More than $300 million is lost to business because people stay at home on these days, and yet even I can't give you a concrete reason why they should be so afraid."

"The best-known theory on why Friday is ill-fated is that Friday is supposed to be the day on which Eve tempted Adam with the fatal apple. Now, honey, do you believe that nonsense?"

"No," I said. "Well, then, let's try another excuse. There is also the story that Friday was named after Frigg (or Frigga), the Norse Goddess of marriage. Later she was confused with the Goddess of Love, Freya, who in turn became identified with Friday."

"Now, when the Norsemen and Germanic tribes became Christians, Freya was supposed to have been banished to the mountains as a witch, and Friday came to be called the 'Witches Sabbath.' For it was believed that on this day each week, 12 devils and the devil met — 13 evil spirits, you see, holding clubby sessions on Friday. Do you go for that?"

"No."

"Okay," says Ms. deLys. "I guarantee that, if you don't believe Friday is inherently bad, you're not going to like the theories on the number, 13. Anyway, here goes: When man first learned to count, he added up his 10 fingers, and counting his feet as two units, he came up with the number 12. Beyond that lay the vague, mysterious unknown, in the form of Number 13. Is that clear?"

"I think so."

"But consider this," the expert went on. "Though 13 is supposed to be a dreaded number, the American dollar bill is simply laden with symbols of thirteenthism. Turn George Washington over on his face, and look at the two seals on the back of the bill. On the left you'll find an incomplete, or truncated pyramid, shown off abruptly at the top of the 13th step. On the right is the American bald eagle, holding in one talon 13 arrows and, in the other, 13 leaves with 13 berries on an olive branch. Over the eagle's head are 13 stars."

Claudia said with a laugh, "I like to tell superstitious people that if they're afraid of thirteens, they'd better avoid taking money. Sometimes this convinces them they're being silly. But not often enough."

After a lifetime of compiling "superstitious nonsense" and turning out such best-sellers as her "Treasure of Superstitions," Claudia deLys considers all omens and gestures involving good and bad luck to be "absurd."

But she can see that "it fills a need in society. This is an age of increasing fear and uncertainty (as every age, actually, has seemed to the people who lived in it) and many people spend a great deal of money seeking peace of mind through psychiatry or courses that promise self-help."

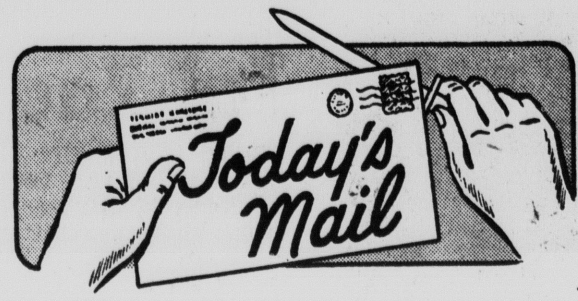

"One thing can be said for the superstitious person: He doesn't need to spend much money. He can buy a good luck charm, such as a rabbit's foot (Americans spend $130 million a year on such superstitious objects), and he gets by cheap. As long as someone believes that an omen is really lucky, he gains confidence from his 'crutch.' Good luck charms are 'the poor man's tranquilizers.'"

Whatever deLys has no sympathy for Americans who will be staying home today, afraid to venture out on Friday the 13th.

"Why should I sympathize with them?" she leers. "You're working, I'm working. They get a long weekend ..."

Two Plans

My thanks for printing the article, "Hamilton Postulates Growth Conspiracy."

I am concerned that Plan 3B is being ignored. Virtually all of the citizens at "Goals and Policies" meetings thought 3B contained too many street widenings (specifically 84th Street). Almost half of the group thought 3B completely unacceptable in that it contained proposals to widen many streets which citizens did not want widened. A far too radical plan, 3B, is now being ignored by the Planning Commission for an even more radical plan — 6A. It would widen even more streets than Plan 3B. It is, I think, impossible to plan fully for the contingencies envisaged by Plan 3B using Plan 6A.

I would think that a truly democratic Planning Commission would want to use the plan (or plans) selected by citizens in the "Goals and Policies" meetings and by elected county and city officials at their meetings. It is my experience that bureaucracies which plan without attending to citizen input also act without attending to it.

If any body is to be abolished, it should not be the Goals and Policies Committee. Without being overly hasty in our judgment, we should perhaps reconsider the existence, structure and functions of the Planning Commission and Technical Committee.

The Whole Iceberg

The Star staff reporters, Nancy Hicks and Gordon Winters, are to be commended for their investigative reporting efforts which resulted in the recent disclosures concerning the outside activities of John Longsdorf, executive director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District.

As residents of the South Salt Creek Community, we have lodged numerous complaints about the actions of Mr. Longsdorf. His involvement in a dummy corporation set up to allow him to accept contracts around the state is merely the latest in a long list of questionable activities. It is the investigative efforts of these reporters which have shown the public the tip of the iceberg.

At this point in time, it seems evident that the members of the RTSD Board are not aware of the tangled relationships and special interests which make up the bulk of that iceberg. It will be through continued investigative efforts that those who stand to gain from this "leak" of information will be discovered.

The discontent of a community association such as ours was not enough to spark requests for Mr. Longsdorf's resignation. It would be of interest to know where the power lies, and who might benefit from such a disclosure.

Boycott On Meat

The time has come for the American working man to use the most effective instrument in the lowering of prices that he has — boycott. Refusing to buy until the price lowers.

The most glaring place to act in meats. No way can a cattle industry stand speculative land-buying of ranch land that formerly sold for $15 and $20 an acre under speculators, now selling at $250 an acre. The cow hasn't been found that will carry the interest and principal on such transactions.

Working people would be doing the rancher a favor to boycott red meat until the price of land in the ranch area becomes less speculative.

Call For Resignation

The article in the August 6 Star concerning the executive director of Lincoln's RTSD board implies that he has been "moonlighting" with other RTSD boards for pay and that this has shocked his fellow board members. I wonder why, since he has been less than honest with our neighborhood organization. Members of the South Salt Creek Community Organization who attended two recent public hearings with the RTSD board are familiar with his contradictory statements and broken promises. He has managed to create an atmosphere of distrust at these hearings even over some objection from another board member.

I believe he should resign to at least restore credibility to the RTSD board itself.

Fire Department Staff

Perhaps this letter should not be written, since we are no longer residents. However, at the urging of my husband, I feel obligated for the sake of the misinformed people of Lincoln.

We had been vacationing in Lincoln and were shocked to hear on the news about the predicament the fire department will soon be in, if they cut down the force. Has there been any mention of the continual injuries to fire-fighters, and is it realized that this is the most dangerous occupation in our country?

We know, as my husband is a fire-fighter here in Idaho, so we do have an interest, especially since Lincoln was our home at one time.

Lincoln has grown in size, and to sell the people short on such an important service is criminal. Sooner or later some fireman will be severely injured as a result of the department's being under-staffed.

Idaho was advised by "experts" that the dam that burst was safe — no problems. Don't let so-called experts tell you to cut expenses with poor fire service. Let the Lincoln people use common sense, not the expert advice which sometimes looks good on paper but is seldom adequate.

But a larger question remains: Has the Republican Party's chance come and gone, and do the slumping polls of the last few years signal an even weaker future?

During these years, according to University of Michigan pollsters, the percentage of Democratic self-identifiers dropped from 51 per cent to 43%, while the percentage of Republicans increased from 24 to 25%. Asked by Gallup which party could best handle what was seen as the country's most important problem, 39% picked the Republicans and just 29% chose the Democrats.

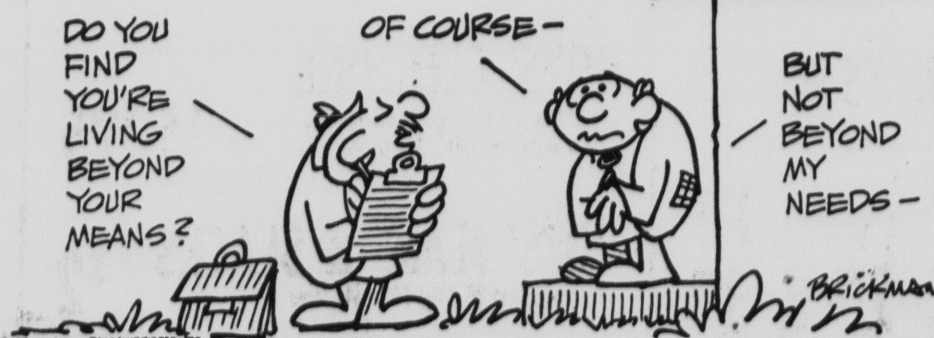

Party identification shifts are not so clear. Gallup found the GOP recovering in 1972 to just about 1969 levels, scoring 28% to the Democrats' 43 per cent. The University of Michigan reported that November, 1972 Democratic identifiers were down to 40%, while the GOP, at 23%, held about steady. But a more detailed analysis came from Philadelphia opinion sampler Albert Sindinger, who polled on a weekly basis. After the McGovern-Eagleton debacle he charted a major late summer movement, away from the Democrats and toward the GOP, that was not apparent in the much less frequent Gallup and Harris polls. By September and early October, he reported the Democrats in the 33 to 36% range, with the GOP up as high as 29%. According to Sindinger, the hoped-for GOP breakthrough collapsed in mid-to-late October. That is when serious Watergate revelations began to receive heavy attention in the media.

Since then, it has all been downhill for the GOP. If Watergate hurt the party in the 1972 elections, subsequent damage has been a lot more severe. Moreover, the Republican poll slide has continued, not reversed, under Gerald Ford. The Democrats have gained ground.

Now, with only a record low one-fifth of Americans calling themselves Republicans, and fewer than that seeing the GOP as best able to handle America's most important problems, it's questionable whether the Republicans retain enough strength to expect another revitalization opportunity.

Panel Refuses To Reduce Sentence

By United Press International
The Nebraska Pardon Board Thursday refused to further reduce the sentence of a man convicted of shooting a state patrolman from North Platte 20 years ago so he could be considered for parole before July 1978.

James Leroy Fish, 49, originally faced a life sentence for the death of Vernon Rolfs. In 1974, the Pardon Board reduced that to a term of 45-64 years, making him eligible for parole consideration in July 1978.

Fish asked that his sentence be further reduced so he could be considered for parole before then.

On a motion by Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, the vote was unanimous to deny further commutation. The other two board members are Gov. J. James Exon and Secretary of State Allen Beermann.

The shooting took place when Rolfs stopped Fish for a minor traffic violation. It touched off a manhunt that lasted 12 hours and involved 600 persons and 14 airplanes.

Fish, an itinerant worker, was found in a fruit cellar by a woman and she called authorities. He was later arrested at a nearby abandoned packing plant. Exon voted against commutation two years ago, even though he said he personally felt Fish "is no threat to society."

The board granted a full pardon from two felony breaking and entering convictions to Phillip Hogan of Lincoln. The convictions dated back to 1968 in York and Hamilton Counties.

Hogan said since he was released, he has worked as a guard at the State Prison, for the Ashland and Weston Police Departments and in private security firms in Nebraska and California. He said he had to leave the Ashland and Weston forces because of provisions which said as an ex-felon he could not carry a weapon.

He also worked on the security force at Pershing Municipal Auditorium in Lincoln.

Hogan said he wanted to work in law enforcement. He said because of his own background he felt he could help others.

"I am really interested in law enforcement," he told the board, adding he had four opportunities for law enforcement work in Nebraska and two others in California.

Under full pardon provisions, legal barriers to carrying a firearm can be cleared away.

Seward Man Pleads Guilty To Sex Charge

A 21-year-old Seward man changed his plea from innocent to guilty Thursday in Lancaster County District Court in connection with a sexual assault charge.

District Judge Dale Fahrbruch accepted the change in plea of Michael J. Atkinson and found him guilty of first degree sexual assault. Atkinson is accused of assaulting a woman on Nov. 12, 1975.

Judge Fahrbruch delayed further proceedings pending a pre-sentence investigation.

July Burglaries Up, As Usual

During July, burglars traditionally take to the streets and into other peoples' homes more often than other months of the year.

July proved to be no exception in Lincoln. Figures compiled by the Lincoln Police Department show that there were 73 residential and 49 nonresidential burglaries during the month.

The robbers took everything from cold cash and citizens band radio equipment to clothing, cars and tool boxes.

In dollars and cents, police said $30,322 worth of property was stolen from homes and apartments, while another $16,087 worth of merchandise was taken from stores and businesses.

While there were more burglaries last month than during June, police officers point out there were fewer burglaries last month compared to July 1975. One year ago, there were 31 more burglaries.

Police hope that downward trend in burglaries is a direct result of the department's burglary prevention program started this year. Additionally, four police officers are working in four neighborhoods on a personal basis and are giving homeowners and businessmen burglary prevention tips.

During July, most burglaries occurred Monday through Thursday. Many thieves enter homes or stores through unlocked windows or doors.

In other cases, the robbers pry open windows, cut the screen or pick the lock.

Items taken last month include currency, jewelry, clothing, office equipment, cars, televisions, radios, cameras, firearms, household goods and liquor.

Panel Refuses To Reduce Sentence

By United Press International
The Nebraska Pardon Board Thursday refused to further reduce the sentence of a man convicted of shooting a state patrolman from North Platte 20 years ago so he could be considered for parole before July 1978.

James Leroy Fish, 49, originally faced a life sentence for the death of Vernon Rolfs. In 1974, the Pardon Board reduced that to a term of 45-64 years, making him eligible for parole before then.

Fish asked that his sentence be further reduced so he could be considered for parole before then.

On a motion by Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, the vote was unanimous to deny further commutation. The other two board members are Gov. J. James Exon and Secretary of State Allen Beermann.

The shooting took place when Rolfs stopped Fish for a minor traffic violation. It touched off a manhunt that lasted 12 hours and involved 600 persons and 14 airplanes.

Fish, an itinerant worker, was found in a fruit cellar by a woman and she called authorities. He was later arrested at a nearby abandoned packing plant. Exon voted against commutation two years ago, even though he said he personally felt Fish "is no threat to society."

The board granted a full pardon from two felony breaking and entering convictions to Phillip Hogan of Lincoln. The convictions dated back to 1968 in York and Hamilton Counties.

Hogan said since he was released, he has worked as a guard at the State Prison, for the Ashland and Weston Police Departments and in private security firms in Nebraska and California. He said he had to leave the Ashland and Weston forces because of provisions which said an ex-felon he could not carry a weapon.

He also worked on the security force at Pershing Municipal Auditorium in Lincoln.

Hogan said he wanted to work in law enforcement. He said because of his own background he felt he could help others.

"I am really interested in law enforcement," he told the board, adding he had four opportunities for law enforcement work in Nebraska and two others in California.

Under full pardon provisions, legal barriers to carrying a firearm can be cleared away.

Seward Man Pleads Guilty To Sex Charge

A 21-year-old Seward man changed his plea from innocent to guilty Thursday in Lancaster County District Court in connection with a sexual assault charge.

District Judge Dale Fahrbruch accepted the change in plea of Michael J. Atkinson and found him guilty of first degree sexual assault. Atkinson is accused of assaulting a woman on Nov. 12, 1975.

Judge Fahrbruch delayed further proceedings pending a pre-sentence investigation.

July Burglaries Up, As Usual

During July, burglars traditionally take to the streets and into other peoples' homes more often than other months of the year.

Figures compiled by the Lincoln Police Department show that there were 73 residential and 49 nonresidential burglaries during the month.

The robbers took everything from cold cash and citizens band radio equipment to clothing, cars and tool boxes.

In dollars and cents, police said $30,322 worth of property was stolen from homes and apartments, while another $16,087 worth of merchandise was taken from stores and businesses.

While there were more burglaries last month than during June, police officers point out there were fewer burglaries last month compared to July 1975. One year ago, there were 31 more burglaries.

Police hope that downward trend in burglaries is a direct result of the department's burglary prevention program started this year. Additionally, four police officers are working in four neighborhoods on a personal basis and are giving homeowners and businessmen burglary prevention tips.

During July, most burglaries occurred Monday through Thursday. Many thieves enter homes or stores through unlocked windows or doors.

In other cases, the robbers pry open windows, cut the screen or pick the lock.

Items taken last month include currency, jewelry, clothing, office equipment, cars, televisions, radios, cameras, firearms, household goods and liquor.

Legislators Vow To Hold Down State Spending

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Pledging to seek legislative cooperation with the executive branch, the chairmen of two potent Unicameral committees Thursday declared they are willing to hold 1977-78 state spending at exactly the same amount allowed in the current fiscal year.

"I for one am willing to try," proclaimed Aveca Sen. Calvin F. Carsten, Revenue Committee chairman. "I think that we as a Legislature have to give that a whirl once."

But "believe you me, we're going to get flak galore" if state senators try to "hold the line" on spending. Yet "we've got to try," Carsten said.

Appropriations Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said, "I would vote for totally no increases." But the senator added he's "opposed to across-the-board increases or decreases" as a rule. "I would be more selective" in arriving at a continuation total, by paring or adding dollars according to legislative priorities.

The chairmen made the comments at a news conference following the State Equalization Board meeting, where record high tax rates were adopted because of revenue shortfalls.

Carsten and Marvel promised complete "support and willingness to cooperate" with Gov. J. James Exon and his administration to forestall future tax increases.

The tax session Thursday was a result of errors in revenue estimates of about $19 million for 1975-76 and another $40 million for 1976-77, the senators said.

Tax rates the first eight months of this year would have produced about $48 million less than the $460.7 million appropriations fixed through June.

"It would be quite easy to blame the tax commissioner" for errors in the estimates "or to blame those legislators who voted for veto overrides," the pair said in a joint statement.

However, because previous estimates were accurate, they said the evaluation system "has failed" somewhere. Thus, they met with Exon, administration officials, Equalization Board members and Unicameral committee staffs to discuss the problem.

Exon said after the Equalization Board meeting that "We have an irresponsible spending Legislature and it is because of them that we are here today" to raise tax rates. The governor later complimented Marvel's and Carsten's leadership, saying he hopes the Unicameral will join them.

Had a special session been called now, "I would've voted to cut the $11 million (in vetoes) the Legislature overrode and against the tax increase," Marvel said.

Carsten too said legislators "use their own majority judgment as to what the needs of the state are" as well as constituents' desires in setting spending levels.

"The real problem" is the administration's figures which the Unicameral used as a basis for the tax structure, Carsten said. "Our real concern is to avoid this problem again."

Although he didn't condone building up multi-million dollar surpluses, Carsten advocated a high enough overlevy "to satisfy any error that might come up in projections."

He called that "purely a business approach," even if it means higher tax rates as a result.

If the Legislature continues to peg appropriations to increasing cost-of-living factors, Marvel said, that will only fuel inflation.

Panel Wants Freeways Included In Road Plan

Lancaster County's major road plan should include the south and east bypass corridors, an advisory committee on transportation said Thursday.

The technical committee agreed that the road plan should take into account the possibility that two freeways encircling Lincoln might be built.

The committee, composed of city, county and state transportation bureaucrats, didn't say that the east and south bypasses should or should not be built.

However, the group said the east bypass corridor, running north and south between 84th and 98th St., and the south bypass corridor, running east and west — north of Yankee Hill Rd., should be noted in the road plan.

The technical committee adopted the county road plan, with the addition of the two highway corridors. That plan is similar to one submitted by County Engineer Marv Nuernberger last year.

Committee members pointed out that a number of east Lincoln homeowners want to remove the heavy truck traffic from 84th St. Residents don't want that arterial to become the east side bypass because of the number of homes built along 84th.

DeCamp Calls For Session To Assert Budget Control

Neligh State Sen. John DeCamp said Thursday a special session of the Legislature should be called immediately.

The financial crisis that caused higher tax rates "highlights major weaknesses in the Nebraska Unicameral," DeCamp said in a prepared statement.

"If handled improperly, (that) sets the state on a course increased government, increased spending and future legislative impotence."

DeCamp proposed "major cuts" in agency budgets and total "elimination" of some programs, departments and agencies, as well as a legislative oversight panel during interim sessions.

The billion-dollar state government business "should be run like a business. This is not being done," DeCamp said.

He said Revenue Department tax income predictions "were blatantly wrong." Another mistake was legislative spending "up to the limit of the projections" rather than based on specific needs.

"The final and most serious mistake," DeCamp charged, "is that the Legislature has never devised a system for year-round monitoring and control over government," particularly regarding problems arising when senators aren't in session.

A partisan organization could supply party leaders to resolve crises without convening the entire body, he said. Or senators could meet one day a month then to examine problems and "make mid-course corrections as required."

Legislative inaction to retain current tax rates means senators can create problems but have neither ability nor leadership to take corrective initiatives, DeCamp said. Allowing the new rates to go into effect is inflationary, he added.

"The Legislature is essentially saying to the governor, 'You go ahead and run the state and handle everything, because we really are as irresponsible and disorganized as you have been saying. Once out of session, we are completely ineffective.'"

DeCamp cited legislative inaction now as "the height of irresponsibility." The Associated Press reported he sent petitions to lawmakers, asking if they want a special session.

Board Urges 'Fiscal Restraint'

The tax-setting State Board of Equalization, while imposing record levels Thursday, unanimously adopted a resolution urging close-to-the-bone spending and budgeting.

Board member Ray A. C. Johnson, the state auditor, offered the resolution which urges all state agencies to "take all steps possible to reduce expenditures" during the fiscal year that ends

June 30. The purpose is to allow unspent appropriations to lapse into the next fiscal year.

Secondly, the resolution urges the 1977 Legislature "to exhibit fiscal restraint" in setting appropriations, to prevent any need for further tax increases, should revenue projections not hold up because of changes in the economy.

Challenger Blames Crisis On Incumbent

Legislative candidate Erwin Matulka of Valparaiso Thursday said Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, his opponent, contributed to the necessity of increasing state tax rates.

"This incumbent, like too many others, failed to heed Governor Exon's warnings to control spending and keep taxes down," Matulka said.

"Schmit spent too much time favoring 'fat cat' special interest groups who are large contributors to his campaign and not enough on the interests of the people of his district."

Schmit and Matulka are opponents in the 23rd District.

County Wants 5% Ceiling On Pay Hikes

Lancaster County commissioners have warned the City Council they will not support raises of more than 5% for employees in departments funded by both governments.

Commissioners voted 2 to 1 Thursday to urge the city not to grant cost-of-living increases above the 5% level and to guarantee that the county will not fund salary costs above what is granted to county employees on any joint budget.

Commissioner Bob Colin voted against the motion because he felt that commissioners should set county wage increases now rather than wait to see what the city grants.

"It's time for a decision from the city to cooperate with the county... I'm not going to sit here and wait for the city to make up its mind," he said.

Commissioners have earmarked money in the new budget for up to a 5% cost-of-living increase for county employees but will make no final decision on salary hikes until September.

Voters To Decide On Whether To Put Five On County Board

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County voters will have a chance to increase the size of the County Board from three to five commissioners during the November elections.

Petitions asking that the question be put on the November ballot will be given to the county election commissioner Friday morning, said County Assessor Fritz Meyer.

What began as half joking conversation in the assessor's office in early July evidently mushroomed into a real project to get the County Board enlarged.

Meyer, who first introduced the idea and who Thursday announced that enough signatures have been collected, said more details would be given Friday.

The interest was strong, said Meyer, adding the needed 300 signatures were gathered in a week.

Should the measure pass in November, the county will have to be redivided into five commissioner districts and the election of the two new commissioners would take place next year, according to state law.

Without a ballot vote, the County Board enlargement would wait until the county has a population of 300,000.

Current county commissioners contracted were not surprised that the petitions had been gathered but said they did not feel two more commissioners would solve county government problems.

"The move was made out of political motivation rather than to improve the structure of government in Lancaster County," said Commissioner Jan Ganger.

Meyer and some of the other county elected department heads have been at odds with the board for several years as commissioners began to play a more aggressive role in county government.

The current commissioners, particularly Mrs. Ganger and Chairman Bruce Hamilton, have supported expansion of human service programs sometimes at the expense of support for traditional brick and asphalt programs and such statutory county offices as assessor, clerk and treasurer.

County Wants 5% Ceiling On Pay Hikes

Lancaster County commissioners have warned the City Council they will not support raises of more than 5% for employees in departments funded by both governments.

Commissioners voted 2 to 1 Thursday to urge the city not to grant cost-of-living increases above the 5% level and to guarantee that the county will not fund salary costs above what is granted to county employees on any joint budget.

Commissioner Bob Colin voted against the motion because he felt that commissioners should set county wage increases now rather than wait to see what the city grants.

"It's time for a decision from the city to cooperate with the county... I'm not going to sit here and wait for the city to make up its mind," he said.

Commissioners have earmarked money in the new budget for up to a 5% cost-of-living increase for county employees but will make no final decision on salary hikes until September.

Voters To Decide On Whether To Put Five On County Board

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County voters will have a chance to increase the size of the County Board from three to five commissioners during the November elections.

Petitions asking that the question be put on the November ballot will be given to the county election commissioner Friday morning, said County Assessor Fritz Meyer.

What began as half joking conversation in the assessors' office in early July evidently mushroomed into a real project to get the County Board enlarged.

Meyer, who first introduced the idea and who Thursday announced that enough signatures have been collected, said more details would be given Friday.

The interest was strong, said Meyer, adding the needed 200 signatures were gathered in a week.

Should the measure pass in November, the county will have to be redivided into five commissioner districts and the election of the two new commissioners would take place next year, according to state law.

Without a ballot vote, the County Board enlargement would wait until the county has a population of 200,000.

Current county commissioners contracted were not surprised that the petitions had been gathered but said they did not feel two more commissioners would solve county government problems.

"The move was made out of political motivation rather than to improve the structure of government in Lancaster County," said Commissioner Jan Gauger.

Meyer and some of the other county elected department heads have been at odds with the board for several years as commissioners began to play a more aggressive role in county government.

The current commissioners, particularly Mrs. Gauger and Chairman Bruce Hamilton, have supported expansion of human service programs sometimes at the expense of support for traditional brick and asphalt programs and such statutory county offices as assessor, clerk and treasurer.

100 Years Old
Willie's
As Peppy
As Ever

Gering (AP) — The good folks of Drip Rock, Ky., probably don't know it, but there was cause for celebration Wednesday in their tiny mountain community.

Old Willie Blanton hails from Drip Rock and Wednesday he celebrated his 100th birthday.

After a lifetime as a cowboy, farmer, politician and "liberal thinker," William R. Blanton says he feels "no different" than in past years except he doesn't "hear as good."

Blanton lives in a Gering nursing home now and he says he owes his longevity to "not worryin', gettin' rest and eatin' right." He never drank liquor, he claims, but admits to being a sharp billiard player.

He only completed the third grade but studied the Bible and dictionary and "read a lot" for his education.

"I've got a lot of stories I could tell you if your newspaper needs some peppin' up sometime," he told a newsman. And tell he did.

Willie, as Blanton says he was tagged as a boy, came to Nebraska at the age of 12 to become a cowboy. He spent the next nine years living in the Broken Bow and North Platte areas working for farmers. He was once a chore boy for Buffalo Bill Cody's wife at Scout's Rest Ranch near North Platte, he says.

He journeyed back to Kentucky in the late 1890s and eventually met and married young Mary Atkins at Charleston, Ill.

Willie brought his teen-age bride and her mother to Nebraska in a covered wagon in the early 1900s and they homesteaded three miles north of Harrisburg in Banner County.

The Blantons reared 11 children on the grain and livestock farm until Mary died in 1925.

Willie then left the farm and moved to Denver, where he says he sold subscriptions for the Denver Post and was baptised into Denver Democratic politics.

"I always fought for the working man. The union people were my people," he says. His family says Willie was instrumental in the Colorado Legislature's passage of the state's first old age pension law and he campaigned hard for Colorado Gov. Lee Knous. Rep. John Carroll and Denver Mayor Quigg Newton more than 30 years ago.

Blanton later became a pastor and archbishop in the Liberal Church of Denver where he found his political and religious beliefs to be in harmony.

POSTCARD

Napa Valley — In the warm, winery valley, the grapes are filling with delicious juices that eventually will be served with spaghetti by candlelight.

"Wine makes old wives wenchies," wrote John Clarke in the year 1639. A good year for wine. Also good for wenchies.

On a back street up here there's a museum dedicated to Robert Louis Stevenson. For it was this country he wrote about in "Silverado Squatters." Some of his letters are on display.

He was a tireless correspondent. I always wonder how he did it.

A session of writing on the typewriter takes all the steam I have. There's not a whistle puff left for correspondence. Thus our phone bill is fearful.

Stevenson wrote in longhand. He wrote his books with a pen, and he wrote letters to people all over the world. When they answered him, he was seized with more writing fever.

"I think now that my life will run quieter and quieter," he wrote in one letter.

But it did not. He seized more paper, dipped pen in ink and torrents of words fell on the spattered pages.

When he was writing a book, he made all his family sit down in the evening and listen while he read it aloud.

That is surely genius. I can't get my family to listen to me play the guitar. As for reading anything I write — I think I would have to hold them at pistol point to get that done.

Not so with the wonderful family Stevenson. They listened carefully. They commented. They worked on the plot.

Robert Louis noted everything. Next morning he dashed over what he'd done before. Put in new words. New characters. Added little touches of quotes. And decorated his sentences with periods and commas.

He became very successful. Finally he went down to Samoa. Suddenly floods of mail was coming out of Apia.

All over the world people said: "You'll never guess who I got a letter from. And from Samoa, of all places."

Correspondences are like small clothes before the invention of suspenders: it is impossible to keep them up.

Chap name of Sydney Smith wrote that in a letter on January 31, 1841. Wrote it to Mrs. Crowe. I don't know who either of them was. But I suspect Sydney was troubled with the morning mail. Even as you and I.

"Aunt Harriet wonders if it would be too much trouble for you to . . ."

"Dear Sir: I am writing an essay on columnists and must have it in by day after tomorrow . . ."

"Perhaps you have overlooked this account in the amount of . . ."

Genius is keeping your mail up to date. Talent is avoiding it. Robert Louis was fired up by correspondence like this. My reaction is to put some newspapers over it and open a cold bottle of beer.

Stevenson had chest trouble. He said what helped most was brandy. He drank a lot of it. California brandy. Made in this wonderful land of grapes. The brandy that launched a thousand letters.

Alas, the name of the brand is not recorded.

Elderly Warned To Avoid Ripoffs

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Senior citizens were encouraged Thursday to make sure they know what they're getting into before they become the second necessary component for a ripoff scheme.

Steven Speicher, attorney with the Lincoln Legal Aid Society, said that it takes two parties for a successful ripoff scheme — the person "ripping and someone being ripped."

"He stressed taking one's time before entering into an agreement or contract with someone who has spent time making sure the mirror says he or she looks honest."

"If the sales person can't wait for you to get more information before making a decision, then the chances are that person won't be around if there are any problems with the product or service," Speicher said.

He urged them to ask for the names, addresses and phone numbers of at least three satisfied customers and if the sales person can't come up with any, chances are there are none.

Speicher also emphasized that consumers find out where the sales person can be contacted because "there's not a whole lot that can be done for you unless you know where you can find that person."

Education Described As More Than Basics

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

The primary role of the schools is to give children the necessary resources to surmount the limitations of a local community.

That's the assessment of Dr. Ralph Tyler, a nationally known education consultant, who addressed about 400 Nebraska school administrators during their annual convention in Lincoln Thursday.

Speaking on the basics in education, Tyler said that "there's more to it than reading, writing and arithmetic." Teachers and school officials must realize they have to "widen the narrow horizons of education to cope with the changing environment outside the classroom," he said.

Students spend only 1,100 hours a year in the classroom, according to Tyler, but about 1,500 hours in front of the television, a medium which wasn't "designed to inform them of what's happening with their world."

People are quick to blame television for increases in crime and violence, but they "seem to blame the schools for every other shortcoming with their youth," he added.

"When the Russians sent their Sputnik into outer space, the schools were blamed because we didn't have enough technology in this country to match that," Tyler said.

Talk about the "basics increases with a decrease in

Immunization Planning Is At Standstill Locally

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department has received several inquiries from local businesses and industries regarding employee immunization programs for swine influenza.

But detailed plans for immunization currently are at a standstill, pending notification of when the vaccine will be available, said Dr. E. D. Lyman, director.

"Target groups for the immunization programs are industry and private physicians," Lyman said. The vaccine also will be distributed "through the institutions, such as universities, colleges, jails, prisons and regional centers."

"The largest target group is the schools," he said, "but we may have to let that go for the moment," because a vaccine for "those under 25 years hasn't been developed to create an immune response to the level desired."

According to Lyman, the vaccine for those over 25 years has

All Suspected Iowa Candy Bars Collected From Local Stores

One hundred and thirty-seven cases of "Twin Bing" candy bars, ordered seized by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), had all been collected by late Thursday afternoon, according to Roger Sandman, deputy director of the State Department of Agriculture.

The candy bars, manufactured by the Palmer Candy Co. of Sioux City, Iowa, and distributed in Nebraska may have been Reading fine print is also very important, according to Speicher, who noted that many pressure sales people will try to tell a prospective customer that the fine print on the back of a contract doesn't mean anything.

The fact is the fine print does mean something and can make a significant difference in what one may be told and the actual meaning of the agreement.

Pride has no place in making sure one understands the meaning of a contract which may cost him considerable, Speicher said, stressing that before signing a contract a consumer should take the contract home and look it over when the salesperson isn't around.

In other discussion, the Lincoln Senior Citizens Council expressed concern that many senior citizens are not aware that there is no longer any income restriction on reduced bus fares.

Many people don't utilize the cards which allow all persons over 65 years of age and those over 62 who are receiving retirement benefits to ride the bus for 10¢ instead of the usual 30¢ fare or bus token, they said.

The council members noted that until about a year ago there was an income limitation and apparently some people are reluctant to take advantage of the reduced fare for that reason.

affluence," he said, adding, "Then everybody tells the schools how badly they're doing."

Tyler urged educators to look at the basics as they fit into the whole pattern of the students' environment, and start making "dreams into realities."

State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell aired a "laundry list of needs" identified as crucial by the group during their meeting last year.

In the highly controversial area of state aid to education, she told the group that the State Department of Education would probably be seeking an emergency appropriation of $2.2 million to meet the requirements of the department.

She also promised that the department would do everything possible to eliminate paperwork for the local districts and would seek more interagency cooperation to make programs work for the state.

She noted continued progress in re-codification of the statutes which affect education as well as an alternative to teacher certification.

Other areas of concern for the state will be in Title IX programs (sex discrimination), student rights (as outlined in LB503) and bilingual education.

"We must do everything possible to eliminate the conceived barriers that keep a student from the education he deserves," she said. "Above all, we must make the student our primary concern."

The purpose for the screening is to make sure "the individual understands what he is getting and what the exact risks are," Lyman said. "The risks are as small as anything you can run across, but you have to point them out."

The screening procedure also will help clinic personnel determine which persons have allergies which make them unsuitable for immunization.

In addition, Lyman said, those receiving the swine flu shots will have to sign a standardized consent form designed by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Eastridge Chosen For Study

Eastridge Elementary School in Lincoln has been selected as one of 10 demonstration schools in the country for a Schoolhouse Energy Saving Project.

Announcement of the selection of the facility at 6245 L St. was made Friday by the American Association of School Administrators, sponsors of the project.

According to Rudy Bauer, director of operations and maintenance for the Lincoln Public Schools, the project will involve a computer study of energy practices and recommendations for better conservation will be made, with some rehabilitation of the building possible.

Initial studies indicated that Eastridge suffers no heat loss, but does have some loss of electrical power, a problem which will be studied in the project. Six Lincoln schools were studied for inclusion in the demonstration and "they (the sponsors) were very impressed with all the buildings," Bauer said.

Development of architectural and engineering designs for rehabilitating the 10 buildings will be a part of the project, which received a $170,000 grant from the Federal Energy Administration, and is the first phase of a multi-phase program.

Selection of the schools for the demonstration was made by studying the type of structure, predictable consistent usage patterns after modification, currently available energy consumption data and expected energy savings.

Bauer said the results will enable the school system to build more conservative structures and to "go over existing buildings with a fine tooth comb."

The schools selected represent a cross-section of building types existing in various regions of the country. They range from a rural school in Kentucky to a modern "pod" school in Rhode Island, and are found in such varied environments as a Washington desert, a Midwestern city and a Pennsylvania suburb.

Other schools are in Warwick, R.I.; Levittown, Pa.; Hindman, Ky.; Columbus, Ohio; Lubbock, Tex.; Sioux Falls, S.D.; and Kennewick, Wash.

Mourners Gather For Third Day

Stratton (AP) — For the third straight day, residents of this tiny community gathered Thursday to mourn for victims of a church bus-freight train crash which claimed nine lives and injured eight others.

The bus was driven by Thomas B. Nerren, 44, pastor of the Church of Christ here. He and his wife were making the rounds to pick up children for Sunday school when the accident occurred on a crossing at the south edge of town.

Seven of the nine who died were children. Funeral services for all but Nerren, his wife, and one of their two sons, Thomas D., 8, were held Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Nerrens other child, 3-year-old William, was injured, but has now been released from a Denver hospital and will live with Mrs. Nerren's relatives in Virginia.

The Nerrens' bodies have been transported to Abingdon, Va., for burial Friday.

The green frame church here, once a home, was filled Thursday morning as memorial services for the Nerrens were held.

Duane Eagle of the York Community College served as the speaker for the service, with Pastors Billy Joe Mixe of Culbertson and Don Hampton of McCook assisting.

Pastors Mixe and Hampton presided over the funerals of four other victims Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Scarrow, who lost three children in the crash, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Minary, who lost two daughters, attended the services for the Nerrens.

Five of the eight children injured in the crash remain in the hospital. All are doing well.

Army Contract Told

Washington (UPI) — Chamberlain Manufacturing Co. of Waterloo, Iowa, has received a $1,068,000 contract from Department of the Army, it was announced. The contract, the fourth from the Army this year, calls for Chamberlain to design and produce two types of field artillery projectiles. The company is expected to produce 450 of each type.

Meter Read By Remote Control

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Ashland — Meter readers in Ashland are proving that it is easier to let your fingers do the walking.

Installation of Darco Management Systems' revolutionary remote utility meter reading system is 98% complete and "exceeding expectations for accuracy," Darco vice president Frank Ashford said.

Basically, the system uses a magnet to register meter movement, which is linked to a transponder that separately stores gas, electric and water use data.

The transponder is linked to a central console by existing telephone lines with each customer assigned a special code. Upon demand, the central console gathers individual customer data and prints it out for billing.

"We have run 6,000 readings and 1,000 manual verifications with absolutely excellent correlation to actual meter readings," Ashford said.

Preliminary testing involving manual meter reading in conjunction with the Darco system is well underway, Ashford said, and utility metering will be totally automatic in Ashland by Oct. 1.

The Lincoln Telephone Co., Omaha Public Power District and Peoples Natural Gas are all cooperating with Darco in the first community wide use of such a system in the United States.

Ashland was chosen for its size, variety of housing conditions and relatively high rate of customer turnover caused by its function as a bedroom community for Omaha and Lincoln, Ashford said.

One of the advantages to the system is immediate and easy meter reading for customers wishing to close out utility accounts.

Utilities will benefit by a reduction of billing costs, and customers will no longer have to worry about criminals posing as meter readers to gain entrance to a home, Ashford said.

Insurance rates for utility workers, who are often injured in falls or other accidents, will also be lowered, he said.

"It may sound funny, but utilities have told me that many single women and other people have big dogs for protection," Ashford said. "And dog bites have become a big problem."

Other automatic meter reading systems are on the market, Ashford said, but Darco offers the advantage of adaptability existing metering systems. In addition, the customer has the security of being able to verify the remote reading by looking at the digits on his meter.

Although original plans called for installation of the transponder at 800 homes, Ashford said the Ashland utilities decided to include businesses and trailer courts, raising the number to about 1,100.

The $86 per installation cost will be split three ways between the utilities, he said, and customers should be unaffected due to savings to the utilities from the system.

Negotiations are underway in Omaha, which is Darco's home city, to begin some installation there, Ashford said, and utilities from across the nation have expressed interest in the system.

Utilities have been reluctant to invest in automatic systems in the past, Ashford said, because the federal government has indicated separate rate structures may be mandatory for peak and non-peak utility demand in the future.

But the Darco system can be programmed to record utility use separately for different time periods and would adapt easily to so-called load management, Ashford said.

The system can also be set to shut down utility users like air conditioners for short intervals, which customers would not notice, to lower peak loads, he said.

Large municipalities would also have the ability to pinpoint power outages immediately by using the system, which will function for 17 hours on battery power.

Eventually, Darco hopes to market the system to telephone companies, which will offer the service and be responsible for maintenance.

Six Deaths Raise Nebraska Traffic Toll

By The Associated Press

Nebraska's 1976 traffic fatality toll rose by six Thursday to 229, compared with 209 a year ago.

Two persons were killed and another seriously injured Thursday evening in the collision of two pickups at the intersection of Hwy. 10 and 40 1/4 miles north of Kearney.

Buffalo County authorities were withholding identification of the victims pending notification of relatives.

Thomas P. Quinn, 27, of Glen Haven, Colo., was killed and two others were injured early Thursday when a semi-truck Quinn was riding in struck the rear of a gasoline transport on Interstate 80 about five miles east of Ogallala.

The semi-truck driver, Lavern A. Tjaiten, 30, of Acron, Colo., and another passenger, Kathy Quinn, 19, of Winfield, Ill., received minor injuries.

The gas transport was driven by Richard J. Rohrbouck, 45, of Gering, who jumped to safety, officers said.

Killed in a crash on U.S. 20 about 4.5 miles west of South Sioux City were James A. Critzman of Sioux City, Iowa, and John McGinnis of Lubbock, Tex.

Critzman, 40, was driving one of the trucks involved, while McGinnis, 33, was a passenger in a semi being driven by his brother, Donald, 36, also of Lubbock.

Donald Critzman was taken to a Sioux City hospital, where he was listed in serious condition.

The driver of the third vehicle involved, Larry Henjes, 34, of Dakota City, escaped serious injury. Henjes was driving a pickup.

A report was received Thursday on the death of a rural Henderson teenager.

Jim Geiser, 15, died Aug. 6 in a Lincoln hospital of injuries he suffered the day before when his motorcycle rammed into a pickup truck at the intersection of two Fillmore County roads about five miles south of Sutton.

Geiser, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Geiser, who live six miles south of Henderson, apparently did not stop at a stop sign, according to the accident report.

The report said the impact of the collision threw Geiser against the pickup, which was driven by Ed Girmus, 67, an area farmer, and that Geiser was carried about 60 feet on the side of the truck before falling to the roadside.

Deputy Sheriff Analyzes Driver's State At Scene

How would you feel if you lost control of your car and almost drove into a ditch?

Well, a Lancaster County sheriff's deputy had just the right words.

In a report, the deputy noted that a woman lost control of her car near 84th and Leighton.

"And after losing control of her car, she suffered an extreme case of anxiety," he said.

The woman wasn't hurt in the incident.

G.I. Fireman Braves Trash To Save Bill

Grand Island (AP) — A Grand Island fireman made a daring fire — he extinguished the tears of a little girl.

The little girl came out of a department store, and became the victim of her own mistake when she unknowingly threw her $5 bill into refuse container along with gum wrapper.

After realizing her mistake, she began crying.

Not being tall enough to look into the can to find the money and with no adults around, she sought aid elsewhere.

The young lady spotted a fire truck across the street, where firemen were inspecting businesses.

She asked for help, and fireman George Molczyk rushed to the rescue.

Molczyk dug himself halfway into the container and found the money.

The tears abated, the little girl thanked Molczyk and went on her way.

Polite Robbery Isn't Illegal In State

Lancaster County Judge Jeffere Chevront dropped charges against the California man accused of attempting to rob the First National Bank's branch office at 56th and O St.

Paul Doorneweerd, 33, was charged with assault with intent to rob on July 7. He was accused of walking into the bank and handing a note to a teller which said, "This is a stickup."

Doorneweerd allegedly asked the teller to give him $3,000. The teller eventually told him he couldn't have the money, so he walked out of the bank. A few minutes later he was apprehended by police answering the silent alarm call.

Judge Chevront dismissed the case, he said, because it was not shown that Doorneweerd was armed or that he threatened the teller. Under Nebraska Law, there is no separate charge for intent to rob.

Although Doorneweerd escaped the charge in Nebraska, Deputy County Atty. Steve Yungblut said federal officials will prosecute him on federal bank robbery charges.

Authorities believe Doorneweerd is from Whittier, Calif.

Dry Weather Reduces Corn Crop Forecasts

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Irrigated corn in Nebraska is expected to yield 115 bushels to the acre compared to dryland yields of only 45 bushels an acre, according to a forecast made Thursday by Jack Aschwege, state statistician for the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The corn production, based on conditions as of Aug. 1, was forecast at 527 million bushels. This is 4% below the estimate a month ago, 5% above last year's crop and 5% below the all-time record crop harvested in 1973.

The state average yield is now expected to be 85 bushels an acre, the same as last year but down from the July 1 forecast by four bushels an acre.

The dryland crop has been hurt by dry weather, particularly in northeast Nebraska where rains are desperately needed, Aschwege said.

The dryland forecast is for 118.8 million bushels, down 13% from last year. Farmers intend to harvest 2.65 million acres of dryland, 20,000 less than last year. The yield at 45 bushels an acre is down six bushels from last year.

Irrigated corn production is forecast at 408.2 million bushels, 11% above last year and 30% above 1974. Farmers expect to harvest 3.55 million acres of irrigated corn, 9% more than last year. The yield forecast at 115 bushel is two bushels above last year, but well below the record yield of 124.1 bushels in 1972 on irrigated land.

"We had some irrigators who got started late this year and some new irrigators haven't enough experience to produce top yields yet," Aschwege said.

Production of grain sorghum was forecast at 112.8 million bushels, up 9% from 1975. Yield at 55 bushels per acre is the same as last year, but the acreage is 9% above last year at 2.05 million acres.

Soybean production is forecast at 26.8 million bushels, 19% below 1975 and the smallest production since 1972.

The small production is due to a one bushel drop to 26 bushels an acre in the yield per acre and mostly due to the 16% drop in the number of acres planted to soybeans. Farmers in Nebraska intend to harvest 1,030,000 acres of soybeans, the smallest crop since 1972. Low prices at planting time were primarily responsible for the drop in the number of acres planted, according to Aschwege.

The state wheat crop was forecast at 97 million bushels, the same as last month but 2% below last year. Yield is pegged at 32 bushels an acre, the same as last month but two bushels an acre below 1974.

Hay production in Nebraska is forecast at 6.4 million tons, 4% less than 1975.

State Soybean Growers Top Checkoff Supporters

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Nebraska soybean producers are supporting their checkoff program better than farmers in any of the other 16 states that operate such a program, according to Eugene Glock, president of the Nebraska Soybean Association.

Glock told the Nebraska Soybean Development, Utilization and Marketing Board Thursday that much of the credit was due to the way the board conducted its program and the effective aid given the board by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

"Rent expense is one example. We will spend $774 for rent in our first year in the new state office building. One state spent $18,000 for office space last year," Glock said.

The Nebraska board will pay even less rent next year because some of the $774 involves start-up expenses in the office provided in the Agriculture Department's marketing division.

"We are trying to get all the checkoff programs into the same area so they can use the same phones, secretarial staff and meeting rooms. We feel the money from the checkoff programs should be spent on promoting the products, not on overhead," explained Roger Sandman, assistant director of agriculture.

The committee also noted that less than one percent of the farmers selling soybeans have asked for a refund compared to a national average of just under 5%.

"Nebraska has the lowest refund request in the nation," Glock said.

Committee members voted to allocate at least half of the $204,000 they expect to collect from the half-cent-a-bushel soybean tax for market promotion efforts overseas.

The balance of the money will go for some research activities at the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska, possibly for some national research projects such as a winter nursery where Nebraska soybean breeders could reduce the time needed to produce a new variety suited for the state.

The committee will look at a number of research proposals at their next meeting in mid-November. Any unallocated funds will probably be added to the overseas marketing program at a later date.

Committee members voted to hold their cash reserves at the lowest level possible. "We want to put these dollars to work as soon as we can after we receive them," said Kurt Blankenmeyer of Dakota City.

Carl Gangwish Jr. of Shelton told the board he learned that marketing dollars invested by the committee multiply 10 times by the time they are spent overseas. "It is fantastic what they can do with just a little money. Soybean meal use in Iran has increased tenfold in the past year because of a small development program there," he said.

4-H Improves State Fair Prizes

Although already popular, the champion 4-H livestock exhibitor competition at the 1976 Nebraska State Fair will be even more attractive to entrants due to an increase in both the value of the top award and the number of placings with cash premiums.

Dave Williams, Extension 4-H livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, announced this week the overall champion 4-H livestock exhibitor will receive an expense-paid trip to the 1977 National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago. If the 4-H'er already has won a trip through another project, he or she will receive a $150 cash prize, Williams added.

As in the past, the contest will include the naming of champion 4-H exhibitors in the market beef, swine and sheep divisions, with the top trio competing for the overall championship. Safeway Stores, Inc. of Omaha will provide trophies for champions and cash awards for the top five exhibitors of each species, along with the Chicago trip or equivalent cash award.

Four-H members who are high school juniors or seniors at State Fair time — or are 1976 high school graduates — and have livestock entered, are eligible to compete, Williams said. All those interested will assemble at the State Fair Youth Complex on Saturday morning, Sept. 11.

4-H Horse Show Begins Today

The three-day Lancaster County 4-H Horse Show begins today at 8 a.m. at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum with a horse judging contest. Halter classes begin at 9 a.m.

The show is divided into five classes, quarter horses, Arabians, Appaloosa, pinto and other breeds. A showmanship class will be picked from the halter classes.

The riding classes will begin

Saturday at 8 a.m., starting with the green horse pleasure class. This involves horses under three years that the 4-H member has broken and trained himself.

This will be followed by western pleasure and individual pleasure classes before noon.

A flag presentation and club parade will be held immediately following lunch. The afternoon program will include county horsemanship teams, western horsemanship and English pleasure classes followed by individual, English horsemanship classes and elementary dressage.

Riding classes will begin again on Sunday at 10 a.m. with trail classes, jumping, reining, western riding, pole bending, keyhole race, barrel racing and stake racing.

The entire show involving 240 youngsters and their horses is open to the public free of charge.

220-YARD INDOOR TRACK . . . surrounds tennis courts, will have bleachers for at least 5,000 spectators.

Fieldhouse On Last Lap

It's one of the largest buildings in the state and it still doesn't have a name but there it sits on the Nebraska State Fairgrounds in gleaming white glory, the new Nebraska sports complex.

One half of the building has been used and enjoyed by high school basketball fans, and by those who enjoy the bubbly music of Lawrence Welk.

But the $14 million complex has another half that almost nobody has utilized or even seen.

West of the basketball arena, the other sports half is still being worked on, with an expected completion date of Sept. 15.

Building Superintendent Jerry Lott, who has been with the complex since the first piling was driven into the ground nearly four years ago, explains that material deliveries have held up the completion but that the September date should be final.

Included in the western half of the complex is a 10-lane, 25-meter swimming pool — one of the largest indoor pools in the state — a 14-foot deep diving well, a gymnastics hall, a wrestling arena, a 220-yard, six-lane synthetic surface track, five tennis courts, a sauna room, a training room and uncountable lockers.

The swimming area offers a pool that won't allow for white caps like the present NU pool in the old Coliseum and provides seating for 900 people with possible seating for 1,000 more.

The diving well will have two boards at each end, three-meter boards at one end, one-meter boards at the other. There is also an observation window about three feet under the water level.

"We'll have electronic touchboards for all 10 lanes in the swimming pool," said Lott. "And we've added markers on the lights so backstrokers will know where the edge of the pool is."

Further west is the indoor track surfaced with Monsanto urethane, the same as NU's outdoor track at Ed Weir stadium. There are 10 lanes along the straight and six around the turns. Inside the track are five tennis courts, three on the synthetic surface, two on concrete.

Lott said there will be bleachers for 5,000 on the east side of the 220-yard track and possibly some extra rollback bleachers on the west side.

"Everything should be used for its intended use," said Lott, "except for a storage room that we changed into offices for the women coaches.

"Right now we're using the weight rooms, the basketball court and some of us have made sure the sauna works correctly," said Lott. "We still have some landscaping and painting to finish. Plus the tiling in the swimming areas and a few minor touchups. But otherwise we're ready to use the whole thing."

"Getting ready for 10 days of concentrated use during the Nebraska State Fair will give the building a good test," said Lott. Grandstand shows will be held in the basketball arena and the track will be used as an exhibition hall.

"We don't have any real problems now but we'll have to wait and see after we've used the building a bit and all the coaches and students have gotten in here," said Lott.

"The builders have to guarantee the building for one year after the owner has accepted it," Lott said.

"It appears, though, that already the people of the state have accepted the complex, judging from all the compliments we received after the state basketball tournament and the Welk show," said Lott.

Now come the students.

Bridge Take A Little Bidding Quiz

By B. JAY BECKER

You hold the following hand:

♠AKQ8♥85♦Q74♣AJ73

1. You are the dealer. What do you bid?

2. Your partner deals and bids One Diamond. What would you respond?

3. Your left-hand opponent bids One Diamond, partner passes, and your right-hand opponent bids One Heart. What do you bid?

4. Your partner bids One Heart and the next player doubles. What do you bid?

5. Your partner bids One Heart, you respond One Spade, and partner bids Three Diamonds. What do you bid?

6. Your left-hand opponent bids One Club and your right-hand opponent responds One Spade. What do you bid?

1. One club. Despite the 10 points and 4-4-3 distribution, which suggest opening with one notrump, it is better to bid one of a suit. As usual, when holding clubs and spades of equal length, you start with the lower suit to conserve bidding space. A notrump opening is generally avoided when there are two unguarded suits.

2. One spade. Game is certain, but that doesn't mean you're required to respond two spades. A jump-shift would indicate a probable slam, and this hand is not quite in that class. Change a heart into a spade or a diamond and you would have a classic two spade response. One spade is 100 per cent forcing.

3. Double. This indicates the values for an opening bid and support for the unmentioned suits. It would be wrong to bid one spade. This would suggest greater spade length and much less in high cards.

4. Redouble. This announces 10 or more points. You plan to go to game or double the opponents for penalties.

5. Four clubs. A small slam is certain, since partner's jump-shift indicates at least 20 points, distributional or otherwise. Your real goal at this point is a grand slam. Four clubs is a waiting bid that forces partner to reveal the nature of his jump-shift. He may have:

♠6♥AK9643♦AKJ83♣10 or similar holdings. You have to wait and see what partner does over four clubs.

6. Pass. The value of a hand practically always changes as the bidding progresses. Before the bidding started, you had a good chance of finding partner with spade or club length, but that possibility is now greatly reduced. The best strategy is to play passout and hope the opponents climb too high.

14-Year-Old's New Contacts Irritating

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and have a terrible problem. I nagged my mother to get me contact lenses (I wore glasses), and three months ago she finally got me some.

Now I can't wear the contacts because they are just too hard to get used to. They irritate my eyes and I can't keep them in. (They are the hard kind, not soft. It is just terrible, Abby. Kids shouldn't be allowed to get hard contacts because they hurt too much.)

I don't know how to tell my mother. She will get mad at me because she spent a lot of money on them and she didn't want to get them in the first place, but I begged so hard she gave in.

Please help me, but don't write back because my mother might get the mail first. Thank you.

RED EYES

DEAR RED EYES: Tell your mother. She'll take you back to the place you bought your contacts for a consultation. Others have become accustomed to the hard lenses, and you probably can, too, if you follow instructions. But first see your eye doctor to find out whether your problem is with your eyes or the contact lenses.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a guy for three years off and on. I've tried to break up with him, but every time I make the attempt, he cries, begs and carries on. He's even threatened to commit suicide, so I get soft-hearted and change my mind. If he were to kill himself because of me, I'd never be able to forgive myself.

I have begged him to go with other girls, but he won't. I've even gone out with other guys, hoping he'd date other girls just to get even, but it hasn't worked.

He says if he can't have me, he doesn't want anyone.

Now he's pressuring me to marry him. I don't really want to, but I feel so sorry for him, I'm tempted to say yes. He's not a bad guy. In many ways he's really nice, and I'm sure some girl would feel lucky to have him.

I have told him that I am not in love with him. But he says he doesn't care because he loves me, and after we're married I'll learn to love him. He's 26 and I'm 22. What now?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Do yourself (and him) a favor and tell him it's not fair to either of you to continue the relationship. Then break it off, once and for all. If you allow him to play on your sympathy, he may eventually wear you down to the point of marriage. Then YOU will be the one who will need the sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my mother died 10 years ago I have been wearing her wedding band on my key chain. It will fit my little finger, but I am wondering if it would be proper for me to wear it.

I'm afraid it might provoke a lot of questions. Then what would I say? I don't want to appear a sentimental fool.

MANNA'S BOY

DEAR BOY: Go ahead and wear it. And what's wrong with being sentimental? If anyone inquires, tell them the truth. I think it's a beautiful idea.

DEAR ABBY: I notice that you sometimes let people air their beefs in your column. Well, here's mine:

I've been a waitress for many years in two of Seattle's finest restaurants, and it positively infuriates me when a lady speaks to me through her escort as though I am not good enough for her to speak directly to.

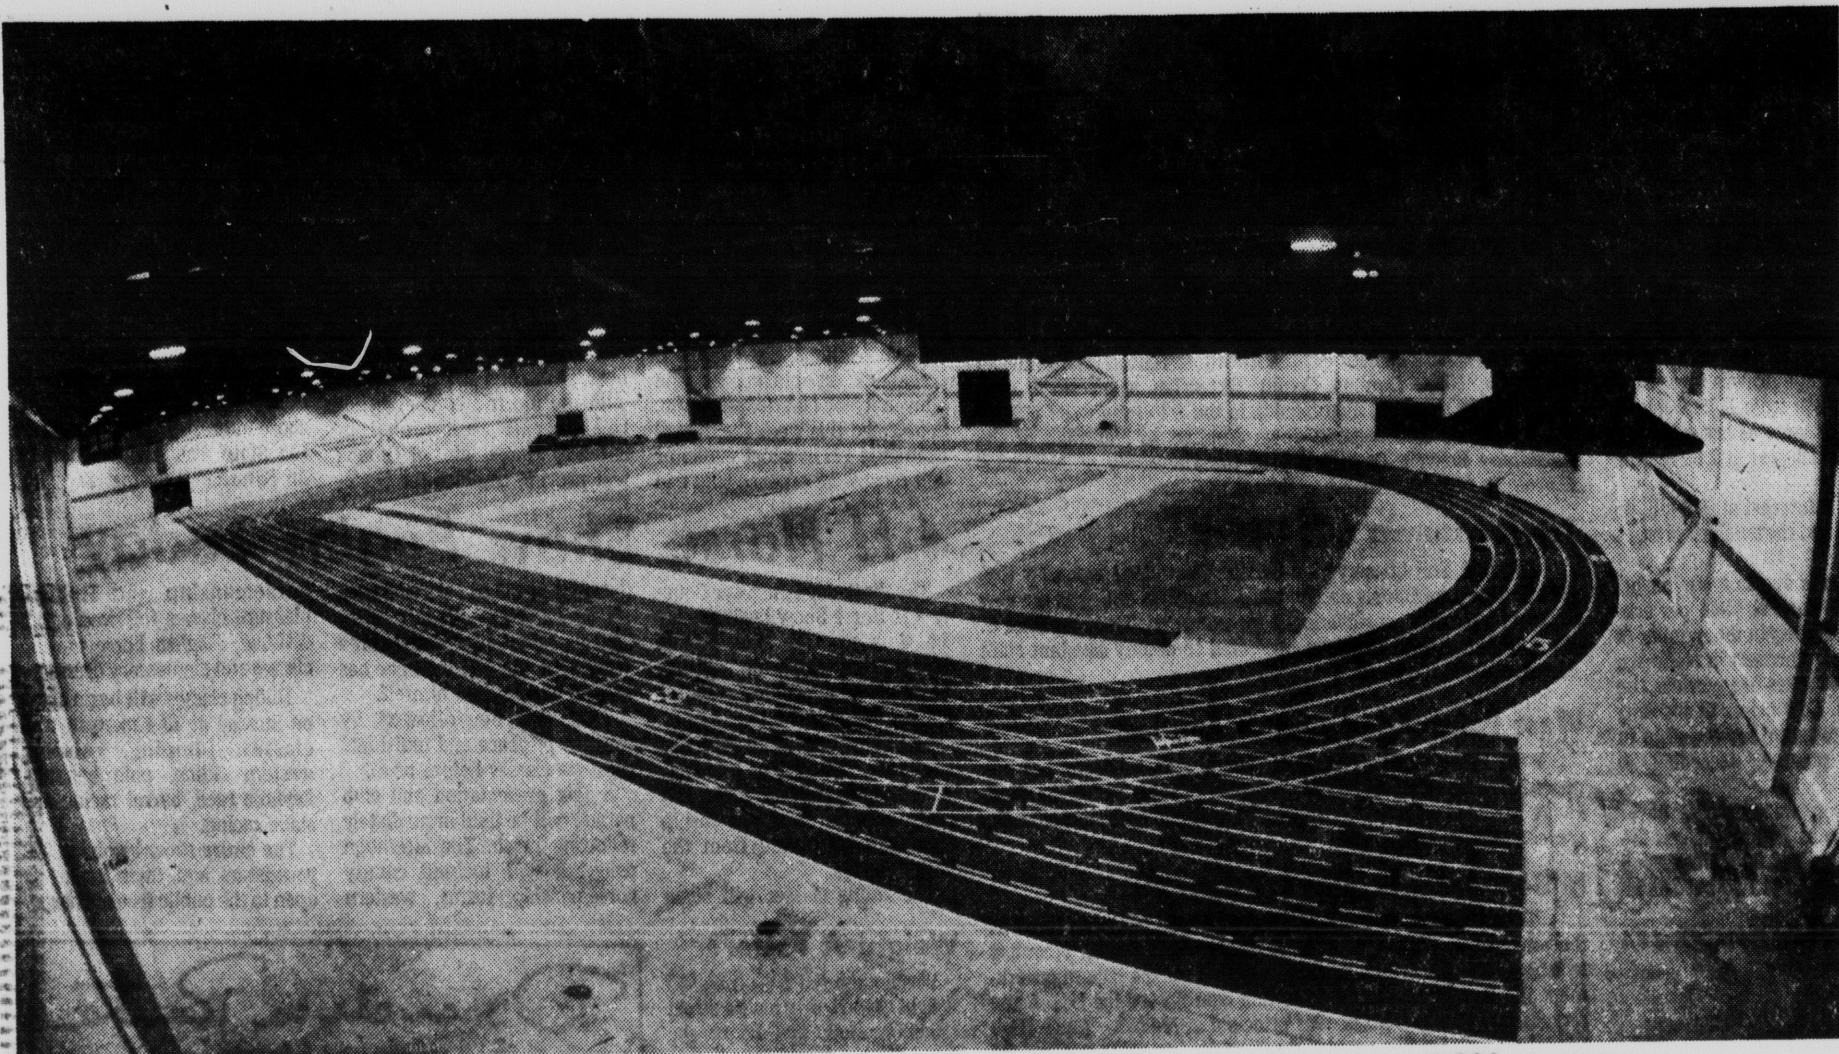

Example: Me to her: "Ma'am, how would you like your steak?" She ignores me, turns to her escort and says, "Honey, tell her I like my steak rare."

Abby, what is wrong with those snobbish women, anyway? This probably won't make your column, but I feel a lot better just telling somebody.

CHARLENE

DEAR CHARLENE: Those snobbish ladies are going by some very archaic rules of etiquette. At one time (and don't ask me why) it wasn't considered proper for a lady to speak to a waiter or waitress, so she communicated through her escort.

Lifescape

Fieldhouse On Last Lap

It's one of the largest buildings in the state and it still doesn't have a name but there it sits on the Nebraska State Fairgrounds in gleaming white glory, the new Nebraska sports complex.

One half of the building has been used and enjoyed by high school basketball fans, and by those who enjoy the bubbly music of Lawrence Welk.

But the $14 million complex has another half that almost nobody has utilized or even seen.

West of the basketball arena, the other sports half is still being worked on, with an expected completion date of Sept. 15.

Building Superintendent Jerry Lott, who has been with the complex since the first piling was driven into the ground nearly four years ago, explains that material deliveries have held up the completion but that the September date should be final.

Included in the western half of the complex is a 10-lane, 25-meter swimming pool — one of the largest indoor pools in the state — a 14-foot deep diving well, a gymnastics hall, a wrestling arena, a 220-yard, six-lane synthetic surface track, five tennis courts, a sauna room, a training room and uncountable lockers.

The swimming area offers a pool that won't allow for white caps like the present NU pool in the old Coliseum and provides seating for 900 people with possible seating for 1,000 more.

The diving well will have two boards on each end, three-meter boards at one end, one-meter boards at the other. There is also an observation window about three feet under the water level.

"We'll have electronic touchboards for all 10 lanes in the swimming pool," said Lott. "And we've added markers on the lights so backstrokers will know where the edge of the pool is."

Further west is the indoor track surfaced with Monsanto urethane, the same as NU's outdoor track at Ed Weir stadium. There are 10 lanes along the straight and six around the turns. Inside the track are five tennis courts, three on the synthetic surface, two on concrete.

Lott said there will be bleachers for 5,000 on the east side of the 220-yard track and possibly some extra rollback bleachers on the west side.

"Everything should be used for its intended use," said Lott, "except for a storage room that we changed into offices for the women coaches.

"Right now we're using the weight rooms, the basketball court and some of us have made sure the sauna works correctly," said Lott. "We still have some landscaping and painting to finish. Plus the tiling in the swimming areas and a few minor touchups. But otherwise we're ready to use the whole thing."

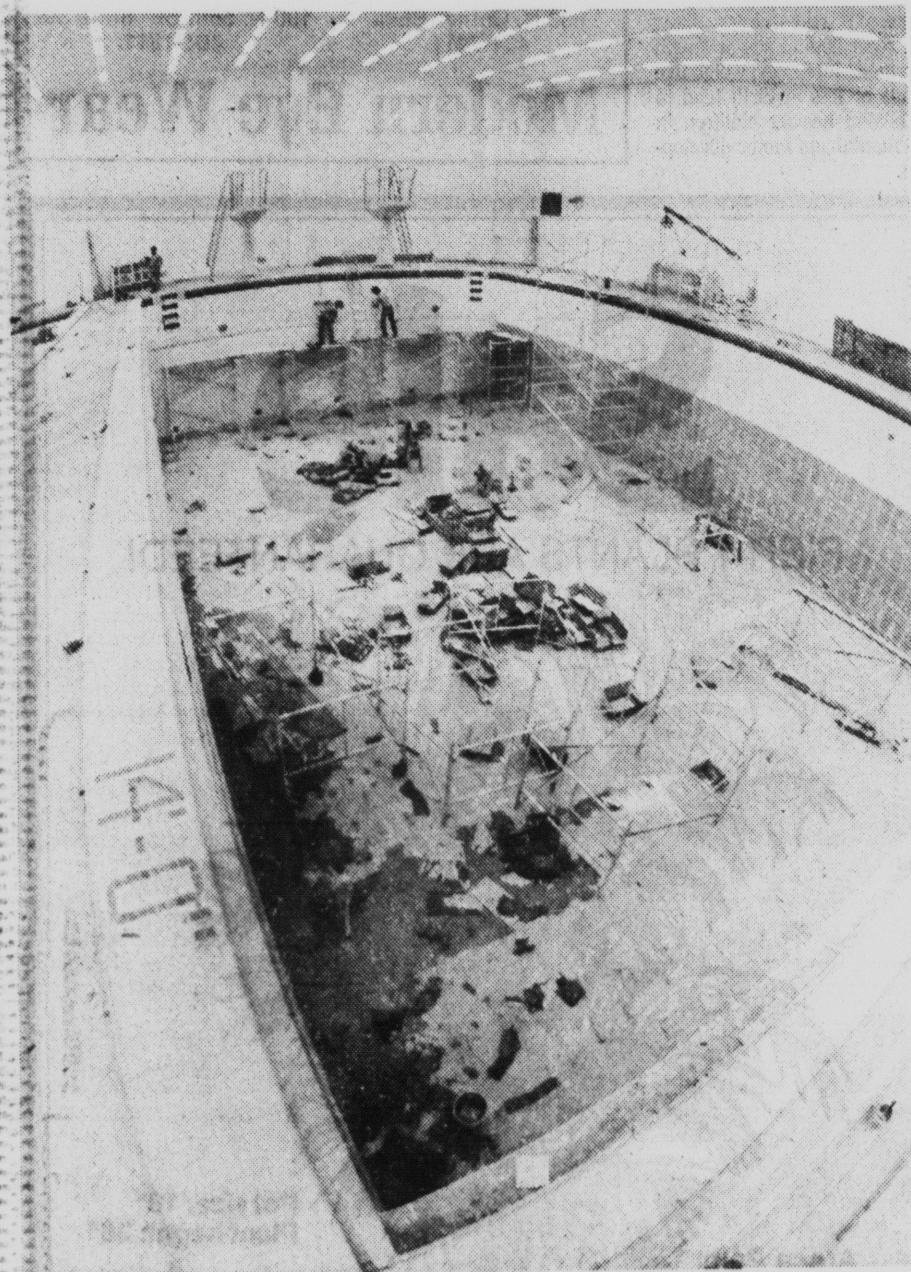

"Getting ready for 10 days of concentrated use during the Nebraska State Fair will give the building a good test," said Lott. Grandstand shows will be held in the basketball arena and the track will be used as an exhibition hall.

"We don't have any real problems now but we'll have to wait and see after we've used the building a bit and all the coaches and students have gotten in here," said Lott.

"The builders have to guarantee the building for one year after the owner has accepted it," Lott said.

"It appears, though, that already the people of the state have accepted the complex, judging from all the compliments we received after the state basketball tournament and the Welk show," said Lott.

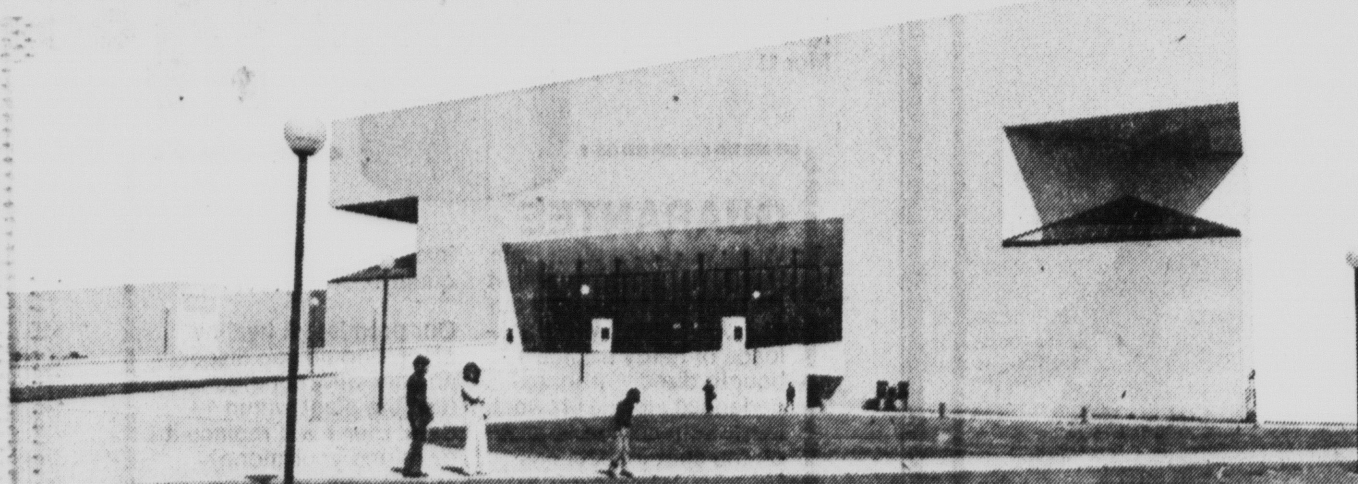

Now come the students.

Duplicated Drug Services Will Be Sought In Review

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Full Circle and the Chemical Dependency Unit (CDU) may be duplicating one another's programs; or they may be delivering different, necessary services.

The City-County Common wants to know which, and what to do about funding those programs.

The Common soon will formally ask the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) to review those two locally funded programs to determine any duplications or differences. Bob Clark, city-county human services administrator, told LCAD's Drug Treatment Planning Committee Thursday.

The Common wants to know by April whether LCAD considers both services necessary, or whether they should be combined or the programs integrated, Clark said.

Another LCAD committee recently completed a city-requested study of four city-funded alcoholism programs, and recommended that the four be combined under a new alcoholism services division of the City-County Health Department.

The requested study "is not an attempt to scuttle anything or anybody," Clark said, "but to let officials know what they're doing and why."

Recent studies have found that the differences in clientele at Full Circle and CDU are "getting less and less," with both treating more cases of combined drug and alcohol dependency, Clark said.

Full Circle is a residential drug treatment facility which also offers out-patient services. CDU, housed at Lincoln General Hospital, treats and rehabilitates alcoholics and drug abusers.

In other action, the drug committee looked over results of recent surveys of juvenile drug use. Those statistics revealed that juveniles, particularly those 15 and under, "don't trust established treatment mechanisms," but rather go to their friends, said Rich Jochem, LCAD assistant director.

Hard data were not available since most human service agencies and local hospitals do not collect statistics on juvenile drug use.

Committee Chairman Marsha Shada appointed a subcommittee to determine the future of the adolescent drug project. Appointed were Chairman Jay Lewis, James Arnot, Bob Frangenberg, Cheryl Mulford and Dan Ellis.

A new subcommittee also was appointed to determine the need for a mental health counselor to work exclusively with alcoholics and/or drug abusers. The study was requested by the Lancaster County Mental Health Center, which has access to a federal grant for such a program.

Named to that committee were Chairmen M. L. Allen, Lee Krall, Bob Reier and Allan Reed.

Pat Ash, City Reach Agreement On Lots

With purchase of two downtown properties owned by Mr. and Mrs. Pat Ash, the city now owns all but five lots in the Centrum block bound by 11th, 12th, O and N Sts.

The purchase of the two properties at 1101 O and 118 S. 11th ends two years of negotiations and means the dismissal of three lawsuits Ash filed against the city.

The purchase price of $199,500 brings total city expenses for land acquisition and relocation to $2,523,359.

Ash, who said in past years that he would never sell to the city, reflected that the negotiating process wasn't too painful. "I like a good — oh, I wouldn't say fight — but I like to get in the middle of things, I guess," said Ash.

Mayor Helen Boosals called the lots "very key property" and thanked the Ashes for deciding not to follow through with litigation against the city.

The purchase agreement allows Ash to continue to lease his buildings until 90 days before demolition and that should help to make sure activity continues on that block, said Mrs. Boosals.

Ash said he intends to remain in the downtown district and has already acquired other downtown property.

Troopers Magazine Lawsuit Not Resolved

Omaha — A lawsuit by the Nebraska attorney general alleging fraud in the sale of advertising for a state troopers' magazine continues Friday in the Douglas County District Court here.

The case, involving the State Troopers' Association of Nebraska and a corporation hired to handle publication of the magazine, was argued all day Thursday with no results.

The court did order Nebraska Atty Gen Paul Douglas to be in court Friday for the case. Until Friday, assistant attorney general's officer Paul Snyder argued the case.

The suit alleges that a firm hired by the State Troopers Association has been misrepresenting itself when selling advertising for the magazine.

According to the lawsuit, the company told possible advertisers:

— That persons soliciting ads by telephone were state troopers when actually they were professional solicitors.

— That money for the ads would go for state trooper benevolent funds including a scholarship fund and a disability program when only 20% of the money went to the troopers' organization.

The suit further alleges that no scholarship or disability program has been established and that the funds going to the troopers' organization actually are being used for operating expenses.

State Troopers' Association secretary Dale Hopp said Thursday he believes the lawsuit is the result of the attorney general's office and the State Patrol hierarchy's trying to stop publication of the magazine.

"These are all things designed to slow up production" of the magazine, Hopp said. "We're attempting to do a very legitimate thing here," he said. "We don't want the public to think we brought this company in to do something illegal," he said.

The suit alleges that the ad sales company told advertisers that all of the state troopers belonged to the organization when only "about 40%" actually belonged.

Hopp estimated about 45% of the state's officers belong to the group.

"The company's been here since June. If they wanted to stop them, why didn't they do it then instead of now?" Hopp said.

He also said that the same company is handling business for state police magazines in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

He said the troopers' organization does intend to start the benevolent programs.

Youth Dragged 30 Feet

A 16-year-old youth was listed in serious condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center after being dragged for more than 30 feet Thursday under the tongue of a hayrack being pulled by a tractor.

Rodney Egger, of rural Roca, who was riding on the front of the hayrack, apparently lost his balance and fell off while the tractor was passing Wagon Train Lake on South 96th, the sheriff's office reported.

The tractor was traveling at about 20 miles per hour when Egger fell. "His shirt was ground into the blacktop," a sheriff's deputy reported.

John-Boy Takes Boy Home

Los Angeles (AP) — Richard Thomas took time off from filming the family-oriented television series, "The Waltons," to take his wife and new baby son home from the hospital.

Thomas, beginning his fifth season on the CBS television series, returned to the set Wednesday after picking up his wife, the former Alma Gonzales, and his son, Richard Francisco Thomas, at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.

The child was born Sunday night and is the first for the Thomases. The couple was married in February 1975.

Lincoln Man Is Held In Jail In Beating, Kicking Of Another

A Lincoln man was arrested Thursday in connection with an assault on another man who apparently was just passing through town.

Robert H. Little, 30, who gave the police no home address, was treated and released at Lincoln General Hospital for head injuries.

A witness said that Clarence J. Richards, of 929 N. 9th St., knocked Little's head down at 7th and N Sts. Thursday morning, beat him with his fist and kicked him in the head, knocking out some teeth.

Richards was being held Thursday night pending charges.

NAACP To Fight Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — The national NAACP leadership decided Thursday to fight a Mississippi court decision requiring a local NAACP chapter to pay $1.25 million to 12 white-owned businesses.

The court awarded the money to businesses in Claiborne County, Miss., in a ruling on a seven-year-old lawsuit filed by the merchants over a boycott by black residents.

The decision to fight the damage award came after a meeting here attended by Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, Margaret Bush Wilson, board chairman, and chief counsel Nathaniel Jones.

"We have decided to mount a major legal counterattack against the decision," Jones said after the meeting. He added that he and Charles Carter, NAACP lawyer who handled the case resulting in the damages award, will go to Mississippi on Monday to explore several alternatives.

Jones said the alternatives included examining the feasibility of seeking federal court relief or an appeal to the Mississippi Supreme Court.

He said Wilkins and other NAACP leaders would start raising money to pay for the legal fight.

Jones said that Mississippi requires posting of a bond covering 12% of a court award in order to carry out an appeal. He said the NAACP would have to raise nearly $2 million to meet the requirement.

Meanwhile, Naomi Levine, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, wrote Wilkins offering legal assistance to the NAACP for an appeal.

and that the funds going to the troopers' organization actually are being used for operating expenses.

State Troopers' Association secretary Dale Hopp said Thursday he believes the lawsuit is the result of the attorney general's office and the State Patrol hierarchy's trying to stop publication of the magazine.

"These are all things designed to slow up production" of the magazine, Hopp said.

"We're attempting to do a very legitimate thing here," he said. "We don't want the public to think we brought this company in to do something illegal," he said.

The suit alleges that the ad sales company told advertisers that all of the state troopers belonged to the organization when only "about 40%" actually belonged.

Hopp estimated about 45% of the state's officers belong to the group.

"The company's been here since June. If they wanted to stop them, why didn't they do it then instead of now?" Hopp said.

He also said that the same company is handling business for state police magazines in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

He said the troopers' organization does intend to start the benevolent programs.

Youth Dragged 30 Feet

A 16-year-old youth was listed in serious condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center after being dragged for more than 30 feet Thursday under the tongue of a hayrack being pulled by a tractor.

Rodney Egger, of rural Roca, who was riding on the front of the hayrack, apparently lost his balance and fell off while the tractor was passing Wagon Train Lake on South 96th, the sheriff's office reported.

The tractor was traveling at about 20 miles per hour when Egger fell. "His shirt was ground into the blacktop," a sheriff's deputy reported.

NAACP To Fight Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — The national NAACP leadership decided Thursday to fight a Mississippi court decision requiring a local NAACP chapter to pay $1.25 million to 12 white-owned businesses.

The court awarded the money to businesses in Claiborne County, Miss., in a ruling on a seven-year-old lawsuit filed by the merchants over a boycott by black residents.

The decision to fight the damage award came after a meeting here attended by Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, Margaret Bush Wilson, board chairman, and chief counsel Nathaniel Jones.

"We have decided to mount a major legal counterattack against the decision," Jones said after the meeting. He added that he and Charles Carter, NAACP lawyer who handled the case resulting in the damages award, will go to Mississippi on Monday "to explore several alternatives."

Jones said the alternatives included examining the "feasibility of seeking federal court relief or an appeal to the Mississippi Supreme Court."

He said Wilkins and other NAACP leaders would start raising money to pay for the legal fight.

Jones said that Mississippi requires posting of a bond covering 12% of a court award in order to carry out an appeal. He said the NAACP would have to raise nearly $2 million to meet the requirement.

Meanwhile, Naomi Levine, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, wrote Wilkins offering legal assistance to the NAACP for an appeal.

G.I., Hastings Planning Plant's Financing

By United Press International
The Nebraska Power Review Board Thursday learned that Grand Island and Hastings already are laying the groundwork for obtaining revenue bonds for a proposed 150-megawatt power plant.

The Great Plains Power Agency, formed by the two cities to operate the plant, applied with the board to construct a 150-megawatt power plant near Doniphan.

But the board hasn't acted on the application and Gary Gustafson, the board's legal counsel, said it may be months before the board is able to act on the application because the hearing has been continued until September.

Bill Beavers, of Omaha, executive vice president of Chiles, Heider & Co., Inc., said his firm will perform all financing services for Grand Island and Hastings in their move to construct a coal-fired power plant.

He has proposed using 35-year junior lien bonds to finance the plant. He also said he expects both cities to receive a rating on their bonds, but added the rating could be lower.

Beavers said he anticipates $35 million worth of bonds will be sold in 1977 with additional bonds being sold in 1979.

Opposition to the coal-fired unit surfaced from the Grand Island and Doniphan areas.

A Grand Island petition drive attempted to force the city council to enact an ordinance enjoining the city from building a plant outside its jurisdiction. The petition also asked the council to let voters approve or disapprove of the plant.

Later, the board was asked to rule on its jurisdiction over the controversial application and to let Doniphan landowners have legal representation at the hearing. The board found it did have proper jurisdiction over the application and also agreed to let landowners enter proceedings.

The public hearing will continue Sept. 8.

At that time, Grand Island attorney Earl Ahlschwede, representing the agency, is expected to call four witnesses. Since Tuesday, when the hearing began, Ahlschwede has called about five witnesses and has filed numerous documents containing financial reports and power studies for the proposed plant.

Lincoln attorney Arlen Beam, representing the City of Doniphan, said he will call about eight witnesses when the hearing reconvenes. Chesley Baker, representing landowners on the plant's proposed site, also will have a chance to call witnesses when the hearing resumes.

Beam said he will try to prove the plant would not be a public convenience, a necessity or economically feasible. If the board agrees, he said, the application will be denied.

However, Ahlschwede's witnesses have indicated the plant would be economically feasible.

The board is required to reach a decision on the application within 30 days of the hearing's close, Gustafson said. Then either party may appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

At the close of Thursday's hearing, the attorneys said they hadn't yet considered an appeal.

Whatever the board decides, Hastings and Grand Island already have started planning for the proposed plant; Bid letting opened Tuesday.

In addition, the cities entered into an official agreement March 22 to construct the plant near Doniphan, a town of 650 persons located between the two cities.

Prior to the agreement, Grand Island commissioned a $50,000 power source study with Gibbs, Hill, Durham & Richardson, Inc., of Omaha. The study suggested seven ways for the city to obtain power.

Grand Island chose the option calling for the construction of a generation plant with Hastings rather than buying power from the Nebraska Public Power District.

Then, the two cities formed the agency to operate the plant. Subsequently, the agency commissioned a $39,000 site and financial study with Lutz, Daily & Brain of Shawnee Mission, Kan.

The Kansas study recommended the controversial Doniphan site and said the plant would be operable in 1980. The study also said the two cities would probably experience a 100% rate increase from June 1975, to June 1982.

Mars View Of Earth Considered

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — Viking scientists know that Mars appears from Earth as a small red ember in the night sky. They would like to see what Earth would look like to a Martian astronomer — if there were any.

Dr. James Pollack of the Viking Lander Imaging Team said Thursday Earth may be at the limit of the lander cameras' sensitivity, but they were "looking into the possibility of taking a picture of Earth."

He said the robot's twin cameras have already been turned into an astronomical observatory to measure the amount of sunlight lost going through the thin Martian air.

The lander's soil scoop finally dumped a sample into an organic analyzer instrument Thursday and Viking 2 looked at a possible landing site described as similar to the Gobi Desert.

Two weeks behind schedule, the soil arm delivered a full sample to Viking 1's gas chromatograph mass spectrometer which will test for past signs of organic life on Mars. The instrument, however, had already started a full sequence without the sample and the cycle must be completed before it can start again.

The scoop arm jammed on an earlier attempt to dump soil into the chamber's hopper but began functioning with a series of corrective computer commands.

The Gobi Desert-like site is one of three large areas of a northern Martian latitude being considered for Viking 2's landing early in September.

The first choice site, designated B-1 on the Aedalia plains, "is the so-called great northern lowlands," he said.

"This is the lowest part of the planet, low plains covered with fine basaltic material. It is like the ocean floors on Earth."

"But the closest Earth analog," he said, "is northern China where material is blown from the Gobi Desert and covers the fertile plains."

He said B-1 appears very hazardous and while Viking 2 is orbiting it also is "walking" westward and will photograph two other areas.

"This is all wind-blown material. The material is eroded, we think, from the equator and blown to the polar regions and re-eroded by wind. There may be organic material cold-trapped in the polar regions and blown down into this latitude."

"Our approach pictures confirm our model," Masursky said. "This is the wettest place on the planet. It is five times wetter than any other part of Mars."

Owner Drops Spring Lake Lawsuit

A lawsuit dealing with the numerous parties at Spring Lake in west Lincoln was dropped Thursday by the owners of the land surrounding the former gravel pit.

Lancaster District Court Judge Herbert Ronin dismissed the suit at the request of the Hub Hall Co., which owns the land. The realty firm had asked the court to enjoin the tenants living on the land from holding any more parties.

At least seven parties have been held recently at Spring Lake.

The company dropped the suit after the tenants agreed to move out, court records show.

Kiss Of Death?

Now that Playboy's September issue is on the newstands, making it official that the magazine does, in fact, pick Nebraska to be national champion, the question becomes: Is that a kiss of death?

Well, it isn't if you look back at the selections made by Anson Mount, Playboy's football expert last year. He correctly named Oklahoma to win the national crown, which the Sooners did, and he had 15 of the 20 teams listed in the final wire service polls in his preseason list.

Mount correctly predicted Oklahoma would be 10-1. This year he says Nebraska will be 10-1, but he doesn't name the culprit. He had Nebraska rated 10th a year ago and the Huskers finished ninth in both Associated Press and United Press International ratings at the end of the season.

Preseason ratings are a guessing game at best. The difference between No. 1 and No. 9 is quite small. A Nebraska victory at Oklahoma last season would have found the Huskers playing Michigan in the Orange Bowl with a victory most certainly resulting in a national crown.

The Sunday Journal and Star's annual football special edition will be on your doorstep Sunday morning. Check Page 26 to see how the sports staffs of the two papers see the rankings for 1976.

Olympic Basketball Thought

Abe Lemons, president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the new head man at Texas, has a thought about why some of the nation's top collegians refused to try out for the U.S. Olympic cage team. It makes sense.

Lemons says a collegiate player loses a strong talking point when negotiating a professional contract if he can't make the Olympic team.

Lemons believes the team should be picked without having a trial camp. "They (the coaches) know who they're going to take anyhow," he said.

Lemons is high of the talent that plays college basketball. He says, "You couldn't pick out a team bad enough to get beat unless it's a fluke." And in 1972, you'll have to admit, it was the fluke to end all flukes.

Golfing Around

The annual Midwest Golf Classic will be played Saturday and Sunday at the Lochland Country Club in Hastings. Sponsoring KOLN-TV and KGIN-TV plan to telecast the event. Professionals will be playing for a purse of $10,000, including $2,100 to the winner. Another $5,000 in merchandise will go to amateurs.

Last year's winners were pro John Frillman of Omaha and amateur Dan Bahensky of Lincoln.

The Lincoln Country Club will be the site next Tuesday of a 36-hole sectional qualifying round for the U.S. Amateur, which is scheduled for the Bel-Air Country Club in Los Angeles Aug. 31 to Sept. 5.

Nine golfers will be playing for one qualifying spot. They are: Craig Moyer and Ty Swan of Hastings; Steve Statton of Lincoln; Mike Klein of Scottsbluff; Ingolf Maustad of Beatrice; Fred Gacek of Hooper; and Tom Olson, Dave Walker and Tom Sieckmann of Omaha.

A record total of 2,665 nationwide will try for 189 spots at Bel-Air. Eleven are exempt, including 1975 champion Fred Ridley.

If odds seem high for the nine golfers here, consider that 110 will be trying for seven spots at two sites in Los Angeles. There are seven places available for 100 players at Jacksonville, Fla., and eight spots for 117 at Dallas.

The Lincoln Municipal Golf Association is considering awarding a $40 gift certificate starting next year to any member scoring a hole-in-one. Conditions: membership dues must have been paid prior to getting the ace, it must be made one a course having not more than six par three holes, it must be made between the first and last LMGA event each year, and it must be witnessed and verified by a minimum of two other players, age 18 or older.

The LMGA's big event of the season, the Governor's Cup tournament, will be played Aug. 21-22 at Pioneers Golf Course.

Small Schools Irk Osborne

DALLAS (UPI) — Nebraska head coach Tom Osborne said Thursday the chief threat to college football as it is now played is the ability of small schools to tell big schools what to do.

"College football is very popular around the country," said Osborne, who is taking part in an NCAA-promoted pre-season tour. "And I would like to see it stay that way. But sometime we are going to reach a turning point and I'm afraid nobody will know what that turning point is until it is too late."

Osborne said his chief concern lies in the possible realignment of NCAA institutions.

"We tried to realign at our last convention," he said. "We started out with 138 Division I schools and we pared that list down to 100."

"But by the time they dealt with all the appeals we wound up with 143 Division I schools."

"I believe there are 60 to 65 schools in the country that draw an average of 30,000 or more persons to their football games. After that it drops off quickly to the point where many of those 143 schools are only drawing 10,000 to 12,000 a game."

"These are the schools that will have a say in things and I'm concerned about it."

In Osborne's opinion, the most dire circumstance that could come about from small-school control of the NCAA is the institution of "need scholarships."

Many schools with low-revenue football programs would like to give out scholarships on a need basis to cut budget expenses.

"I've talked to Big 10 coaches who lived through a period of need scholarships," said Osborne, "and they said it was a real jungle. It brings about so much cheating."

"And there is no way to come up with an equitable table. A family making $10,000 in New York City is really in need. But a family making that much money in a small town in Nebraska is fairly well off. They are not wealthy, but they are better than some."

"The need scholarship thing barely missed at the last convention and it probably has about a 50-50 chance to make it through this time. That just scares me to death."

"If this trend continues in college football things are going to get more and more tense until something happens."

"And nobody knows what that something might be."

Kuhn Orders Use Of DH In Series

PHOENIX (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn decided Thursday that the designated hitter rule will be in effect for this year's World Series and in alternating years until the two major leagues reach agreement.

The use of a designated hitter — a 10th player batting for the pitcher — every other World Series was among several proposals made by American League owners.

After a meeting, American League owners unanimously endorsed the designated hitter rule, which has been in effect in the AL since 1973. The NL never has used the rule and it has been banned from the World Series in previous years.

National League owners remained staunch in their opposition to the rule, and Kuhn, using his powers as commissioner, cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of the American League.

The National League claims the rule is against the best interests of baseball and could open the door for designated runners and other forms of specialization which would water down baseball's product.

Kuhn, however, rejected a proposal that the designated hitter be permitted in All-Star games, noting liberal substitutions are used anyway, and let stand a previous agreement that the designated hitter be used in inter-league exhibition games in American League parks.

Weiskopf's 65 Leads PGA

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — A deeply talented but troubled man, Tom Weiskopf believes he is among the best players in professional golf, but he does not always act like it.

Thursday, however, was one of his good days.

Weiskopf allowed his talent to overshadow his troubles and he came through the steaming cauldron that is Congressional Country Club to shoot a five-under-par 65 and take a one-stroke first round lead in the 58th PGA Championship.

There were two players tied for second place at 66—Tom Kite, a young Texan who won his first pro tournament this summer after four years of struggle, and Dr. Gil Morgan, a 29-year-old optometrist who never even made the leader board until he finished with birdies at two of the last four holes.

Weiskopf's performance made it easy to forget that twice within the last two months he has quit tournaments following discouraging starts—a 75 in the Western Open and a 74 at Westchester.

Those were not the first time and probably not the last time the temperamental, 33-year-old Weiskopf walked off a golf course in disgust, and as recently as three weeks ago, before the Canadian Open, he found himself telling people, once again, that he was a changed man and would clean up his image.

Simply put, Weiskopf has an image problem, even though he is one of the elite group of 10 men who have earned a million dollars or more on the pro golf tour.

Two years ago, Weiskopf was fined by the PGA for giving up during this very championship, backhanding a few putts on one green on the back nine and then walking off the course.

At the time, Weiskopf promised he would not do it again, but two months later he quit the World Open, was slapped with a bigger fine and threatened with a suspension. In 1975, the tournament sponsor accused Weiskopf of "not trying" during the second round at Tucson and protested to Commissioner Deane Beman. Weiskopf claimed that was a bad rap—"If I wasn't trying, why would I have birdied the last hole?" he said—and nothing came of the incident.

"Now they're watching everything I do," Weiskopf said.

In fairness to Weiskopf, it must be pointed out that—as is normal—his controversial incidents attract considerably more attention than the other things he does. There's a young boy in New York's Westchester County who thinks Weiskopf is a great guy because last year, after blowing a seven-stroke lead and losing at Westchester, Weiskopf joked with the youngster on the way when he was asked for an autograph on the way to his car.

Thursday, Weiskopf built his score around four "25" on his scorecard. He birdied three of the four par-three holes and sank a six-iron from about 170 yards for an eagle at the 456-yard sixth hole.

His front nine 31 was one stroke off the PGA Championship record and his total 65 was one shot off the course record at Congressional, a 7,054-yard layout cut through rolling countryside and featuring severely undulating greens.

Weiskopf needed only 26 putts to produce the best score on a day that surprisingly produced more than a dozen par-or-better scores.

"The course is driving out and it played much shorter today than it did in practice," said Kite, who missed four greens but got it up-and-down three times to save pars.

Three players shared third place at 68, two under, including hometown favorite Lee Elder. Elder, the only black to play in the Masters and already assured of a return visit next year, birdied the last two holes. His birdie at 18 came on a 35-foot chip-in after he was given a free hit when his approach shot came to rest in ground under repair among heavy rough.

The other 68 shooters were Jerry McGee, a winner only once in 10 years on the tour, who sank a 45-foot birdie putt at 18, and 1971 Masters champion Charles Coody.

A pair of U.S. open champions, 22-year-old Jerry Pate, the rookie who won this year, and Hale Irwin, the 1974 winner, were at 69 with Mark Hayes and two non-winning career strugglers, Mike Morley and Bob Zender.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who has won the PGA four times including three of the last five years, was at 71 with Ben Crenshaw, the top money winner on the tour this year. Arnold Palmer and Gene Littler, Masters champion Ray Floyd had 72 and Hubert Green shot 73.

Then with racing helmet in place, we (Terrill and I) started the engine and he went over the rudiments of the four-speed gear box, the location of the accelerator and the ever-important brake.

"Put it in gear and let's get going," Terrill said as I creased the car onto the track. "Everything okay?" he asked, "I sure hope so," I replied as the sweat streamed down my back.

"Now when you get right in front of the turn let off a little and set yourself up," Terrill said. "When you get about half way through the turn, punch it hard."

I touched the gas pedal and we burst forward, hitting about 100 miles per hour, I thought. But Terrill replied, "I mean to the floor. You barely touched the accelerator."

Well, after a few more laps, each one faster than the last, I pulled into the pits and jumped out holding onto my heart, which was about to burst through my shirt.

"You have any tips for me, Rip?" I asked. "Try going a little faster. The car's built to race, not cruise," he answered. "The faster you go, the better the car will feel."

I nodded my head like I understood what he meant. But the sweat kept running, and my wobbly knees knocked out an S.O.S. at the thought of going any faster than I already had.

Lincoln Bowling Houses Safer

By BOB MOYER

The type of explosion that rocked the Pastime Bowl in Hastings recently is less likely to occur in a Lincoln bowling establishment.

The explosion and ensuing fire virtually destroyed the 32-lane Hastings bowling alley, causing an estimated $1.2 million in damages. Tom Rehder, one of the men working on the refinishing crew was killed and three others were injured in the explosion, caused by an air compressor turning on. Pastime Bowl was the site for the Nebraska Women's State bowling tournament earlier this year.

The reason Lincoln houses are less susceptible to such a fire is their use of non-red label products in refinishing the lanes, according to Don Killen, who handles insurance for all five in-town Lincoln bowling houses and a total of 45 bowling alleys in the midwest area. Hastings did not use a non-red label product, Killen said.

Difference in the labeling of these finishing products is the "flash point" or the amount of heat it takes to start a fire.

Red label products have a much lower degree flash point than non-red label products.

"Of course, anything can burn. There is always a possibility of a fire in any bowling alley," says Killen. "But from a safety standpoint I would say it is definitely safer to use non-red label products."

Jim Dill (manager at Hollywood) and Red Smith (manager of Parkway) were among the very first nationally to see the safety value of non-red label products and urge their use," adds Killen. "All of the Lincoln proprietors have been vitally concerned with safety in their bowling establishments."

Nevertheless, many bowling establishments, continue to use red label products. According to Killen some proprietors feel red label products are more convenient, can make for a better condition for the bowlers and do not cause some wear and tear problems non-red label products can produce.

But there is no question of the danger involved in using these products, Killen said. The advantage of the non-red label products which Lincoln bowling establishments use is that they don't have the arcing potential red label products have.

"When either substance is on the lane there is no problem," says Killen. "But with a red label product it is possible, depending on the amount of bowling on the lanes, to add three, four, five or six extra coats of finish."

"When you start pulling that finish off is when the danger comes in," says Killen. "With the dust particles in the air it is possible to simulate an explosion of as much as 40 to 80 sticks of dynamite." Starting an electrical motor or a pilot light can easily set off the explosion, Killen notes.

While the dangers in resurfacing are acute for the proprietor and the refinishing crews, the dangers in a bowling alley for the bowlers are minimal as far as a major fire is concerned.

"There has been a very negligible number of major fires in bowling establishments while people were actually bowling," says Killen. "I would say 90 to 95% of these fires occur while resurfacing."

Kiss Of Death?

Now that Playboy's September issue is on the newstands, making it official that the magazine does, in fact, pick Nebraska to be national champion, the question becomes: Is that a kiss of death?

Well, it isn't if you look back at the selections made by Anson Mount, Playboy's football expert last year. He correctly named Oklahoma to win the national crown, which the Sooners did, and he had 15 of the 20 teams listed in the final wire service polls in his preseason list.

Mount correctly predicted Oklahoma would be 10-1. This year he says Nebraska will be 10-1, but he doesn't name the culprit. He had Nebraska rated 10th a year ago and the Huskers finished ninth in both Associated Press and United Press International ratings at the end of the season.

Preseason ratings are a guessing game at best. The difference between No. 1 and No. 9 is quite small. A Nebraska victory at Oklahoma last season would have found the Huskers playing Michigan in the Orange Bowl with a victory most certainly resulting in a national crown.

The Sunday Journal and Star's annual football special edition will be on your doorstep Sunday morning. Check Page 26 to see how the sports staffs of the two papers see the rankings for 1976.

Olympic Basketball Thought

Abe Lemons, president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the new head man at Texas, has a thought about why some of the nation's top collegians refused to try out for the U.S. Olympic cage team. It makes sense.

Lemons says a collegiate player loses a strong talking point when negotiating a professional contract if he can't make the Olympic team.

Lemons believes the team should be picked without having a trial camp. "They (the coaches) know who they're going to take anyhow," he said.

Lemons is high of the talent that plays college basketball. He says, "You couldn't pick out a team bad enough to get beat unless it's a fluke." And in 1972, you'll have to admit, it was the fluke to end all flukes.

Golfing Around

The annual Midwest Golf Classic will be played Saturday and Sunday at the Lochland Country Club in Hastings. Sponsoring KOLN-TV and KGIN-TV plan to telecast the event. Professionals will be playing for a purse of $10,000, including $2,100 to the winner. Another $5,000 in merchandise will go to amateurs.

Last year's winners were pro John Frillman of Omaha and amateur Dan Bahensky of Lincoln.

The Lincoln Country Club will be the site next Tuesday of a 36-hole sectional qualifying round for the U.S. Amateur, which is scheduled for the Bel-Air Country Club in Los Angeles Aug. 31 to Sept. 5.

Nine golfers will be playing for one qualifying spot. They are: Craig Moyer and Ty Swan of Hastings; Steve Statton of Lincoln; Mike Klein of Scottsbluff; Ingolf Maurstad of Beatrice; Fred Gack of Hooper; and Tom Olson, Dave Walker and Tom Sieckmann of Omaha.

A record total of 2,665 nationwide will try for 189 spots at Bel-Air. Eleven are exempt, including 1975 champion Fred Ridley.

If odds seem high for the nine golfers here, consider that 110 will be trying for seven spots at two sites in Los Angeles. There are seven places available for 109 players at Jacksonville, Fla., and eight spots for 117 at Dallas.

The Lincoln Municipal Golf Association is considering awarding a $40 gift certificate starting next year to any member scoring a hole-in-one. Conditions: membership dues must have been paid prior to getting the ace, it must be made one a course having not more than six par three holes, it must be made between the first and last LMGA event each year, and it must be witnessed and verified by a minimum of two other players, age 16 or older.

The LMGA's big event of the season, the Governor's Cup tournament, will be played Aug. 21-22 at Pioneers Golf Course.

Small Schools Irk Osborne

DALLAS (UPI) — Nebraska head coach Tom Osborne said Thursday the chief threat to college football as it is now played is the ability of small schools to tell big schools what to do.

"College football is very popular around the country," said Osborne, who is taking part in an NCAA-promoted preseason tour. "And I would like to see it stay that way. But sometime we are going to reach a turning point and I'm afraid nobody will know what that turning point is until it is too late."

Osborne said his chief concern lies in the possible realignment of NCAA institutions.

"We tried to realign at our last convention," he said. "We started out with 138 Division 1 schools and we pared that list down to 100."

"But by the time we dealt with all the appeals we wound up with 143 Division 1 schools."

"I believe there are 60 to 65 schools in the country that draw an average of 30,000 or more persons to their football games. After that it drops off quickly to the point where many of those 143 schools are only drawing 10,000 to 12,000 a game."

"These are the schools that will have a say in things and I'm concerned about it."

In Osborne's opinion, the most dire circumstance that could come about from small-school control of the NCAA is the institution of "need scholarships."

Many schools with low-revenue football programs would like to give out scholarships on a need basis to cut budget expenses.

"I've talked to Big 10 coaches who lived through a period of need scholarships," said Osborne, "and they said it was a real jungle. It brings about so much cheating."

"And there is no way to come up with an equitable table. A family making $10,000 in New York City is really in need. But a family making that much money in a small town in Nebraska is fairly well off. They are not wealthy, but they are better than some."

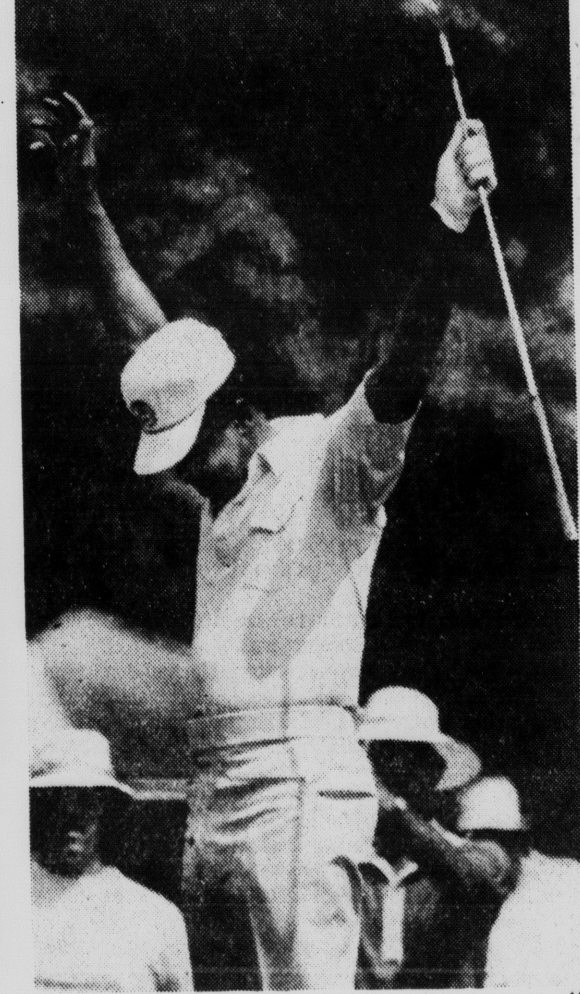

"The need scholarship thing barely missed at the last convention and it probably has about a 50-50 chance to make it through this time. That just scares me to death."

"If this trend continues in college football things are going to get more and more tense until something happens."

Lincoln's own version of the Indy 500 is slated for 6:30 Sunday night at Midwest Speedway at 27th and Superior Streets.

With all the gala and festive lure of the famous Indianapolis race for millions, the KLIN/Shrine night promises to provide certainly as much fun for the veteran and rookie race fans.

The Shriner will provide the spectacle with a band, clowns, and the famous Kawasaki and Cushman motorcycle routines along with many other highlights.

A special addition to the regular super and hobby stock car races Sunday will be the "grudge match" between the KLIN disc jockeys and the Sunday Journal and Star sportswriters.

"Double Clutch" Don Gill, Ron "the Toolin' Fool" Dean and "Showbiz the Whiz Kid" Stan Linnertz will be vying for top honors in a 10-lap race against the Journal-Star Clutch Burners led by "Truckin'" Chuck Sinclair and "Smilin'" Ryly Jane Hambleton.

Other top drivers include Dave "Gasoline Alley" Sittler, Virgil "Leadfoot" Parker and Ken "Pit Stop" Hambleton from the Journal-Star and KLIN's "Rubber Burnin'" Rich Ray, "Short Shifter" Ron Moore and pre-race favorite Lee "The Power" Schrader.

Midwest Speedway owner and operator Pete Liekam has guaranteed a percentage of the gate receipts for the Shrine Children's Hospital and has also offered his services should any car in the special race be dented.

Last Sunday a few of the drivers, including me, showed up for practice laps and showed that the battle for the lead will be interesting.

Seward Recovers For Wins

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Seward Merchants bounced back from a pair of losses in the Al Hawthorne slow-pitch softball league and swept a doubleheader from Pershing Cafe, 16-4 and 7-6 Thursday night in the league's championship playoffs at Elks Field.

Seward, facing elimination in the best-of-five series with two losses Wednesday night, exploded for 16 hits and took advantage of six Pershing errors in the opening game Thursday and added 13 hits more in the nightcap to tie the series 2-2.

Seward's two wins forced the title playoffs into a single game Friday at 7 p.m. at Elks Field. The championship will be followed by the Al Hawthorne League all-star game at 8:30 p.m.

Seward second baseman Kelly

Krull, who drove in three runs, singled in two runs in the top of the sixth inning of the nightcap, to give the Merchants a sweep.

In the fifth inning, Pershing Cafe took the lead 6-5 when Bob Garcia sacrificed to score Bob Buller. But a double play ended the threat of Pershing icing the game, and the league championship.

"I was surprised they played us that close in the second game after we played so well in the opener," said Seward Merchant coach Neil Schulz. "But Pershing is a good team and they really put the pressure on us."

Seward jumped ahead 3-0 in the first inning on five singles and a sacrifice fly. But a run-scoring triple by Pershing player-coach Frank Hilsabeck in the second inning and a two-run double by Mick Pierce in the third closed the gap to 4-3 in Seward's favor.

Steve Joekel and Sam Martin each singled in runs to help Pershing tie the score at 5-all in the fourth.

In the opener, Seward jumped to a 9-1 lead in the second inning after left fielder Mark Weber clobbered a two-run, inside-the-park home run in the second and the Merchants collected eight hits off Pershing pitcher Sam Martin.

Bob Munson collected two doubles and Jim Wehenikel added two singles and a double, driving in four runs to lead the Seward Merchants attack.

"We haven't been playing well for the last three weeks," said Schulz. "We've been taking the game too seriously and the guys have been getting down on themselves. But we went into tonight's games not thinking there was no tomorrow, but rather to go out and have a good time."

"We know we can win if we all play up to our potential and there's no need for us to feel any pressure," Schulz added. "Last night (Wednesday) we were just waiting to break both of the games open and we never did. Tonight we didn't wait but rather went out and won."

Hilsabeck offered the opposite argument as to why his team lost. "We didn't have any pressure because we knew if we won just one of the games we'd win the title and if we lost both games we were still in the tournament," he said.

Difference in the labeling of these finishing products is the "flash point" or the amount of heat it takes to start a fire.

Red label products have a much lower degree flash point than non-red label products.

"Of course, anything can burn. There is always a possibility of a fire in any bowling alley," says Killen. "But from a safety standpoint I would say it is definitely safer to use non-red label products."

"Jim Dill (manager at Hollywood) and Red Smith (manager of Parkway) were among the very first nationally to see the safety value of non-red label products and urge their use," adds Killen. "All of the Lincoln proprietors have been vitally concerned with safety in their bowling establishments."

Nevertheless, many bowling establishments, continue to use red label products. According to Killen some proprietors feel red label products are more convenient, can make for a better condition for the bowlers and do not cause some wear and tear problems non-red label products can produce.

But there is no question of the danger involved in using these products, Killen said. The advantage of the non-red label products which Lincoln bowling establishments use is that they don't have the arcing potential red label products have.

"When either substance is on the lane there is no problem," says Killen. "But with a red label product it is possible, depending on the amount of bowling on the lanes, to add three, four, five or six extra coats of finish."

"When you start pulling that finish off is when the danger comes in," says Killen. "With the dust particles in the air it is possible to simulate an explosion of as much as 40 to 80 sticks of dynamite." Starting an electrical motor or a pilot light can easily set off the explosion, Killen notes.

While the dangers in resurfacing are acute for the proprietor and the refinishing crews, the dangers in a bowling alley for the bowlers are minimal as far as a major fire is concerned.

"There has been a very negligible number of major fires in bowling establishments while people were actually bowling," says Killen. "I would say 90 to 95% of these fires occur while resurfacing."

Morning Briefing

Mets Give Frazier Extension

Joe Frazier
One-Year Pact

The New York Mets announced that they have given Joe Frazier a one-year extension on his present contract as manager of the club.

"We're satisfied with him and he's satisfied with us," said Mets chairman of the board M. Donald Grant.

"All I asked for is a one-year contract. Maybe I don't want to manage more than one year. Maybe I do. I'm an organization man. They ask me to manage and I did. I go along with their policies. That's the way we work," said Frazier.

Atlanta Braves manager Dave Bristol said he plans to keep showing up for his team's games despite a three-day suspension handed him by NL president Chub Feeney. Bristol delayed the suspension with a hearing, Sept. 6.

The court ruling said he was not an employee of the school district, just a student teacher, and therefore not eligible for benefits.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers, said he had not made a decision on a possible successor to Bill Sharman as the team's head coach. A source close to Jerry West, one of the candidates for the job, said West feels that Jerry Tarkanian, Nevada-Las Vegas coach and another job candidate, has already signed a contract. A source close to Tarkanian said he would decide by Friday if he would accept a reported five-year $350,000 contract to coach the Lakers.

Solomon, Connors Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors shrugged off an aching back and beat Victor Amaya 6-2, 7-5 Thursday while No. 2 Guillermo Vilas and No. 6 Harold Solomon became the first players to advance to the quarter-finals in the $150,000 U.S. Clay Courts tennis tournament.

Connors twisted his lower back in a furious contest against Australian Colin Dibley Wednesday night and won when Dibley retired with leg cramps in the third set.

"I would have won it anyway," Connors said Thursday. "I was leading 3-0 at the time."

The back was still bothering Connors in his match against Amaya, and afterward, Connors indicated he might withdraw from doubles competition.

A back problem put Brazil's Thomas Koch out of action for some time and partner Ray Moore to withdraw from the doubles.

Moore, the No. 12 seed from South Africa, suffered a 6-2, 1-6,

7-5 loss to Solomon in a third round match he felt he should have won.

Vilas had an easy time beating Dick Crealey 6-1 in the first set and leading the second 1-0 when Crealey retired due to the stifling heat and a slight leg cramp.

In other matches, eighth-seeded Brian Gottfried dumped Bill Scanlon, 6-3, 6-2. No. 9 Omar Panun held off Jano Velasco, 7-6, 6-4 and No. 10 Ricardo Cano topped Michael Wayman, 7-6, 6-4.

In women's singles, No. 8 Hilda Masthoff completed the field of quarterfinalists with an easy 6-1, 6-2 victory over Ilana Kloss.

The women's top doubles team Lesley Hunt and Cynthia Doerner, both of Australia, coasted past Candy Reynolds and Nancy Yeargin 6-3, 6-2.

The No. 2 doubles team, Glynnis Coles and Florentia Mihai topped Barbara Halquist and Barbara Jordan, 6-0, 6-7, 7-5.

Morning Briefing

Mets Give Frazier Extension

Joe Frazier
One-Year Pact

The New York Mets announced that they have given Joe Frazier a one-year extension on his present contract as manager of the club.

"We're satisfied with him and he's satisfied with us," said Mets chairman of the board M. Donald Grant.

"All I asked for is a one-year contract. Maybe I don't want to manage more than one year. Maybe I do. I'm an organization man. They ask me to manage and I did. I go along with their policies. That's the way we work," said Frazier.

Other Baseball

The Toronto expansion franchise in the American League announced it would be called the Blue Jays. The team will join the AL Baltimore Orioles and the NL St. Louis Cardinals as the third flying entry in the major leagues — not counting the Astros and the Angels.

Atlanta Braves manager Dave Bristol said he plans to keep showing up for his team's games despite a three-day suspension handed him by NL president Chub Feeney. Bristol delayed the suspension with a hearing, Sept. 6.

The Houston Post quoted a source as saying the entire Astrodom-main Corp. complex, including the Houston Astros baseball club, will be under new management within a few days.

The California state Senate approved a bill sponsored by the San Francisco Giants to allow the sale of wine at professional athletic events in stadiums with at least 40,000 seats.

June Raines, who spent 17 years in professional and collegiate baseball as a player, coach and manager, was named to replace Bobby Richardson as head baseball coach of the University of South Carolina Gamecocks.

Football

The Pittsburgh Steelers announced they had traded guard Jim Kregel to the Denver Broncos for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Fred Biletnikoff, a 12-year Oakland Raider veteran and one of the NFL's all-time reception leaders, said that he plans to play out his option this season and go elsewhere next year.

Former University of Michigan football star Jimmy Betts lost a court battle for worker's compensation benefits he sought over a freakish eye injury that cost him a career in the pros. Betts lost the sight in his left eye when students at an Ann Arbor high school pushed him into a swimming pool forcing his whistle into his eye. The court ruling said he was not an employee of the school district, just a student teacher, and therefore not eligible for benefits.

Kansas City Chiefs defensive tackle John Matuszak was charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana stemming from a July 3 traffic accident in Tampa, Fla.

Basketball

Walt Wesley, former Kansas basketball star, will be returning to KU as a student assistant 10 years after he left for a pro basketball career.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers, said he had not made a decision on a possible successor to Bill Sharman as the team's head coach. A source close to Jerry West, one of the candidates for the job, said West feels that Jerry Tarkanian, Nevada-Las Vegas coach and another job candidate, has already signed a contract. A source close to Tarkanian said he would decide by Friday if he would accept a reported five-year $350,000 contract to coach the Lakers.

The Detroit Pistons and Phil Sellers, their third-round draft choice from Rutgers, reached agreement on a contract of undisclosed terms.

The New York State Tax Commission is seeking $6,171.22 in back taxes from 1974 from center Bob McAdoo of the NBA.

Other Sports

There is a divergence of opinions as to what it will take to win the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic. JoAnne Carner thinks it will be a good putter, but defending champion Susie McAllister said consistency will win the tournament, which will start Friday.

World racing driver champion Niki Lauda underwent a successful skin transplant operation in a burn clinic 12 days after he crashed during the German Grand Prix, but the chief doctor said that corrective surgery may be necessary later.

The Crown will not appeal the acquittal on an assault charge against Detroit Red Wing Dan Maloney, the Toronto Attorney General said. Maloney was charged after a fight during a hockey game with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Leafs defenseman Brian Glennie was taken to a hospital after the fight.

The British Jockey Club inquiry into the alleged doping of French-trained racehorse Trepan opened and at stake are Trepan's record-breaking victories — worth nearly $90,000 — at Royal Ascot June 15 and Sandown 18 days later and the international reputation of the Lamorlaye-based trainer, Francois Boutin.

Solomon, Connors Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors shrugged off an aching back and beat Victor Amaya 6-2, 7-5 Thursday while No. 2 Guillermo Vilas and No. 6 Harold Solomon became the first players to advance to the quarter-finals in the $150,000 U.S. Clay Courts tennis tournament.

Connors twisted his lower back in a furious contest against Australian Colin Dibley Wednesday night and won when Dibley retired with leg cramps in the third set.

"I would have won it anyway," Connors said Thursday. "I was leading 3-0 at the time."

The back was still bothering Connors in his match against Amaya, and afterward, Connors indicated he might withdraw from doubles competition.

A back problem put Brazil's Thomas Koch out of action, forcing him and partner Ray Moore to withdraw from the doubles.

Moore, the No. 12 seed from South Africa, suffered a 6-2, 1-6,

7-5 loss to Solomon in a third round match he felt he should have won.

Vilas had an easy time beating Dick Crealey 6-1 in the first set and leading the second 1-0 when Crealey retired due to the stifling heat and a slight leg cramp.

In other matches, eighth-seeded Brian Gottfried dumped Bill Scanlon, 6-3, 6-2; No. 9 Onny Parun held off Jario Velasco, 7-6, 6-4; and No. 15 Ricardo Cano topped Michael Wayman, 7-6, 6-4.

In women's singles, No. 8 Helga Masthoff completed the field of quarterfinalists with an easy 6-1, 6-2 victory over Ilana Kloss.

The women's top doubles team, Lesley Hunt and Cynthia Doerner, both of Australia, coasted past Candy Reynolds and Nancy Yeargin, 6-3, 6-2.

The No. 2 doubles team, Glynis Coles and Florenta Mihai topped Barbara Halquist and Barbara Jordan, 6-0, 6-7, 7-5.

Barry To Play 2 More Years
OAKLAND (AP) — Rick Barry said Thursday he plans to play two more seasons with the National Basketball Association's Golden State Warriors before retiring to become a television sports announcer.

The star forward, who has two years remaining on his NBA contract, said he recently turned down a "six-figure" offer from a television network. His annual salary with the Warriors is close to $300,000.

The Warriors also announced that they're tentatively scheduled to open the 1976-77 season at home with a nationally televised game Oct. 22 against the New York Nets.

Barry To Play 2 More Years
OAKLAND (AP) — Rick Barry said Thursday he plans to play two more seasons with the National Basketball Association's Golden State Warriors before retiring to become a television sports announcer.

The star forward, who has two years remaining on his NBA contract, said he recently turned down a "six-figure" offer from a television network. His annual salary with the Warriors is close to $300,000.

The Warriors also announced that they're tentatively scheduled to open the 1976-77 season at home with a nationally televised game Oct. 22 against the New York Nets.

Other Sports
There is a divergence of opinions as to what it will take to win the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic. JoAnne Carner thinks it will be a good putter, but defending champion Susie McAllister said consistency will win the tournament, which will start Friday.

World racing driver champion Niki Lauda underwent a successful skin transplant operation in a burn clinic 12 days after he crashed during the German Grand Prix, but the chief doctor said that corrective surgery may be necessary later.

The Crown will not appeal the acquittal on an assault charge against Detroit Red Wing Dan Maloney, the Toronto Attorney General said. Maloney was charged after a fight during a hockey game with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Leafs defenseman Brian Glennie was taken to a hospital after the fight.

Judds To Shed Tourney Jinx

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Ralston — Lincoln Judds Brothers will try to maintain one image as a tournament baseball team, but shed another when the Nebraska State American Legion tournament gets underway at Orville Smith Field Friday afternoon.

In the four years head coach Bill Fagler has guided the Judds team, his area tournament record has remained unblemished.

State tournament action has been a different story, however, as the consistent Lincoln junior entry has won just two games in the three previous years.

Fagler is hoping that changes when Judds squares off against Papillon in a 3 p.m. Friday game, despite losing both ends of a double header to Papio three weeks ago by identical 3-2 scores.

"We know we can play with that group," Fagler says. "When they beat us, they threw their No. 1 and No. 2 pitchers and we threw our third and fourth pitchers. I think we'll go to Ralston and play well."

One of the reasons Fagler figures his squad will play well is their added experience.

Judds already has 39 games under its belt before the state begins.

"We do have a losing record," Fagler says. "But after starting out 1-11, I'm pretty happy to be at 18-21 right now."

"I looked at the past years and we always went to state with a record somewhere around 18-8 or 18-9, and all the good teams were playing over 30 games," he adds. "So I thought I'd schedule some extras in case of rain, but we got all the games played."

"It was good for experience too," Fagler says. "All of our five pitchers were able to pitch about 50 innings and the whole team got to play more."

Fagler's ace hurler, Don Shelton, drew the starting assignment for Friday's game with No. 2 pitcher Scott Davis slated for Saturday action in the double-elimination tourney.

"The only reason we would change that is if Scott has to come in and throw six or seven innings tomorrow," Fagler says. "If we go past Saturday, we'll just have to wait to make a decision on pitchers."

The tournament opens with Omaha Creighton Prep facing last year's runner-up, North Platte at 12:30 p.m.

Columbus meets Omaha Westside in a 5:30 p.m. game while Ralston and Millard round out the day's competition at 8 p.m.

At Papillon's Fricke Field, Lincoln's other state Legion representative, 1st Mid America will open the Class A midwest segment of the tournament against Omaha Creighton Prep at 1 p.m.

Around the state, St. Paul will host the Class B juniors while Aurora hosts the B midwests and Gothenburg handles both the Class C juniors and midwests.

Curry Tops Golf Tourney

Modesto, Calif. (UPI) — Cathy Curry of Columbus breezed to a 6-and-5 victory over Lisa Johnson, Buena Park, Calif., Thursday to highlight the quarterfinal round of the 28th USGA Girls' Junior National Golf Championships at the Del Rio Country Club.

Curry's match was in direct contrast to her first match play round Wednesday when she set a tournament record by going 23 holes before defeating Denise Hermida, Brandon, Fla. The longest previous match was 22 holes in 1953.

Johnson had upset the tournament medalist Lauren Howe, Colorado Springs, Colo. Friday's pairings include Curry vs. Doherty and Hartley vs. Dorado.

Gibson Replies To Criticism

Omaha (AP) — Former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson says he was nervous in his first appearance in a national television spot interview but he brushed off criticism of his effort.

The criticism came for an interview Gibson conducted Monday night in Pittsburgh with Pirate pitcher John Candelaria who hurled a no-hitter against Los Angeles.

Gibson is now a baseball commentator for the American Broadcasting Company and an Omaha banker.

Gibson said he was dispatched to conduct the interview without having time to prepare questions.

He said in pregame interviews, "We have time to prepare for them."

Despite the criticism, including some from the show's producer, Gibson said he hopes to be back on television next year.

Star Swimmers Lose Contests

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kim Peyton and Donna Lee Wennerstrom, members of the U.S. Women's Olympic team, won individual races Thursday, but a flock of men's Olympic standouts—headed by John Naber—suffered setbacks in the AAU National Outdoor Swimming championships.

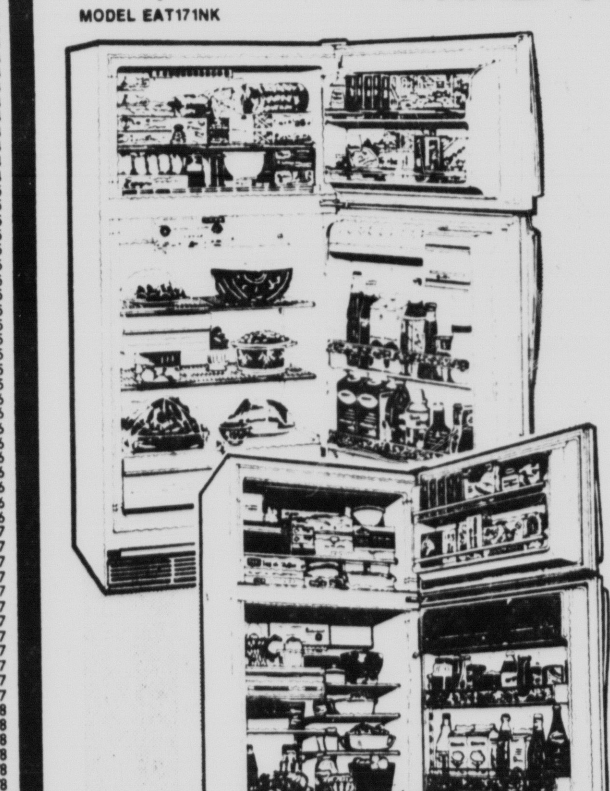

Peyton, of Portland, Ore., won the 200-meter freestyle and Wennerstrom, of Northridge, Calif., won the 400-meter individual medley at J.B. Kelly Pool.

In the men's ranks, Mark Greenwood, of Fresno, Calif., outswam four Olympians, including Naber.

Cattlemen Claim Quota Violated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Kansas and Nebraska cattlemen told President Ford Thursday the cattle business is in bad shape and urged him to promote more federal and public beef purchases.

The cattlemen also complained that Australian and New Zealand beef being trans-shipped to the United States through Puerto Rico violates the import quota law.

Floyd Fairleigh of Scott City, Kan., told reporters after the 30-minute meeting that it was "a good meeting and we got a favorable response from the President."

Other cattlemen attending were Tom Baxter of Grand Island, Neb., Wayne Hendrickson of Kearney, Neb., and Richard Pringle of Yates Center, Kan.

Accompanying them to the White House meeting were Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb.

"We told the President that the beef cattle situation has been in bad shape for three years," Curtis said.

He said that feeders are losing an average of $70 a head while ranchers are losing around $50 a head.

"We urged that the President, through Mrs. Virginia Knauer, urge the people to buy more beef and to emphasize it is a good buy right now," Curtis said. "We also asked that he consider having the government buy more beef."

Mrs. Knauer is the President's consumer advisor.

Curtis said the problems in the cattle industry are due to a number of things "including violations of the quota law in Puerto Rico."

Rep. Smith said 23.3 million pounds of that beef came into the country from Puerto Rico last year.

"We want these pounds put under the import quota law," she said.

She predicted that if something isn't done to help the beef industry the result will be a shortage of beef and, therefore, higher prices for the consumer.

Attending the meeting was Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

"One of the biggest causes of the injury is a violation and circumvention of the law now taking place in Puerto Rico," Curtis said.

"It is my understanding that a U.S. concern in Puerto Rico is buying large quantities of beef and other meat from Australia and New Zealand and possibly from some other countries," he said.

"This meat is being cut up in chunks in order to change the classification," Curtis said. "It is then shipped into the United States outside the quota law."

President Ford's economic adviser, L. William Seidman, said Wednesday that New Zealand plans to halt future shipments to Puerto Rico and that the State Department is negotiating with the government of Australia over meat shipments to a processing plant in Puerto Rico that are in excess of the voluntary quota. Seidman's response came in a letter to 59 congressmen complaining to Ford that more than 21 million pounds of foreign meat entered the United States from Puerto Rico.

LHA To Insulate Clients' Buildings

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

Houses managed by the Lincoln Housing Authority at Arnold Heights will get ceiling insulation before residents have to start paying their own gas and electric bills next winter.

The LHA board voted Thursday night to accept the bid of Carlisle Insulation Co. of Omaha, which will do the work for $51,095. That was the lowest of eight bids.

The company will have 90 days to complete the job, once given notice to proceed, according to the contract.

The amount of insulation will exceed federal standards, LHA director Dick Burke said.

Nothing will be done now about insulating windows in the houses, board president Doug Alford said in response to a question. "We feel it will do a substantial amount of good to put insulation in the roof whether anything is done with the windows," he said.

Several residents of Arnold Heights attended the meeting.

The board also adopted a revised schedule of utilities allowances for low-income renters, which has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under the new schedule, a family living in a three-bedroom house will be allowed a $29.50-per-month rent reduction to cover utilities. The figure under the old schedule was $17, Burke said.

The schedule was cut somewhat from the proposal the board had submitted to HUD, Burke said. HUD based its decision on average utilities consumption in Lincoln, he added.

Alford said the board had no alternative but to accept HUD's decision. "There's nothing we can do about it," he said.

Burke explained that the funds to cover the utilities allowance will come from a reduction in the number of housing units LHA will be allowed to rent from private owners.

The board tabled a decision on rent adjustments for "conventional" units at Arnold Heights after a number of residents voiced opposition to a rent reduction of 5%.

One resident said she would have to move into "substandard housing" because she could not afford to live in conventional housing at Arnold Heights.

Lincoln is the only city in the country whose housing authority maintains "conventional" housing, at a rent somewhere between low-income rates and the open market, Alford explained.

Ford Approves Relief Bill For Vermont Flood Area

Montpelier, Vt. (UPI) — President Ford Thursday signed an emergency relief bill for flood stricken areas of Vermont late Thursday, it was announced by the office of Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt.

Gov. Thomas Salmon had asked Ford for emergency relief earlier in the day as Red Cross relief teams moved into areas in southern Vermont severely damaged when Tropical Storm Belle battered the area with heavy rains Tuesday.

Officials Thursday said property damage due to Belle's brief but violent visit will reach at least $5 million, and could exceed $10 million. Two persons in the state were killed by the storm.

Red Cross spokesman Joseph Patterson said a team of surveyors, who followed Hurricane Belle by automobile up from Cape Hatteras, N.C., were "scouting Vermont towns where private homes sustained heavy damage."

Spokesmen were unable to estimate how many persons were displaced by the floods, but placed it in "the hundreds."

Other Red Cross teams — some walking into rural areas where roads and bridges were swept away by rampaging waters — handed out vouchers exchangeable at local stores for food and clothing.

Two Hurt When Car Hits Bridge

Two persons were injured when their car struck a concrete bridge abutment Thursday on North 1st, according to police.

Donna Christensen, 18, of 2520 NW 10th, was reported in critical condition at Lincoln General Hospital with head and leg injuries. Lyle Jensen, 23, of Omaha, the driver of the car, was reported in fair condition at the same hospital.

Split Verdicts Given San Quentin Inmates

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Three San Quentin inmates were convicted Thursday in the 1971 escape attempt in which black revolutionary George Jackson and five other persons died. Three other defendants were acquitted.

The verdicts in California's longest criminal trial came almost five years after the attempted escape, the bloodiest in the prison's history.

Willie Tate, Louis Talamantez and Qleta Drumgo were found innocent of all charges arising from the Aug. 21, 1971, escape bid in which Jackson was killed by a prison guard.

Johnny L. Spain was convicted of killing two of the three guards who died in the 20-minute carnage and of conspiring to escape with Jackson.

Hugo Pinell and David Johnson were found guilty of assaulting prison guards during the melee in the prison's maximum security section.

Tate, the only defendant free on bail, smiled broadly and raised both arms in clenched fist salutes when the last of his seven verdicts was read. Talamantez and Drumgo, chained to their chairs, managed to hug each other. Spain had a grim expression.

Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick spent 40 minutes reading the 46 verdicts. The seven women and five men were individually polled on each verdict after 24 days of deliberations.

Testimony began July 28, 1975, after 17 weeks were consumed in selecting the panel. The jury received the case on July 15 and deliberated daily except Sundays.

Tate hugged his supporters outside of court, many of whom had wept openly as the verdicts were read. He declined to speak with reporters.

Prosecutor Jerry Herman refused to characterize his feelings but said he did not consider the case closed. "There is still an outstanding warrant against Stephen Bingham," he said.

Bingham, a lawyer and scion of a Connecticut political family, has been accused of smuggling the gun to Jackson that ignited the bloodbath. Charged with murder and conspiracy, he has been a fugitive since the day of the escape attempt. He is believed to be hiding in Canada.

GOP Platform Choices Leave Some Disgruntled

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican platform writers Thursday urged consideration of an end to federal aid to education and proposed tax credits for parents sending their children to private schools.

They also approved an education plank calling for constitutional amendments forbidding busing of school children for racial balance and overturning the Supreme Court decision against prayer in schools.

The actions angered some of the more liberal members of the GOP.

"When the conservatives get through in Kansas City, there may be nothing left of the Republican party," declared Sen. Lowell Weicker, campaigning in Connecticut. He called the emerging platform "something nobody could live with."

"I'm tired of the conservatives ripping up the Republican party ... What will the platform urge next? Immediate war in Panama?" Weicker said. He added that he was not going to the Republican convention.

Meanwhile, the Reagan and Ford camps found agreement in denouncing the Democratic jobs program. But they girded for a bitter fight over the Equal Rights Amendment.

By a 53-43 vote, the Platform Committee said federal excise taxes on tobacco could be eliminated and that tax resource turned over to the states. This would provide the states $2.3 billion in additional revenue to replace $1.9 billion in lost federal education funds, the committee said.

Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, a committee member, warned that "linking tobacco with education is certainly going to be political poison for the Republican party in certain parts of the country."

Scott, who voted against the proposal, was among those urging that the plank be reconsidered as unwise. The committee agreed to decide Friday whether to reconsider it.

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HIGHWAY LOCATION DESIGN HEARING

The NEBRASKA HIGHWAY COMMISSION and the DEPARTMENT OF ROADS are offering an opportunity for a public hearing on highway project No. RF-6-8 (102), described as the proposed improvement of a six mile segment of U.S. Highway 6 in Lancaster County, Nebraska, beginning in the vicinity of Fletcher Avenue in Lincoln and extending northeasterly to a point near the east city limits of Waverly, Nebraska.

The opportunity for a public hearing is extended to discuss the location and design features of the project. A "Location" hearing is held before the Department of Roads is committed to a specific location. A "Design" hearing is offered after selection and approval of route location, but before the Department of Roads is committed to specific design details. This particular opportunity for a hearing combines the two as the improvement is entirely on the existing alignment or involves only minor relocation. Preliminary plans developed by the Department of Roads are available for inspection at the Design Division Office, Nebraska Department of Roads, Main Office, South Junction U.S. 77 and N-2 in Lincoln, Nebraska. A report detailing the effect of this project on the local environment has been prepared and a copy is available to anyone upon request to the address detailed elsewhere in this notice.

Cattlemen Claim Quota Violated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Kansas and Nebraska cattlemen told President Ford Thursday the cattle business is in bad shape and urged him to promote more federal and public beef purchases.

The cattlemen also complained that Australian and New Zealand beef being transshipped to the United States through Puerto Rico violates the import quota law.

Floyd Fairlie of Scott City, Kan., told reporters after the 30-minute meeting that it was "a good meeting and we got a favorable response from the President."

Other cattlemen attending were Tom Baxter of Grand Island, Neb., Wayne Hendrickson of Kearney, Neb., and Richard Pringle of Yates Center, Kan.

Accompanying them to the White House meeting were Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb.

"We told the President that the beef cattle situation has been in bad shape for three years," Curtis said.

He said that feeders are losing an average of $70 a head while ranchers are losing around $50 a head.

"We urged the President, through Mrs. Virginia Knauer, urge the people to buy more beef and to emphasize it is a good buy right now," Curtis said. "We also asked that he consider having the government buy more beef."

Mrs. Knauer is the President's consumer advisor.

Curtis said the problems in the cattle industry are due to a number of things "including violations of the quota law in

Puerto Rico."

Rep. Smith said 23.3 million pounds of that beef came into the country from Puerto Rico last year.

"We want these pounds put under the import quota law," she said.

She predicted that if something isn't done to help the beef industry the result will be a shortage of beef and, therefore, higher prices for the consumer.

Attending the meeting was Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

"One of the biggest causes of the injury is a violation and circumvention of the law now taking place in Puerto Rico," Curtis said.

"It is my understanding that a U.S. concern in Puerto Rico is buying large quantities of beef and other meat from Australia and New Zealand and possibly Everything's Up To Date?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Advice to delegates and others coming to Kansas City for next week's political convention: —If you find a rattlesnake under your bed, do what you usually do under such circumstances. . . —If a buffalo charges down the road at you, look him straight in the eye. This never fails to deflect his course. . . —A decent regard for the customs of the country is gracious and prudent. You may not need your gun during your entire stay, but appearances are a whole lot in the West. . . The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce speaking? Hardly. The chamber proclaims such superlatives as: "Big enough to be exciting. Small enough to be livable. Young enough to be beautiful and dynamic — yet old enough to be gracefully proud and historic."

The above advice, and more like it, comes from the July 1, 1900, issue of The Kansas City Star. It was tongue-in-cheek advice for visitors to the Democratic National Convention here that year. It was headlined: "Manners and customs in Kansas City: A code of instruction and advice designed especially for the bright young men of the eastern press who have been telling all about us in advance of their coming to the convention."

Then, as now, Kansas Citians worried about their cowtown image. Now they get tired of the cliché that everything is up to date in Kansas City, because they know it is.

The 1900 article probably was in retaliation for things that had been written about the city which, admitted, had some problems. The convention hall burned down 90 days before the July 4 start.

There was talk of putting the meetings into a supersized tent. But the hall was rebuilt; the last hammer blow coincided with the first blow of the gavel.

"The way to call a bellboy at the tavern is with a six-shooter," the Star advised. "One shot: ice water; two shots: pie; three shots: town topics; four shots: a good cigar."

And: "Don't try to flirt with the squaws. They are wiser than they look."

"Don't ask for pal sherry at the bars, you'll get whisky anyway. Avoid the brusque comments of the barkeep by asking for the right thing at first. Ask for red liquor."

"When a man sticks his bowie knife into the bar and invites you to drink with him, the clever thing to do is to accept the invitation. He will follow you like a dog ever afterward."

Kansas City people still have something of that self-deprecating streak. The Star's humor columnist, Bill Vaughan, took note of that this week.

"There are some who don't believe there is such a place," he wrote. "Once a resident of Philadelphia (wherever that is) asked me where I was from and I said Kansas City. He said, 'You've got to be kidding,' so I said I didn't have to be kidding but I was, that I was really from Des Moines. This seemed to satisfy him. Why it is that people who don't believe there is a Kansas City will believe there is a Des Moines is not easy to explain."

Kansas City surely isn't a cowtown any more — although the Kemper Arena where the convention will be held is hard by the cattle pens. So maybe some of that 1900 advice might still be valid.

"Beware of wild steers!"

Highway Safety May Aim At Marijuana

Washington (UPI) — Future safety campaigns aimed at keeping drunk drivers off the roads may be aimed at marijuana smokers as well as drinkers of booze.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said that research advances in measuring marijuana in the human body make it possible to establish specific correlations between "pot" smoking and driving impairment.

"This information is necessary in order to build marijuana into the highway safety campaign now largely restricted to alcohol," Du Pont said in an institute research report.

Past government reports on marijuana and health have cited research indicating that "pot" can affect auto driving performance, just as alcohol can.

New research techniques described in the report on "cannabinoid assays in humans" will make it possible to investigate "a number of serious social and health problems" related to marijuana, DuPont said.

"Chief among these concerns is the effect of marijuana smoking on driving," he added.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Advice to delegates and others coming to Kansas City for next week's political convention:

—If you find a rattlesnake under your bed, do what you usually do under such circumstances. . .

—If a buffalo charges down the road at you, look him straight in the eye. This never fails to deflect his course. . .

—A decent regard for the customs of the country is gracious and prudent. You may not need your gun during your entire stay, but appearances are a whole lot in the West. . .

The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce speaking? Hardly.

The chamber proclaims such superlatives as: "Big enough to be exciting. Small enough to be livable. Young enough to be beautiful and dynamic — yet old enough to be gracefully proud and historic."

The above advice, and more like it, comes from the July 1, 1900, issue of The Kansas City Star. It was tongue-in-cheek advice for visitors to the Democratic National Convention here that year.

It was headlined: "Manners and customs in Kansas City: A code of instruction and advice designed especially for the bright young men of the eastern press who have been telling all about us in advance of their coming to the convention."

Then, as now, Kansas Citians worried about their cowtown image. Now they get tired of the cliché that everything is up to date in Kansas City, because they know it is.

The 1900 article probably was in retaliation for things that had been written about the city which, admitted, had some problems. The convention hall burned down 90 days before the July 4 start.

Washington (UPI) — Future safety campaigns aimed at keeping drunk drivers off the roads may be aimed at marijuana smokers as well as drinkers of booze.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said that research advances in measuring marijuana in the human body make it possible to establish specific correlations between "pot" smoking and driving impairment.

"This information is necessary in order to build marijuana into the highway safety campaign now largely restricted to alcohol," Du Pont said in an institute research report.

Past government reports on marijuana and health have cited research indicating that "pot" can affect auto driving performance, just as alcohol can.

New research techniques described in the report on "cannabinoid assays in humans" will make it possible to investigate "a number of serious social and health problems" related to marijuana, DuPont said.

"Chief among these concerns is the effect of marijuana smoking on driving," he added.

A lawsuit has been filed in U.S. District Court in Lincoln, asking that certain Nebraska presidential election laws be declared unconstitutional, and that former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy's name be placed on the November election ballot. The action, which asks a three-judge federal panel be convened to hear the case, was filed by independent presidential candidate McCarthy, Pat Watkins of Broken Bow, and Omahaans Harry G. Mendelson, Edwin H. Garrison Jr., and Malcolm Paine. Defendants are Gov. J. James Exon and Nebraska Secretary of State Allen Beermann.

The suit seeks redress "from those laws of the state of Nebraska . . . that prohibit electoral consideration of independent candidates for president of these United States." The action notes that McCarthy, a Democratic presidential hopeful in 1968, is now seeking the post as a candidate with no party affiliation.

Mendelson and Garrison want to be appointed presidential electors of the state for McCarthy, while Watkins and Paine seek to vote for him, "but have good reason to believe that they will be prevented from doing so," under Nebraska law. The action points out that under Nebraska statutes otherwise qualified persons may run for election to any state, county or township office as an independent candidate upon securing a designated number of signatures on nomination papers. But statutes "effectively bar elector consideration in Nebraska of independent presidential candidates," the suit said.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Friday, August 13, 1976

If you need help, call on Aquarius or Libra. Scorpio should also be on list. These three can drop everything and come up with solutions to problems. The signs in question are not always expert at helping themselves - but they are right target when it comes to aiding others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get favorable attention, more so than in recent past. Cycle is high and your judgment, intuition are on target. You make new contacts, gain better position where prestige, advancement are concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Light is thrown on areas previously darkened. Be willing to move ahead in a more independent manner. Shackles will be removed if you so permit. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. A clandestine meeting could be on agenda. Discretion is a necessity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Career, prestige, standing in community - these are emphasized. An Aquarian could be very much in picture. Some of your desires are fulfilled. Includes even some that might be considered to be in "fantasy realm."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message for valid hint. One with authority to "pull strings" may do so - on your behalf. Be versatile, willing to diversify. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Many of your questions will be answered - if you ask.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be specific - check details, be aware of basic issues. Long-range view is necessary. By working hard now, you "free" yourself for ultimate travel, creativity, education. An exciting contact is highlighted. You become more aware of potential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Concern with hidden matters is indicated. Money, as it affects partner or mate, is also spotlighted. Change, travel, variety, intensified relationship - these command attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spotlight on partnership, contracts, long-term relationships. Taurus, Scorpio individuals figure prominently. Go slow. Be diplomatic. Cement agreement with one you know to have your best interests at heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You make concessions and this is constructive. You need not give up principles in order to be amiable. Pisces, Virgo persons might play key roles. Accent now is on health, work, basic interests, getting together with those who share hopes, goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creativity, involvement, the imprinting of your style, desires - these form part of montage. Change, travel, romance are featured. You get going - status quo is shattered. Children, exploration, the excitement of discovery surge to forefront.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finish project, assignment - get rid of losing proposition. Refuse to be intimidated by one who sings the blues. You need not carry a burden which rightly belongs to someone else. Build on solid base. Do something constructive to promote personal security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short trip might be featured. Close neighbor or relative commands time and attention. Be independent, not arrogant. Listen without making major commitment. You'll understand as day progresses. Leo and another Aquarian could figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money, collections, preserving of assets - these factors could now be of major importance. Know it and act accordingly. Don't juggle facts. Be specific and realistic. Financial security could be directly involved.

IF AUGUST 13th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, stubborn, temperamental, a rebel, an innovator, a person who emerged early - separate from parents and other authority figures. September will be your most important month of 1976, a year which sees you in business, adding to responsibility. If single, you marry... If married, there could be an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
